do enact as follows :—*

1. The legislative power of the Corporation of the City of New-York, shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistants, who together shall form the Common Council of the City.

2. Each Ward of the City shall be entitled to elect one person to be denominated the Alderman of the Ward, and the persons so chosen, together shall form the Board of Aldermen; and each Ward shall also be entitled to elect one person to be denominated an Assistant Alderman; and the persons so chosen, together shall form the Board of Assistants.

3. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall be chosen for one year; and no person shall be eligible to either office, who shall not, at the time of his election, be a resident of the Ward for which he is chosen.

4. The annual election for the Charter Officers shall commence on the second Tuesday in April, and the officers elected shall be sworn into office on the second Tuesday in May thereafter; and all the provisions of law now in force in regard to the notification, duration, and conduct of elections for Members of Assembly, and in regard to the appointment, powers, and duties of the inspectors, holding the same, shall apply to the annual election of Charter Officers.

5. The first election for Charter Officers, after the passage of this law, shall take place on the second Tuesday in April. one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one; and all those persons who shall have been elected under the former laws regulating the election of Charter Officers, and shall be in office at the time of the passage of this law, shall continue in office until the officers elected under this law shall be entitled to be sworn into office.

6. The Board of Aldermen shall have power to direct a special election to be held, to supply the place of an Alderman whose seat shall become vacant by death, removal from the City, resignation, or otherwise; and the Board of Assistants shall also have power to direct a special election to supply any vacancy that may occur in the Board of Assistants; and in both cases, the person elected to supply the vacancy shall hold his seat only for the residue of the term of office of his immediate predecessor.

7. The Boards shall meet in separate chambers, and a majority of each shall be a quorum to do business. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body, and shall also choose its Clerk and other officers, determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the qualifications of its own members. Each Board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and the doors of each shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and all resolutions and reports of Committees which shall recommend any specific improvement involving the appropriation of public moneys, or taxing or assessing the citizens of said city, shall be published immediately after the adjournment of the Board, under the authority of the Common Council, in all the newspapers employed by the Corporation; and whenever a vote is taken in relation thereto, the ayes and noes shall be called and published in the same manner.

8. Each Board shall have the authority to compel the attendance of absent members; to punish its members for disorderly behavior, and to expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board; and the member so expelled, shall, by such expulsion, forfeit all his right and powers as an Alderman or Assistant Alderman.

9. The stated and occasional meetings of each Board of the Common Council, shall be regulated by its own ordinances; and both Boards may meet on the same or on different days, as they may severally judge expedient.

10. Any law, ordinance, or resolution of the Common Council may originate in either Board, and when it shall have passed one Board, may be rejected or amended by the other.

11. 12. Every act, ordinance or resolution, which shall have passed the two Boards of the Common Council, before it shall take effect shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the City, for his approbation. The Board to which it shall be returned, shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the public newspapers of the City.

13. The Board to which such act, ordinance, or resolution, has been so returned, shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of the members elected to the Board shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other Board, by which it shall be likewise reconsidered; and if approved by a majority of all the members elected to such Board, it shall take effect as an act or law of the Corporation. In all such cases the votes of both Boards shall be determined by ayes and noes, and the names of the persons voting for and against the passage of the measure reconsidered, shall be entered on the journal of each Board respectively.

14. If the Mayor shall not return any act, ordinance, or resolution so presented to him, within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had signed it.

15. Neither the Mayor nor Recorder of the City of New-York shall be a member of the Common Council thereof, after the second Tuesday of May, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one.

AMEND THE CHARTER
OF THE
CITY OF NEW-YORK.

PASSED APRIL 2, 1849, "THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT."

The People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

§ 1. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman from each Ward, who shall be elected by the people of the respective Wards for two years. The Board of Assistant Aldermen shall consist of one Assistant Alderman from each Ward, who shall be elected in like manner, and shall hold their office for one year.

§ 2. The election for Charter Officers shall be held on the day of the general state election, when all Charter Officers eligible by the people shall be chosen, and the officers who shall be elected shall be sworn into office on the first Monday of January thereafter ; and the laws of the state regulating elections, shall apply to elections of Charter Officers ; but the Common Council may, by law, extend the time for the canvass of the votes. The Mayor shall hold his office for a period of two years.

§ 3. The Common Council, during the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty, may hold its sessions as often as each Board shall by resolution appoint, and thereafter the Common Council shall annually hold only three stated sessions of not exceeding one month each, commencing on the first Monday of January, May and September. The Mayor may convene the Common Council or the Board of Aldermen, only, at any time between the sessions, if, in his judgment, any exigency shall have arisen to render such a proceeding necessary, on the request, in writing, of a majority of the members elected to each Board, specifying the purposes for which such meeting is called ; in which case, the action of the Common Council shall be confined to the matters in reference to which it shall have been so convened, or to such other matters as may be submitted by the Mayor for its consideration during such session ; and the respective Boards may adjourn from day to day until such business shall be completed.

§ 4. The Boards shall sit in separate chambers, and the doors shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy. A majority of each shall be a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members. Neither Board shall adjourn for a longer period than three days, except by a resolution to be concurred in by the other body.

§ 5. It shall be the duty of the Clerks of the respective Boards, to publish all ordinances, and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy, and whenever a vote shall be taken in either Board, upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition or appropriation of public property, or the expenditure of public moneys or income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment, such resolution or ordinance shall, before the same shall be sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment of the Board at which the same shall have been passed, be published with the ayes and noes, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings ; and no act, resolution or ordinance which shall have passed one Board, shall be acted upon by the other Board on the same day, unless by unanimous consent, except in case of invasion, insurrection or pestilence.

§ 6. If any ordinance or resolution passed by each Board, as provided by sections twelve and thirteen of the Amended Charter of one thousand eight hundred and thirty, shall not be returned by the Mayor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the close of the session of the Common Council shall prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law until the expiration of five days after the commencement of the next session of the Common Council, by whom the ordinance or resolution shall be reconsidered if returned within such time, and be disposed of in the same manner, and with like effect, as if presented at the preceding session.

§ 7. No money shall be drawn from the City Treasury, except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purpose for which it is drawn; and all appropriations shall be based upon specific and detailed statements in writing of the several heads of the departments, through the Comptroller.

§ 28. All such parts of the Charter of the City of New-York, and the several acts of the Legislature amending the same, or in any manner affecting the same, as are inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed; but so much and such parts thereof as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this law, shall not be construed as repealed, altered or modified, or in any form affected thereby, but shall continue and remain in full force and virtue.

§ 29. This act shall be submitted for the approval of the electors of the City and County of New-York, at an election to be held in said City, on the second Tuesday of April, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, for which the Common Council of the City shall make the necessary arrangements. The tickets which shall be polled at the said election, shall contain either the words, "In favor of amendments to Charter," or "Against amendments to Charter," and if a majority of all the persons voting thereon at the said election shall vote the ticket "In favor of amendments to Charter," this act shall become a law; if a majority of such persons shall vote "Against amendments to Charter," this act shall be void.

§ 30. In case this act shall be approved of by a majority of the electors of said City, as aforesaid, and become a law, it shall go into effect on the first day of June next; and the terms of office of all the officers elected at such election on the second Tuesday of April next, shall expire on the days and in the manner hereinbefore provided.

MANUAL OF PARLIAMENTARY PRACTICE.

IMPORTANCE OF RULES.

[THE compiler has deemed it advisable to insert JEFFERSON'S MANUAL OF PARLIAMENTARY PRACTICE, believing that it will not only enhance the value of the work, but also prove eminently serviceable as a reference to all interested in Parliamentary debates.]

The rules and practices peculiar to both the Senate and House of Representatives, are printed in smaller type.

SECTION I.

THE IMPORTANCE OF ADHERING TO RULES.

MR. ONSLOW, the ablest among the Speakers of the House of Commons, used to say, "It was a maxim he had often heard when he was a young man, from old and experienced members, that nothing tended more to throw power into the hands of administration and those who acted with the majority of the House of Commons, than a neglect of, or departure from, the rules of proceeding; that these forms, as instituted by our ancestors, operated as a check and control on the actions of the majority; and that they were, in many instances, a shelter and protection to the minority, against the attempts of power."

So far the maxim is certainly true, and is founded in good sense, that as it is always in the power of the majority, by their numbers, to stop any improper measures proposed on the part of their opponents, the only weapons by which the minority can defend themselves against similar attempts from those in power, are the forms and rules of proceeding, which have been adopted as they were found necessary from time to time, and are become the law of the house; by a strict adherence to which, the weaker party can only be protected from those irregularities and abuses, which these forms were intended to check, and which the wantonness of power is but too often apt to suggest to large and successful majorities.—2 Hats. 171, 172.

And whether these forms be in all cases the most rational or not, is really not of so great importance. It is much more material that there should be a rule to go by, than what that rule is; that there may be a uniformity of proceeding in business, not subject to the caprice of the Speaker, or captiousness of the members. It is very material that order, decency, and regularity be preserved in a dignified public body.—2 Hats. 149.

SECTION II.

LEGISLATURE.

ALL Legislative powers herein granted, shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.—Constitution of the United States, Article I. Section 1.

The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sect. 6.

For the powers of Congress, see the following Articles and Sections of the Constitution of the United States :—Art I. Sec. 4. 7. 8, 9.—Art. II. Sec. 1, 2.—Art. III. Sec. 3 —Art. IV. Sec. 1. 3. 5.—And all the Amendments.

SECTION III.

PRIVILEGE.

THE privileges of the members of Parliament, from small and obscure beginnings, have been advancing for centuries with a firm and never-yielding pace. Claims seem to have been brought forward from time to time, and repeated, till some example of their admission enabled them to build law on that example. We can only, therefore, state the point of progression at which they now are. It is now acknowledged, 1st, That they are at all times exempted from question elsewhere, for anything said in their own house : that during the time of privilege, 2d, neither a member himself, his wife,* or his servants, [familiares sui] for any matter of their own, may be arrested on mense process, in any civil suit : 3d, Nor be detained under execution, though levied before the time of privilege : 4th, Nor impleaded, cited, or subpœnaed, in any court : 5th, Nor summoned as a witness or juror : 6th, Nor may their lands or goods be distrained : 7th, Nor their persons assaulted, or characters traduced. And the period of time, covered by privilege, before and after the session, with the practice of short prorogations under the connivance of the Crown, amounts in fact to a perpetual protection against the course of justice. In one instance, indeed, it has been relaxed by 10 G. 3, c. 50, which permits judiciary proceedings to go on against them. That these privileges must be continually progressing, seems to result from their rejecting all definition of them; the doctrine being, that "their dignity and independence are preserved by keeping their privileges indefinite;" and that "the maxims upon which they proceed, together with the method of proceeding, rest entirely in their own breast, and are not defined and ascertained by any particular stated laws."—1 Blackstone 163, 164.

* Order of the House of Commons, 1663, July 16.

† Elsynge, 217; 1 Hats. 21; 1 Grey's Deb. 133.

It was probably from this view of the encroaching character of privilege, that the framers of our Constitution, in their care to provide that the laws shall bind equally on all, and especially that those who make them shall not be exempt themselves from their operation, have only privileged "Senators and Representatives" themselves from the single act of arrest in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same, and from being questioned in any other place for any speech or debate in either House.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 6. Under the general authority "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers given them, Const. U. S. Art. II. Sec. 8, they may provide by law the details which may be necessary for giving full effect to the enjoyment of this privilege. No such law being as yet made, it seems to stand at present on the following ground:—1. The act of arrest is void, ab initio, 2 Stra. 989.—2. The member arrested may be discharged on motion, 1 Bl. 166, 2 Stra. 990; or by Habeas Corpus under the Federal or State authority, as the case may be; or by a writ of privilege out of the Chancery, 2 Stra. 989, in those States which have adopted that part of the laws of England.—Orders of the House of Com. 1550, Feb. 20. 3. The arrest being unlawful, is a trespass for which the officer and others concerned are liable to action or indictment in the ordinary courts of justice, as in other cases of unauthorized arrest. 4. The court before which the process is returnable, is bound to act as in other cases of unauthorized proceeding, and liable also, as in other similar cases, to have their proceedings stayed or corrected by the Superior Courts.

The time necessary for going to and returning from Congress not being defined, it will of course be judged of in every particular case by those who will have to decide the case.

While privilege was understood in England to extend, as it does here, only to exemption from arrest eundo, morando, et redeundo, the House of Commons themselves decided that "a convenient time was to be understood,"—1580—1 Hats. 99, 100. Nor is the law so strict in point of time as to require the party to set out immediately on his return, but allows him time to settle his private affairs, and to prepare for his journey; and does not even scan his road very nicely, nor forfeit his protection for a little deviation from that which is most direct; some necessity, perhaps, constraining him to it.—2 Stra. 986, 987.

This privilege from arrest, privileges of course against all process, the disobedience to which is punishable by an attachment of the person; as a subpoena ad respondendum, or testificandum, or a summons on a jury; and with reason, because a member has superior duties to perform in another place.

When a Representative is withdrawn from his seat by summons, the 47,700 people whom he represents lose their voice in debate and vote, as they do in his voluntary absence: when a Senator is withdrawn by summons, his State loses half its voice in debate and vote, as it does in his voluntary absence. The enormous disparity of evil admits no comparison.

So far there will probably be no difference of opinion as to the privileges of the two Houses of Congress; but in the following cases it is otherwise. In Dec., 1795, the House of Representatives committed two persons of the names of Randall and Whitney, for attempting to corrupt the integrity of certain members, which they considered as a contempt and breach of the privileges of the House: and the facts being proved, Whitney was detained in confinement a fortnight, and Randall three weeks, and was reprimanded by the Speaker. In March, 1796, the House of Representatives voted a challenge given to a member of their House, to be a breach of the privileges of the House; but satisfactory apologies and acknowledgments being made, no further proceedings were had. The Editor of the Aurora having in his paper of Feb. 19, 1800, inserted some paragraphs defamatory to the Senate, and failed in his appearance, he was ordered to be committed. In debating the legality of this order, it was insisted in support of it, that every man, by the law of nature, and every body of men, possesses the right of self-defence; that all public functionaries are essentially invested with the powers of self-preservation; that they have an inherent right to do all acts necessary to keep themselves in a condition to discharge the trusts confided to them; that whenever authorities are given, the means of carrying them into execution are given by necessary implication; that thus we see the British Parliament exercise the right of punishing contempts; all the State Legislatures exercise the same power; and every Court does the same; that if we have it not, we sit at the mercy of every intruder who may enter our doors or gallery, and by noise and tumult render proceeding in business impracticable; that if our tranquillity is to be perpetually disturbed by newspaper defamation, it will not be possible to exercise our functions with the requisite coolness and deliberation; and that we must therefore have a power to punish these disturbers of our peace and proceedings. To this it was answered, that the Parliament and Courts of England have cognizance of contempts by the express provisions of their law; that the State Legislatures have equal authority, because their powers are plenary; they represent their constituents completely, and possess all their powers, except such as their Constitutions have expressly denied them; that the courts of the several States have the same powers by the laws of their States, and those of the Federal Government by the same State laws, adopted in each State by a law of Congress; that none of these bodies, therefore, derive those powers from natural or necessary right, but from express law; that Congress have no such natural or necessary power, nor any powers but such as are given them by the Constitution; that that has given them directly exemption from personal arrest, exemption from question elsewhere for what is said in the House, and power over their own members and proceedings; for these, no further law is necessary, the Constitution being the law; that, moreover, by that article of the Constitution which authorizes them "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers vested by the Constitution in them," they may provide by law for an undisturbed exercise of their functions, e. g. for the punishment of contempts, of affrays or tumults in their presence, &c.; but, till the law be made, it does not exist; and does not exist, from their own neglect; that in the meantime, however, they are not unprotected, the ordinary magistrates and courts of law being open and competent to punish all unjustifiable disturbances or defamations, and even their own sergeant, who may appoint deputies ad libitum to aid him, 3 Grey, 59. 147. 255, is equal to the smallest disturbances; that, in requiring a previous law, the Constitution had regard to the inviolability of the citizen as well as of the member; as, should one House, in the regular form of a bill, aim at too broad privileges, it may be checked by the other, and both by the President; and also as, the law being promulgated, the citizen will know how to avoid offence. But if one branch may assume its own privileges without control; if it may do it on the spur of the occasion, conceal the law in its own breast, and after the fact committed make its sentence both the law and the judgment on that fact; if the offence is to be kept undefined, and to be declared only ex re nata, and according to the passions of the moment, and there be no limitation either in the manner or measure of the punishment, the condition of the citizen will be perilous indeed. Which of these doctrines is to prevail, time will decide. Where there is no fixed law, the judgment on any particular case is the law of that single case only, and dies with it. When a new and even a similar case arises, the judgment which is to make, and at the same time apply, the law, is open to question and consideration, as are all new laws. Perhaps Congress, in the meantime, in their care for the safety of the citizens, as well as that for their own protection, may declare by law what is necessary and proper to enable them to carry into execution the powers vested in them, and thereby hang up a rule for the inspection of all, which may direct the conduct of the citizen, and at the same time test the judgments they shall themselves pronounce in their own case.

Privilege from arrest takes place by force of the election; and before a return be made, a member elected may be named of a committee, and is to every intent a member, except that he cannot vote until he is sworn.—Memor. 107, 108. —D'Ewes, 642, col. 2; 653, col. 1.—Pet. Miscel. Parl. 119; Lex. Parl. c. 23; 2 Hats. 22, 62.

Every man must, at his peril, take notice who are members of either House returned of record.—Lex. Parl. 23, 4—Inst. 24.

On complaint of a breach of privilege, the party may either be summoned, or sent for in custody of the sergeant.—1 Grey, 88, 95.

The privilege of a member is the privilege of the House. If the member waive it without leave, it is a ground for punishing him, but cannot in effect waive the privilege of the House.—3 Grey, 140, 222.

For any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 6. S. P. protest of Commons to James I. 1621. 2 Rapin. No. 54. p. 211, 212. But this is restrained to things done in the House in a Parliamentary course, 1 Rush, 663. For he is not to have privilege contra morem parliamentarium, to exceed the bounds and limits of his place and duty.—Com. p.

If an offence be committed by a member in the House, of which the House has cognizance, it is an infringement of their right for any person or court to take notice of it, till the House has punished the offender, or referred him to a due course.—Lex. Parl. 63.

Privilege is in the power of the House, and is a restraint to the proceedings of inferior courts; but not of the House itself.—2 Nelson, 450; 2 Grey, 399.—For whatever is spoken in the House, is subject to the censure of the House: and offences of this kind have been severely punished, by calling the person to the bar to make submission, committing him to the Tower, expelling the House, &c.—Scob. 72; Lex. Parl. c. 22.

It is a breach of order, for the Speaker to refuse to put a question which is in order.—2 Hats. 175, 176; 5 Grey, 133.

And even in cases of treason, felony, and breach of the peace, to which privilege does not extend as to substance; yet, in Parliament, a member is privileged as to the mode of proceeding. The case is first to be laid before the House, that it may judge of the fact, and of the grounds of the accusation, and how far forth the manner of the trial may concern their privilege. Otherwise it would be in the power of other branches of the government, and even of every private man, under pretences of treason, &c., to take any man from his service in the House; and so as many, one after another, as would make the House what he pleaseth.—Decision of the Commons on the King's declaring Sir John Hotham a traitor—4 Rushw. 586. So when a member stood indicted of felony, it was adjudged that he ought to remain of the House till conviction. For it may be any man's case, who is guiltless, to be accused and indicted of felony, or the like crime.—23 El. 1580—D'Ewes, 283. col. 1—Lex. Parl. 133.

When it is found necessary for the public service to put a member under arrest, or when, on any public inquiry, matter comes out which may lead to affect the person of a member, it is the practice immediately to acquaint the House, that they may know the reasons for such a proceeding, and take such steps as they think proper.—2 Hats. 259. Of which, see many examples.—2 Hats. 256, 257, 258. But the communication is subsequent to the arrest.—1 Blackstone, 167.

It is highly expedient, says Hatsell, for the due preservation of the privileges of the separate branches of the Legislature, that neither should encroach on the other, or interfere in any matter depending before them, so as to preclude, or even influence, that freedom of debate, which is essential to a free council. They are, therefore, not to take notice of any bills or other matters depending, or of votes that have been given, or of speeches that have been held, by the members of either of the other branches of the Legislature, until the same have been communicated to them in the usual Parliamentary manner.—2 Hats. 252; 4 Inst. 15; Seld. Jud. 53. Thus the King's taking notice of the bill for suppressing soldiers depending before the House, his proposing a provisional clause for a bill before it was presented to him by the two Houses, his expressing displeasure against some persons for matters moved in Parliament during the debate and preparation of a bill, were breaches of privilege.—2 Nalson, 743; and in 1783, December 17, it was declared a breach of fundamental privileges, &c., to report any opinion or pretended opinion of the King, on any bill or proceeding depending in either House of Parliament, with a view to influence the votes of the members.—2 Hats. 251, 6.

SECTION IV.

ELECTIONS.

THE times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 4.

Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 5.

SECTION V.

QUALIFICATIONS.

THE Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled, in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the end of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class, at the expiration of the sixth year; so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments, until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a Senator, who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State, for which he shall be chosen.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 3.

The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States; and the Electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature.

No person shall be a Representative, who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand; but each State shall have at least one Representative.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 2.

The provisional apportionments of Representatives made in the Constitution in 1787, and afterwards by Congress, were as follows:

No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 6.

SECTION VI.

QUORUM.

A MAJORITY of each House shall constitute a quorum to do business ; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each House may provide.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 5.

In general, the chair is not to be taken till a quorum for business is present ; unless, after due waiting, such a quorum be despaired of, when the chair may be taken, and the House adjourned. And whenever, during business, it is observed that a quorum is not present, any member may call for the House to be counted : and being found deficient, business is suspended.—2 Hats. 125, 126.

The President having taken the chair, and a quorum being present, the journal of the preceding day shall be read, to the end, that any mistake may be corrected that shall have been made in the entries.—Rules of the Senate, 1.

SECTION VII.

CALL OF THE HOUSE.

On a call of the House, each person rises up as he is called, and answereth ; the absentees are then only noted, but no excuse to be made till the House be fully called over. Then the absentees are called a second time, and if still absent, excuses are to be heard.—Ord. H. of C. 92.

They rise, that their persons may be recognized ; the voice, in such a crowd, being an insufficient verification of their presence. But in so small a body as the Senate of the United States, the trouble of rising cannot be necessary.

Orders for calls on different days may subsist at the same time.—2 Hats. 72.

SECTION VIII.

ABSENCE.

No member shall absent himself from the service of the Senate without leave of the Senate first obtained. And in case a less number than a quorum of the Senate shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the sergeant-at-arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent members, as the majority of such members present shall agree, at the expense of such absent members respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made, as the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient, and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund. And this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session, after the hour is arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned.—Rule 8.

SECTION IX.

SPEAKER.

THE Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 3.

The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 3.

The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 2.

When but one person is proposed, and no objection made, it has not been usual in Parliament to put any question to the House; but without a question, the members proposing him, conduct him to the chair. But if there be objection, or another proposed, a question is put by the clerk.—2 Hats. 168. As are also questions of adjournment.—6 Grey, 406. Where the House debated and exchanged messages and answers with the King for a week, without a Speaker, till they were prorogued. They have done it de die in diem for 14 days.—1 Chand. 331. 335.

In the Senate, a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, is proposed and chosen by ballot. His office is understood to be determined on the Vice-President's appearing and taking the chair, or at the meeting of the Senate after the first recess.—Vide Rule 23.

Where the Speaker has been ill, other Speakers pro tempore have been appointed. Instances of this are, 1 H. 4, Sir John Cheney, and for Sir Wm. Sturton, and in 15 H. 6, Sir John Tyrrell, in 1656, Jan. 27; 1658, Mar. 9; 1659, Jan. 13.

A Speaker may be removed at the will of the House, and a Speaker pro tempore appointed.—2 Grey, 186; 5 Grey, 134; Vide Rule Sen. 23.

SECTION X.

ADDRESS.

THE President shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient.—Const. U. S., Art. II. Sec. 3.

A joint address from both Houses of Parliament is read by the Speaker of the House of Lords. It may be attended by both Houses in a body, or by a committee from each House, or by the two Speakers only. An address of the House of Commons only may be presented by the whole House, or by the Speaker.—9 Grey, 473; 1 Chandler, 298, 301, or by such particular members as are of the Privy Council.—2 Hats. 276.

SECTION XI.

COMMITTEES.*

STANDING committees, as of privileges and elections, &c., are usually appointed at the first meeting, to continue through the session. The person first named is generally permitted to act as chairman, but this is a matter of courtesy; every committee having a right to elect their own chairman, who presides over them, puts questions, and reports their proceedings to the House.—4 Inst. 11, 12; Scob. 7; 1 Grey, 112.

At these committees, the members are to speak standing, and not sitting; though there is reason to conjecture it was formerly otherwise.—D'Ewes, 630, col. 1; 4 Parl. Hist. 440; 2 Hats. 77.

Their proceedings are not to be published, as they are of no force till confirmed by the House.—Rushw. part 3, vol. 2, 74; 3 Grey, 401, Scob. 39. Nor can they receive a petition but through the House.—9 Grey, 412.

When a committee is charged with an inquiry, if a member prove to be involved, they cannot proceed against him, but must make a special report to the House; whereupon, the member is heard in his place, or at the bar, or a special authority is given to the committee to inquire concerning him.—9 Grey, 523.

So soon as the House sits, and a committee is notified of it, the chairman is in duty bound to rise instantly, and the members to attend the service of the House.—2 Nals. 319. Vide Rules H. R. 102.

It appears, that on joint committee of the Lords and Commons, each committee acted integrally, in the following instances—7 Grey, 261. 278. 285. 338; 1 Chandler, 357. 462. In the following instances it does not appear whether they did or not—6 Grey, 129; 7 Grey, 213. 229. 321.

SECTION XII.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

THE speech, messages, and other matters of great concernment, are usually referred to a committee of the whole House—6 Grey, 311, where general principles are digested in the form of resolutions, which are debated and amended till they get into a shape which meets the approbation of a majority. These being reported and confirmed by the House, are then referred to one or more select committees, according as the subject divides itself into one or more bills.—Scob. 36. 44. Propositions for any charge on the people are especially to be first made in a committee of the whole—3 Hats. 127. Vide Rules H. R. 123, 124. The sense of the whole is better taken in committee, because in all committees every one speaks as often as he pleases—Scob. 49. Vide Rules H. R.

* Mode of appointing committees. Vide Senate Rules 33, 34. Rules H. R. 7.

125. They generally acquiesce in the chairman named by the Speaker ; but, as well as all other committees, have a right to elect one ; some member, by consent, putting the question.—Scob. 36 ; 3 Grey, 301.—Vide Rules H. R. 118. The form of going from the House into committee, is for the Speaker, on motion, to put the question that the House do now resolve itself into a committee of the whole, to take under consideration such a matter, naming it. If determined in the affirmative, he leaves the chair, and takes a seat elsewhere, as any other member ; and the person appointed chairman seats himself at the clerk's table.—Scob. 36.—Vide Rules H. R. 118. Their quorum is the same as that of the House ; and if a defect happens, the chairman, on a motion and question, rises, the Speaker resumes the chair, and the chairman can make no other report than to inform the House of the cause of their dissolution. If a message is announced during a committee, the Speaker takes the chair, and receives it, because the committee cannot.—2 Hats. 125, 126.

In a committee of the whole, the tellers, on a division, differing as to numbers, great heats and confusion arose, and danger of a decision by the sword. The Speaker took the chair, the mace was forcibly laid on the table ; whereupon, the members retiring to their places, the Speaker told the House "he had taken the chair without an order, to bring the House into order." Some excepted against it ; but it was generally approved as the only expedient to suppress the disorder. And every member was required, standing up in his place, to engage that he would proceed no further, in consequence of what had happened in the grand committee, which was done.—3 Grey, 139.

A committee of the whole being broken up in disorder, and the chair resumed by the Speaker without an order, the House was adjourned. The next day the committee was considered as thereby dissolved, and the subject again before the House ; and it was decided in the House, without returning into committee.—3 Grey, 130.

No previous question can be put in a committee ; nor can this committee adjourn as others may ; but if their business is unfinished, they rise on a question, the House is resumed, and the chairman reports that the committee of the whole have, according to order, had under their consideration such a matter, and have made progress therein : but not having time to go through the same, have directed him to ask leave to sit again. Whereupon a question is put on their having leave, and on the time when the House will again resolve itself into a committee.—Scob. 38. But if they have gone through the matter referred to them, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report their proceedings to the House ; which being resolved, the chairman rises, the Speaker resumes the chair, the chairman informs him that the committee have gone through the business referred to them, and that he is ready to make report when the House shall think proper to receive it. If the House have time to receive it, there is usually a cry of " Now, Now ;" whereupon he makes the report : but if it be late, the cry is, " To-morrow, To-morrow," or, " On Monday,"

&c., or a motion is made to that effect, and a question put, that it be received to-morrow, &c.—Scob. 38.

In other things the rules of proceedings are to be the same as in the House.—Scob. 39.

SECTION XIII.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

COMMON fame is a good ground for the House to proceed by inquiry, and even to accusation.—Resolution of the House of Commons, 1 Car. 1, 1625 ; Rush. Lex. Parl. 115 ; 1 Grey, 16. 22. 92 ; 8 Grey, 21. 23. 27. 45.

Witnesses are not to be introduced but where the House has previously instituted an inquiry, 2 Hats. 102, nor then are orders for their attendance given blank.—3 Grey, 51.

When any person is examined before a committee, or at the bar of the House, any member wishing to ask the person a question, must address it to the Speaker or chairman, who repeats the question to the person, or says to him, "You hear the question, answer it." But if the propriety of the question be objected to, the Speaker directs the witness, counsel, and parties to withdraw ; for no question can be moved, or put, or debated, while they are there.—2 Hats. 108. Sometimes the questions are previously settled in writing before the witness enters.—2 Hats. 106, 107 ; 8 Grey, 64. The questions asked must be entered in the journals.—3 Grey, 81. But the testimony given in answer before the House is never written down ; but before a committee it must be, for the information of the House, who are not present to hear it.—7 Grey, 52. 334.

If either House have occasion for the presence of a person in custody of the other, they ask the other their leave that he may be brought up to them in custody.—3 Hats. 52.

A member, in his place, gives information to the House of what he knows of any matter under hearing at the bar.—Jour. H. of C. Jan. 22, 1744, '45.

Either House may request, but not command, the attendance of a member of the other. They are to make the request by message to the other House, and to express clearly the purpose of attendance, that no improper subject of examination may be tendered to him. The House then gives leave to the member to attend, if he choose it ; waiting first to know from the member himself whether he chooses to attend, till which they do not take the message into consideration. But when the Peers are sitting as a court of Criminal Judicature, they may order attendance ; unless where it be a case of impeachment by the Commons. There it is to be a request.—3 Hats. 17 ; 9 Grey, 306. 406 ; 10 Grey, 133.

Counsel are to be heard only on private, not on public bills ; and on such points of law only as the House shall direct.—19 Grey, 61.

SECTION XIV.

ARRANGEMENT OF BUSINESS.

THE Speaker is not precisely bound to any rules as to what bills or other matter shall be first taken up, but is left to his own discretion, unless the House on a question decide to take up a particular subject.—Hakev, 136.

A settled order of business is, however, necessary for the government of the presiding person, and to restrain individual members from calling up favorite measures, or matters under their special patronage, out of their just turn. It is useful also for directing the discretion of the House, when they are moved to take up a particular matter, to the prejudice of others having a priority of right to their attention in the general order of business.

In Senate the bills and other papers which are in possession of the House, and in a state to be acted upon, are arranged every morning, and brought on in the following order :

1. Bills ready for a second reading are read, that they may be referred to committees, and so be put under way. But if, on their being read, no motion is made for commitment, they are then laid on the table in the general file, to be taken up in their just turn.
2. After twelve o'clock, bills ready for it are put on their passage.
3. Reports in possession of the House which offer grounds for a bill, are to be taken up, that the bill may be ordered in.
4. Bills or other matters before the House, and unfinished on the preceding day, whether taken up in turn, or on special order, are entitled to be resumed and passed on through their present stage.
5. These matters being despatched, for preparing and expediting business, the general file of bills and other papers is then taken up, and each article of it is brought on according to its seniority, reckoned by the date of its first introduction to the House. Reports on bills belong to the dates of their bills.

[The arrangement of the business of the Senate is now as follows :

1. Motions previously submitted.
2. Reports of committees previously made.
3. Bills from the House of Representatives, and those introduced on leave, which have been read the first time, are read the second time ; and if not referred to a committee, are considered in committee of the whole, and proceeded with as in other cases.
4. After twelve o'clock, engrossed bills of the Senate, and bills of the House of Representatives, on the third reading are put on their passage.
5. If the above are finished before one o'clock, the general file of bills, consisting of those reported from committees on the second reading, and those reported from committees after having been referred, are taken up in the order in which they were reported to the Senate by the respective committees.
6. At one o'clock, if no business be pending, or if no motion be made to proceed to other business, the special orders are called, at the head of which stands the unfinished business of the preceding day.]—Vide Rules H. R. 19 to 27 inclusive.

In this way we do not waste our time in debating what shall be taken up ; we do one thing at a time, follow up a subject while it is fresh, and till it is done with ; clear the House of business, gradatim as it is brought on, and prevent, to a certain degree, its immense accumulation towards the close of the session.

Arrangement, however, can only take hold of matters in possession of the House. New matter may be moved at any time, when no question is before the House. Such are, original motions, and reports on bills. Such are, bills from the other House, which are received at all times, and receive their first reading as soon as the question then before the House is disposed of; and bills brought in on leave, which are read first whenever presented. So, messages from the other House respecting amendments to bills, are taken up as soon as the House is clear of a question, unless they require to be printed for better consideration. Orders of the day may be called for, even when another question is before the House.

SECTION XV.

ORDER.

EACH House may determine the rules of its proceedings; punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.—Const. 1. 5.

In Parliament, "instances make order," per Speaker Onslow, 2 Hats. 144; but what is done only by one Parliament, cannot be called custom of Parliament: by Prynne, 1 Grey, 52.

SECTION XVI.

ORDER RESPECTING PAPERS.

The Clerk is to let no journals, records, accounts, or papers, to be taken from the table, or out of his custody.—2 Hats. 193, 194.

Mr. Prynne having, at a committee of the whole, amended a mistake in a bill, without order or knowledge of the committee, was reprimanded.—1 Chand. 77.

A bill being missing, the House resolved, that a protestation should be made and subscribed by the members, "before Almighty God and this honorable House, that neither myself nor any other, to my knowledge, have taken away or do at this present conceal a bill entitled," &c.—5 Grey, 202.

After a bill is engrossed it is put into the Speaker's hands, and he is not to let any one have it to look into.—Town. col. 209.

SECTION XVII.

ORDER IN DEBATE.

WHEN the Speaker is seated in his chair, every member is to sit in his place.—Scob. 6; 3 Grey, 403.

When any member means to speak, he is to stand up in his place, uncovered, and to address himself, not to the House, or any particular member, but to the Speaker, who calls him by his name, that the House may take notice who it is that speaks.—Scob. 6; D'Ewes, 487, col. 1; 2 Hats. 77; 4 Grey, 66; 8 Grey, 108. But members who are indisposed may be indulged to speak sitting.—3 Hats. 75, 77; 1 Grey, 195.

In Senate, every member, when he speaks, shall address the chair, standing in his place; and when he has finished shall sit down.—Rule 3.

When any member is about to speak in debate, or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise from his seat, and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker," and shall confine himself to the question under debate, and avoid personality.—Rule H. R. 28.

When a member stands up to speak, no question is to be put; but he is to be heard, unless the House overrule.—4 Grey, 390; 5 Grey, 6. 143.

If two or more rise to speak nearly together, the Speaker determines who was first up, and calls him by name; whereupon he proceeds, unless he voluntarily sits down, and gives way to the other. But sometimes the House does not acquiesce in the Speaker's decision; in which case, the question is put, "which member was first up?"—2 Hats. 76; Scob. 7; D'Ewes, 434, col. 1, 2.

In the Senate of the United States, the President's decision is without appeal.—Their rule is in these words:—When two members rise at the same time, the President shall name the person to speak; but in all cases, the member who shall first rise and address the chair, shall speak first.—Rule 5.

No man can speak more than once to the same bill, on the same day; or even on another day, if the debate be adjourned. But if it be read more than once, in the same day, he may speak once at every reading.—Co. 12. 116; Hakew. 148; Scob. 58; 2 Hats. 75. Even a change of opinion does not give a right to be heard a second time.—Smyth. Comw. L. 2. c. 3; Arcan. Parl. 17.

The corresponding rule of the Senate is in these words:—No member shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, without leave of the Senate.—Rule 4.

No member shall speak more than once to the same question, without leave of the House, unless he be the mover, proposer, or introducer of the matter pending; in which case he shall be permitted to speak in reply, but not until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken.—Rule H. R. 32.

But he may be permitted to speak again to clear a matter of fact.—3 Grey, 357. 416. Or merely to explain himself, 3 Hats. 73, in some material part of his speech, ib. 75; or to the manner or words of the question, keeping himself to that only, and not travelling into the merits of it, Memorials in Hakew. 29; or to the orders of the House, if they be transgressed, keeping within that line, and falling into the matter itself.—Mem. Hakew. 30, 31.

But if the Speaker rises to speak, the member standing up ought to sit down that he may be first heard.—Town. col. 205; Hale. Parl. 133; Mem. in Hakew. 30, 31. Nevertheless, though the Speaker may of right speak to matters of order, and be first heard, he is restrained from speaking on any other subject, except where the House have occasion for facts within his knowledge; then he may, with their leave, state the matter of fact.—3 Grey, 38.

No one is to speak impertinently or beside the question, superfluously or tediously.—Scob. 31. 33; 2 Hats. 166. 168; Hale. Parl. 133.

No person is to use indecent language against the proceedings of the House, no prior determination of which is to be reflected on any member, unless he means to conclude with a motion to rescind it.—2 Hats. 169, 170; Rushw. p. 3, v. 1. fol. 42. But while a proposition is under consideration, is still in fieri, though it has even been reported by a committee, reflections on it are no reflections on the House.—9 Grey, 308.

No person, in speaking, is to mention a member then present by his name; but to describe him by his seat in the House, or who spoke last or on the other side of the question, &c.—Mem. in Hawk.—3 Smyth's Comw. L. 2. c. 3; nor to digress from the matter to fall upon the person.—Scob. 31; Hale. Parl. 133; 2 Hats. 166, by speaking, reviling, nipping, or unmannerly words against a particular member.—Smyth's Comw. L. 2. c. 3. The consequence of a measure may be reprobated in strong terms; but to arraign the motives of those who propose or advocate it, is a personality, and against order. Qui digreditur a materia ad personam, Mr. Speaker ought to suppress.—Ord. Com. 1604, Apr. 19.

When a member shall be called to order by the President or a Senator, he shall sit down; and every question out of order shall be decided by the President, without debate, subject to an appeal to the Senate; and the President may call for the sense of the Senate on any question of order.—Rule 6.

While the Speaker is putting any question, or addressing the House, none shall walk out of or across the House; nor in such case, or when a member is speaking, shall entertain private discourse; nor, while a member is speaking, shall pass between him and the chair. Every member shall remain uncovered during the session of the House. No member or other person shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while the yeas and noes are calling, or ballots are counting.—Rule H. R. 34.

No one is to disturb another in his speech, by hissing, coughing, spitting, 6 Grey, 332; Scob. 8; D'Ewes, 332, col. 1; nor stand up to interrupt him, Town. col. 205; Mem. in Hawk. 31; nor to pass between the Speaker and the speaking member; nor to go across the house, Scob. 6; or to walk up and down it; or to take books or papers from the table, or write there.—2 Hats. 171.

Nevertheless, if a member finds it is not the inclination of the House to hear him, and that, by conversation or any other noise, they endeavour to drown his voice, it is the most prudent way to submit to the pleasure of the House, and sit down; for it scarcely ever happens that they are guilty of this piece of ill manners without sufficient reason, or inattentive to a member who says any thing worth their hearing.—2 Hats. 77, 78.

If repeated calls do not produce order, the Speaker may call by his name any member obstinately persisting in irregularity; whereupon the House may require the member to withdraw. He is then to be heard in exculpation, and to withdraw. Then the Speaker states the offence committed, and the House considers the degree of punishment they will inflict.—2 Hats. 169, 7. 8. 172.

For instances of assaults and affrays in the House of Commons, and the proceedings thereon, see 1 Pet. Misc. 82; 3 Grey, 128; 4 Grey, 328; 5 Grey, 38; 26 Grey, 204; 10 Grey, 8. Whenever warm words or an assault have passed between the members, the House, for the protection of their members, requires them to declare in their places not to prosecute any quarrel, 3 Grey, 128. 293;

5 Grey, 289; or orders them to attend the Speaker, who is to accommodate their differences, and to report to the House, 3 Grey, 419; and they are put under restraint, if they refuse, or until they do. 9 Grey, 234. 312.

Disorderly words are not to be noticed till the member has finished his speech.—5 Grey, 356; 6 Grey, 60. Then the person objecting to them, and desiring them to be taken down by the clerk at the table, must repeat them. The Speaker then may direct the clerk to take them down in his minutes. But if he thinks them not disorderly, he delays the direction. If the call becomes pretty general, he orders the clerk to take them down, as stated by the objecting member. They are then part of his minutes, and when read to the offending member, he may deny they were his words, and the House must then decide by a question, whether they are his words or not. Then the member may justify them, or explain the sense in which he used them, or apologize. If the House is satisfied, no further proceeding is necessary. But if two members still insist to take the sense of the House, the member must withdraw before that question is stated, and then the sense of the House is to be taken.—2 Hats. 199; 4 Grey, 170; 6 Grey, 59. When any member has spoken, or other business intervened, after offensive words spoken, they cannot be taken notice of for censure. And this is for the common security of all, and to prevent mistakes, which must happen, if words are not taken down immediately. Formerly, they might be taken down at any time the same day. 2 Hats. 196; Mem. in Hakew. 71; 3 Grey, 48; 9 Grey, 514.

Disorderly words spoken in a committee, must be written down as in the House; but the committee can only report them to the House for animadversion.—6 Grey, 46.

The rule of the Senate says, if a member be called to order for words spoken, the exceptionable words shall be immediately taken down in writing, that the President may be better enabled to judge.—Rule 7.

In Parliament, to speak irreverently or seditiously against the King, is against order.—Smyth's Comw. L. 2. c. 3; 2 Hats. 170.

It is a breach of order to notice what has been said on the same subject in the other House, or the particular votes or majorities on it there; because the opinion of each House should be left to its own independency, not to be influenced by the proceedings of the other; and the quoting them might beget reflections leading to a misunderstanding between the two Houses.—8 Grey, 22.

Neither House can exercise any authority over a member or officer of the other, but should complain to the House of which he is, and leave the punishment to them. Where the complaint is of words disrespectfully spoken by a member of another House, it is difficult to obtain punishment, because of the rules supposed necessary to be observed (as to the immediate noting down of words) for the security of members. Therefore it is the duty of the House, and more particularly of the Speaker, to interfere immediately, and not to permit expressions to go unnoticed, which may give a ground of complaint to the other House, and introduce proceedings and mutual accusations between the two Houses, which can hardly be terminated without difficulty and disorder.—3 Hats. 51.

No member may be present when a bill, or any business concerning himself is debating; nor is any member to speak to the merits of it till he withdraws.—2 Hats. 219. The rule is, that if a charge against a member arise out of a report of a committee, or examination of witnesses in the house, as the member knows from that to what points he is to direct his exculpation, he may be heard to those points, before any question is moved or stated against him. He is then to be heard, and withdraw before any question is moved. But if the question itself is the charge, as for breach of order, or matter arising in debate, there the matter must be stated, that is, the question must be moved, himself heard, and then to withdraw.—2 Hats. 121, 122.

Where the private interest of a member are concerned in a bill or question, he is to withdraw. And where such an interest has appeared, his voice has been disallowed, even after a division. In a case so contrary not only to the laws of decency, but to the fundamental principles of the social compact, which denies to any man to be a judge in his own cause, it is for the honour of the House that this rule of immemorial observance should be strictly adhered to.—2 Hats. 119, 121; 6 Grey, 368.

No man is to come into the House with his head covered, nor to remove from one place to the other with his hat on, nor is to put on his hat in coming in, or removing, until he be sit down in his place.—Scob. 6.

A question of order may be adjourned to give time to look into precedents.—2 Hats. 118.

In the Senate of the United States, every question of order is to be decided by the President, without debate; but if there be a doubt in his mind, he may call for the sense of the Senate.—Rule 6

If any member, in speaking, or otherwise, transgress the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call to order; in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the House shall, if appealed to, decide on the case, but without debate; if there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to. If the decision be in favour of the member called to order, he shall be at liberty to proceed; if otherwise, he shall not be permitted to proceed without leave of the House; and, if the case require it, he shall be liable to the censure of the House.—Rules H. R. 21.

In Parliament, all decisions of the Speaker may be controlled by the House.—3 Grey, 319.

SECTION XVIII.

ORDERS OF THE HOUSE.

Of right, the door of the House ought not to be shut, but to be kept by porters, or sergeants-at-arms, assigned for that purpose.—Mod. ten. Parl. 23.

By the rule of the Senate, on motion made and seconded to shut the doors of the Senate, on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of a member require secrecy, the President shall direct the Gallery to be cleared, and during the discussion of such motion, the door shall remain shut.—Rule 18.

No motion shall be deemed in order, to admit any person or persons whatever within the doors of the Senate-chamber, to present any petition, memorial, or address, or to hear any such read.—Rule 19.

The only case where a member has a right to insist on any thing, is where he calls for the execution of a subsisting order of the House. Here, there having been already a resolution, any member has a right to insist that the Speaker, or any other whose duty it is, shall carry it into execution; and no debate or delay can be had on it. Thus any member has a right to have the House or gallery cleared of strangers, an order existing for that purpose; or to have the House told when there is not a quorum present.—2 Hats. 87. 129. How far an order of the House is binding, see Hakew. 392.

But where an order is made that any particular matter be taken up on a particular day, there a question is to be put when it is called for, Whether the House will now proceed to that matter? Where orders of the day are on important or interesting matter, they ought not to be proceeded on till an hour at which the House is usually full—(which in Senate is at noon.)

Orders of the day may be discharged at any time, and a new one made for a different day.—3 Grey, 48. 313.

When a session is drawing to a close, and the important bills are all brought in, the House, in order to prevent interruption by further unimportant bills, sometimes come to a resolution, that no new bill be brought in, except it be sent from the other House.—3 Grey, 156.

All orders of the House determine with the session; and one taken under such an order, may, after the session is ended, be discharged on a Habeas Corpus.—Raym. 120; Jacob's L. D. by Ruffhead; Parliament, 1 Lev. 165, Pritchard's case.

When the Constitution authorizes each House to determine the rules of its proceedings, it must mean in those cases, legislative, executive, or judiciary, submitted to them by the Constitution, or in something relating to these, and necessary towards their execution. But orders and resolutions are sometimes entered in the journals, having no relation to these, such as acceptances of invitations to attend orations, to take part in processions, &c. These must be understood to be merely conventional among those who are willing to participate in the ceremony, and are therefore, perhaps, improperly placed among the records of the House.

SECTION XIX.

PETITIONS.

A PETITION prays something. A remonstrance has no prayer.—1 Grey, 58. Petitions must be subscribed by the petitioners, Scob. 87; L. Parl., c. 22; 9 Grey, 362, unless they are attending, 1 Grey, 401, or unable to sign, and averred by a member, 3 Grey, 418. But a petition not subscribed, but which the member presenting it affirmed to be all in the handwriting of the petitioner, and his name written in the beginning, was, on the question, (March 14, 1800,) received by the Senate. The averment of a member, or somebody without doors, that they know the handwriting of the petitioners, is necessary, if it be questioned.—6 Grey, 36. It must be presented by a member, not by the petitioners, and must be opened by him, holding it in his hand, 10 Grey, 57.

Before any petition or memorial, addressed to the Senate, shall be received and read at the table, whether the same shall be introduced by the President or a member, a brief statement of the contents of the petition or memorial shall verbally be made by the introducer.—Rule 24.

Petitions, memorials, and other papers, addressed to the House, shall be presented by the Speaker, or by a member in his place; a brief statement of the contents thereof shall be made verbally by the introducer; they shall not be debated on the day of their being presented, nor on any day assigned by the House for the receipt of petitions after the first thirty days of the session, unless where the House shall direct otherwise, but shall be on the table, to be taken up in the order in which they were presented.—Rule H. R. 55.

Regularly a motion for receiving it must be made and seconded, and a question put, Whether it shall be received? But a cry from the House of "Received," or even its silence, dispenses with the formality of this question: it is then to be read at the table, and disposed of.

SECTION XX.

MOTIONS.

WHEN a motion has been made, it is not to be put to the question, or debated, until it is seconded.—Scob. 21.

The Senate say, No motion shall be debated until the same shall be seconded.—Rule 9.

It is then, and not till then, in possession of the House. It is to be put into writing, if the House or Speaker require it, and must be read to the House by the Speaker, as often as any member desires it for his information.—2 Hats. 82.

The rule of the Senate is, When a motion shall be made and seconded, it shall be reduced to writing, if desired by the President or any member, delivered in at the table, and read by the President, before the same shall be debated.—Rule 10.

When a motion is made and seconded, it shall be stated by the Speaker; or, being in writing, it shall be handed to the chair, and read aloud by the clerk before debated.—Rules H. R. 38.

Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if the Speaker or any member desire it.—Rules H. R. 39.

It might be asked, whether a motion for adjournment, or for the orders of the day, can be made by one member while another is speaking? It cannot. When two members offer to speak, he who rose first is to be heard, and it is a breach of order in another to interrupt him, unless by calling him to order if he departs from it. And the question of order being decided, he is still to be heard through. A call for adjournment, or for the order of the day, or for the question, by gentlemen from their seats, is not a motion. No motion can be made without arising and addressing the chair. Such calls are themselves breaches of order, which, though the member who has risen may respect as an expression of impatience of the House, against farther debates, yet, if he chooses, he has a right to go on.

SECTION XXI.

RESOLUTIONS.

When the House commands, it is by an "order." But facts, principles, their own opinions, and purposes, are expressed in the form of resolutions.

A resolution for an allowance of money to the clerks being moved, it was objected to as not in order, and so ruled by the chair. But an appeal to the Senate, (i. e. a call for their sense by the President, on account of doubt in his mind, according to Rule 16, the decision was overruled.)—Jour. Sen. June 1, 1796. I presume the doubt was, whether an allowance of money could be made otherwise than by bill.

SECTION XXII.

BILLS.

EVERY bill shall receive three readings previous to its being passed; and the President shall give notice at each, whether it be the first, second, or third; which reading shall be on three different days, unless the Senate unanimously direct otherwise.—Rule 26.

Every bill shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by motion for leave. In the latter case, at least one day's notice shall be given of the motion; and the motion shall be made, and the bill introduced, if leave is given, when resolutions are called for: such motion, or the bill when introduced, may be committed.—Rules H. R. 108.

SECTION XXIII.

BILLS, LEAVE TO BRING IN.

ONE day's notice, at least, shall be given of an intended motion for leave to bring in a bill.—Rule 25.

When a member desires to bring a bill on any subject, he states to the House, in general terms, the causes for doing it, and concludes by moving for leave to bring in a bill, entitled, &c. Leave being given, on the question, a committee is appointed to prepare and bring in the bill. The mover and seconder are always appointed on this committee, and one or more in addition.—Hakev. 132; Scob. 40.

It is to be presented fairly written, without any erasure or interlineation; or the Speaker may refuse it.—Scob. 31; 1 Grey, 82. 84.

SECTION XXIV.

BILLS, FIRST READING.

WHEN a bill is first presented, the clerk reads it at the table, and hands it to the Speaker, who, rising, states to the House the title of the bill; that this is the first time of reading it; and the question will be, Whether it shall be read a second time? Then sitting down, to give an opening for objections; if none be made, he rises again, and puts the question, Whether it shall be read a second time?—Hakew. 137. 141. A bill cannot be amended at the first reading.—6 Grey, 286; nor is it usual for it to be opposed then, but it may be done and rejected.—D'Ewes, 335, col. 1; 3 Hats. 198. (Vide Rules H. R. 109.)

SECTION XXV.

BILLS, SECOND READING.

THE second reading must regularly be on another day.—Hakew. 143. It is done by the clerk at the table, who then hands it to the Speaker. The Speaker, rising, states to the House the title of the bill, that this is the second time of reading it, and that the question will be, Whether it shall be committed or engrossed and read a third time? But if the bill came from the other House, as it always comes engrossed, he states that the question will be, Whether it shall be read a third time? And before he has so reported the state of the bill, no one is to speak to it.—Hakew. 143. 146.

In the Senate of the United States, the President reports the title of the bill, that this is the second time of reading it, that it is now to be considered as in a committee of the whole, and the question will be, Whether it shall be read a third time? or, that it may be referred to a special committee.—Vide Rule 27.

SECTION XXVI.

BILLS, COMMITMENT.

IF, on motion and question, it be decided that the bill shall be committed, it may then be moved to be referred to a committee of the whole House, or to a special committee. If the latter, the Speaker proceeds to name the committee. Any member also may name a single person, and the clerk is to write him down as of the committee. But the House have a controlling power over the names and number, if a question be moved against any one; and may in any case put in and put out whom they please.

Those who take exceptions to some particulars in the bill, are to be of the committee. But none who speak directly against the body of the bill. For he that would totally destroy, would not amend it.—Hakew. 146; Town. col. 208; D'Ewes, 634, col. 2; Scob. 47; or as is said, 5 Grey, 145, the child is not to be put to a nurse that cares not for it.—6 Grey, 373. It is therefore a constant rule, “that no man is to be employed in any matter who has declared himself against it.” And when any member who is against the bill, hears himself named of its committee, he ought to ask to be excused. Thus, March 6, 1606, Mr. Hadley was, on the question being put, excused from being of a committee, declaring himself to be against the matter itself.—Scob. 48.

No bill shall be committed or amended until it shall have been twice read, after which it may be referred to a committee.—Rule 27.

The first reading of a bill shall be for information; and if opposition be made to it, the question shall be, “Shall this bill be rejected?” If no opposition be made, or if the question to reject be negatived, the bill shall go to its second reading without a question.—Rules H. R. 110.

In the appointment of the standing committees, the Senate will proceed, by ballot, severally to appoint the chairman of each committee, and then, by one ballot, the other members necessary to complete the same; and a majority of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to the choice of a chairman of a standing committee. All other committees shall be appointed by ballot, and a plurality of votes shall make a choice. When any subject or matter shall have been referred to a committee, any other subject or matter of a similar nature may, on motion, be referred to such committee.—Rule 34.

The clerk may deliver the bill to any member of the committee.—Town. col. 138. But it is usual to deliver it to him who is first named.

In some cases, the House has ordered the committee to withdraw immediately into the committee-chamber and act on, and bring back the bill, sitting the House.—Scob. 48. Vide Rules H. R. 102.

A committee meets when and where they please, if the House has not ordered time and place for them.—6 Grey, 370. But they can only act when together, and not by separate consultation and consent, nothing being the report of the committee, but what has been agreed to in committee actually assembled.

A majority of the committee constitutes a quorum for business.—Elsynge's method of passing bills, 11.

Any member of the House may be present at any select committee, but cannot vote, and must give place to all of the committee, and must sit below them.—Elsynge, 12; Scob. 49.

The committee have full power over the bill, or other paper committed to them, except that they cannot change the title or subject.—8 Grey, 228.

The paper before a committee, whether select or of the whole, may be a bill, resolutions, draught of an address, &c., and it may either originate with them, or be referred to them. In every case, the whole paper is read first by the clerk, and then by the chairman, by paragraphs, Scob. 49, pausing at the end of each paragraph, and putting questions, for amending, if proposed. In the case of resolutions on distinct subjects, originating with themselves, a question is put on each separately, as amended, or unamended, and no final question on the whole.—3 Hats. 276. But if they relate to the same subject, a question is put on the whole. If it be a bill, draught of an address, or other paper originating with them, they proceed by paragraphs, putting questions for amending, either by insertion or striking out, if proposed; but no question on agreeing to the paragraphs separately. This is reserved to the close, when a question is put on the whole for agreeing to it as amended or unamended. But if it be a paper referred to them, they proceed to put questions of amendment, if proposed, but no final question on the whole; because all parts of the paper having been adopted by the House, stand, of course, unless altered, or struck out by a vote. Even if they are opposed to the whole paper, and think it cannot be made good by amendments, they cannot reject it, but must report it back to the House without amendments, and there make their opposition.

The natural order in considering and amending any paper is, to begin at the beginning, and proceed through it by paragraphs: and this order is so strictly adhered to in Parliament, that, when a latter part has been amended, you cannot recur back and make any alteration in a former part.—2 Hats. 90. In numerous assemblies, this restraint is, doubtless, important.

But in the Senate of the United States, though in the main we consider and amend the paragraphs in their natural order, yet recurrences are indulged; and they seem, on the whole, in that small body, to produce advantages overweighing their inconveniences.

To this natural order of beginning at the beginning, there is a single exception found in Parliamentary usage. When a bill is taken up in committee, or on its second reading, they postpone the preamble, till the other parts of the bill are gone through. The reason is, that on consideration of the body of the bill, such alterations may therein be made, as may also occasion the alteration of the preamble.—Scob. 50; 7 Grey, 431.

On this head, the following case occurred in the Senate, March 6, 1800: A resolution which had no preamble, having been already amended by the House, so that a few words only of the original remained in it, a motion was made to prefix a preamble, which, having an aspect very different from the resolution, the mover intimated that he should afterwards propose a correspondent amendment in the body of the resolution. It was objected that a preamble could not be taken up till the body of the resolution is done with. But the preamble was received; because we are in fact through the body of the resolution, we have amended that as far as amendments have been offered, and indeed till little of the original is left. It is the proper time, therefore, to consider a preamble; and whether the one offered be consistent with the resolution, is for the House to determine. The mover, indeed, has intimated that he shall offer a subsequent proposition for the body of the resolution; but the House is not in possession of it; it remains in his breast, and may be withheld. The rules of the House can only operate on what is before them. The practice of the Senate, too, allows recurrences backwards and forwards for the purpose of amendments, not permitting amendments in a subsequent, to preclude those in a prior part, or e converso.

When the committee is through the whole, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report the paper to the House, with or without amendments, as the case may be.—2 Hats. 289. 292; Scob. 53; 2 Hats. 290; 8 Scob. 50.

When a vote is once passed in a committee, it cannot be altered but by the House, their votes being binding on themselves.—1607, June 4.

The committee may not erase, interline, or blot the bill itself; but must, in a paper by itself, set down the amendments, stating the words that are to be inserted or omitted, Scob. 50; and where, by reference to the page, line, and word of the bill.—Scob. 50.

SECTION XXVII.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

THE chairman of the committee, standing in his place, informs the House, that the committee, to whom was referred such a bill, have, according to order, had the same under consideration, and have directed him to report the same without any amendment, or with sundry amendments, (as the case may be,) which he is ready to do when the House pleases to receive it. And he, or any other, may move that it be now received. But the cry of "now, now," from the House, generally dispenses with the formality of a motion and question. He then reads the amendments, with the coherence in the bill, and opens the alterations, and the reasons of the committee for such amendments, until he has gone through the whole. He then delivers it at the clerk's table, where the amendments reported are read by the clerk, without the coherence; whereupon the papers lie upon the table, till the House, at his convenience, shall take up the report.—Scob. 52; Hakew. 148.

The report being made, the committee is dissolved, and can act no more without a new power.—Scob. 51. But it may be revived by a vote, and the same matter recommitted to them.—4 Grey, 361.

SECTION XXVIII.

BILL, RE-COMMITMENT.

AFTER a bill has been committed and reported, it ought not, in an ordinary course, to be recommitted. But in cases of importance, and for special reasons, it is sometimes recommitted, and usually to the same committee.—Hakew. 151. If a report be committed before agreed to in the House, what has passed in the committee is of no validity; the whole question is again before the committee, and a new resolution must be again moved, as if nothing had passed.—3 Hats. 131, note.

In Senate, January, 1800, the salvage bill was recommitted three times after the commitment.

A particular clause of a bill may be committed without the whole bill.—3 Hats. 131; or so much of a paper to one, and so much to another committee.

SECTION XXIX.

BILL, REPORT TAKEN UP.

WHEN the report of a paper, originating with a committee, is taken up by the House, they proceed exactly as in committee. Here, as in committee, when the paragraphs have, on distinct questions, been agreed to seriatim,—5 Grey, 366; 6 Grey, 368; 8 Grey, 47. 104. 360; 1 Torbuck's deb. 125; 3 Hats. 348—no question needs be put on the whole report.—5 Grey, 381.

On taking up a bill reported with amendments, the amendments only are read by the clerk. The Speaker then reads the first, and puts it to the question, and so on till the whole are adopted or rejected, before any other amendment be admitted, except it be an amendment to an amendment.—Elsynge's Mem. 23. When through the amendments of the committee, the Speaker pauses, and gives time for amendments to be proposed in the House to the body of the bill; as he does also if it has been reported without amendments; putting no question but on amendments proposed; and when through the whole he puts the question, Whether the bill shall be read the third time?

SECTION XXX.

QUASI-COMMITTEE.

IF, on the motion and question, the bill be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, then the proceedings in the Senate of the United States and in Parliament are totally different. The former shall be first stated.

The 28th rule of the Senate says, "All bills, on a second reading, shall first be considered by the Senate in the same manner as if the Senate were in a committee of the whole, before they shall be taken up and proceeded on by the Senate agreeably to the standing rules, unless otherwise ordered;" that is to say, unless ordered to be referred to a special committee. And when the Senate shall consider a treaty, bill, or resolution, as in committee of the whole, the Vice-President or President pro tempore, may call a member to fill the chair, during the time the Senate shall remain in committee of the whole; and the chairman so called, shall, during such time, have the powers of a President, pro tempore.

The proceedings of the Senate, as in a committee of the whole, or in quasi-committee, is precisely as in a real committee of the whole, taking no questions but on amendments. When through the whole, they consider the quasi-committee as risen, the House resumed, without any motion, question, or resolution to that effect, and the President reports, that "the House, acting as in committee of the whole, have had under consideration the bill, entitled, &c., and have made sundry amendments which he will now report to the House." The bill is then before them, as it would have been if reported from a committee, and questions are regularly to be put again on every amendment; which being gone through, the President pauses to give time to the House to propose amendments to the body of the bill, and when through, puts the question, whether it shall be read a third time?

After progress in amending a bill in quasi-committee, a motion may be made to refer it to a special committee. If the motion prevails, it is equivalent in effect to the several votes that the committee rise, the House resume itself, discharge the committee of the whole, and refer the bill to a special committee. In that case, the amendments already made fall. But if the motion fails, the quasi-committee stands in statu quo.

How far does this 28th rule subject the House, when in quasi-committee, to the laws which regulate the proceedings of a committee of the whole? The particulars, in which these differ from proceedings in the House, are the following:—1. In a committee, every member may speak as often as he pleases.—2. The votes of a committee may be rejected or altered when reported to the House.—3. A committee, even of the whole, cannot refer any matter to another committee.—4. In a committee no previous question can be taken: the only means to avoid an improper discussion, is to move that the committee rise: and if it be apprehended that the same discussion will be attempted on returning into committee, the House can discharge them, and proceed itself on the business, keeping down the improper discussion by the previous question.—5. A committee cannot punish a breach of order, in the House, or in the gallery.—9 Grey, 113; it can only rise and report it to the House, who may proceed to punish.

The 1st and 2d of these peculiarities attach to the quasi-committee of the Senate as every day's practice proves; and seem to be the only ones to which the 28th rule meant to subject them; for it continues to be a House, and therefore, though it acts in some respects as a committee, in others it preserves its character as a House.—Thus, 3d. It is in the daily habit of referring its business to a special committee.—4th. It admits the previous question; if it did not, it would have no means of preventing an improper discussion; not being able, as the committee is, to avoid it by returning into the House; for the moment it would resume the same subject there, the 20th rule declares it again a quasi-committee.—5th. It would doubtless exercise its powers as a House on any breach of order.—6th. It takes a question by Yea and Nay, as the House does.—7th. It receives messages from the President and the other House.—8th. In the midst of a debate, it receives a motion to adjourn, and adjourns as a House, not as a committee.

SECTION XXXI.

BILL, SECOND READING IN THE HOUSE.

IN Parliament, after the bill has been read a second time, if, on the motion and question, it be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, the Speaker reads it by paragraphs, pausing between each, but putting no questions but on amendments proposed; and when through the whole, he puts the question, Whether it shall be read a third time? if it came from the other House. Or, if originating with themselves, Whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? The Speaker reads sitting, but rises to put a question. The clerk stands while he reads:

But the Senate of the United States is so much in the habit of making many and material amendments at the third reading, that it has become the practice not to engross a bill till it has passed. An irregular and dangerous practice; because, in this way, the paper which passed the Senate is not that which goes to the other House; and that which goes to the other House as the act of the Senate, has never been seen in Senate. In reducing numerous, difficult, and illegible amendments into the text, the secretary may, with the most innocent intentions, commit errors, which can never again be corrected.*

The bill being now as perfect as its friends can make it, this is the proper stage for those, fundamentally opposed, to make their first attack. All attempts at other periods are with disjointed efforts; because many who do not expect to be in favour of the bill, ultimately, are willing to let it go on to its perfect state, to take time to examine it themselves, and to hear what can be said for it; knowing that, after all, they have sufficient opportunities of giving it their veto. Its two last stages, therefore, are reserved for this, that is to say, on the question, Whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? and, lastly, Whether it shall pass? The first of these is usually the most interesting contest; because then the whole subject is new and engaging, and the minds of the members having not yet been declared by any trying vote, the issue is the more doubtful. In this stage, therefore, is the main trial of strength between its friends and opponents; and it behooves every one to make up his mind decisively for this question, or he loses the main battle; and accident and management may, and often do, prevent a successful rallying on the next and last question, Whether it shall pass?

When the bill is engrossed, the title is to be endorsed on the back, and not within the bill.—Hakew. 250.

SECTION XXXII.

READING PAPERS.

Where papers are laid before the House, or, referred to a committee, every member has a right to have them once read at the table, before he can be compelled to vote on them. But it is a great, though common error, to suppose that he has a right, toties quoties, to have acts, journals, accounts, or papers, on the table, read independently of the will of the House. The delay and interruption which this might be made to produce, evince the impossibility of the existence of such a right. There is indeed so manifest a propriety of permitting every member to have as much information as possible on every question on which he is to vote, that when he desires the reading, if it be seen that it is really for information, and not for delay, the Speaker directs it to be read without putting a question, if no one objects. But if objected to, a question must be put.—2 Hats. 117, 118.

*This difficulty has since been obviated by the following Rule of the Senate:

“The final question upon the second reading of every bill, resolution, constitutional amendment, or motion, originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be, Whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? and no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill, resolution, amendment, or motion, unless by unanimous consent of the members present: but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of any such bill, resolution, constitutional amendment, or motion, to move its commitment; and should such commitment take place, and any amendment be reported by the committee, the said bill, resolution, constitutional amendment, or motion, shall be again read a second time, and considered as in committee of the whole, and then the aforesaid question shall be again put.”—Rule 29.

It is equally an error to suppose, that any member has a right, without a question put, to lay a book or paper on the table, and have it read, on suggesting that it contains matter infringing on the privileges of the House.—2 Hats. 117, 118.

For the same reason, a member has not a right to read a paper in his place, if it be objected to, without leave of the House. But this rigor is never exercised but where there is an intentional or gross abuse of the time and patience of the House.

A member has not a right even to read his own speech, committed to writing, without leave. This also is to prevent an abuse of time; and therefore is not refused, but where that is intended.—2 Grey, 227.

A report of a committee of the Senate on a bill from the House of Representatives, being under consideration, on motion that the report of the committee of the House of Representatives on the same bill be read in the Senate, it passed in the negative.—Feb. 28, 1793.

Formerly, when papers were referred to a committee, they used to be first read, but of late, only the titles; unless a member insists they shall be read, and then nobody can oppose it.—2 Hats. 117.

SECTION XXXIII.

PRIVILEGED QUESTIONS.

WHEN a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to amend; which several motions shall have precedence in the order they stand arranged, and the motion for adjournment shall always be in order, and be decided without debate.—Rule 11.

When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged: and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill or proposition. A motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend, and if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection.—Rules H. R. 41.

It is no possession of a bill, unless it be delivered to the clerk to be read, or the Speaker reads the title.—Lex. Parl. 274; Elsynge, Mem. 85; Ord. House Commons, 64.

It is a general rule, that the question first moved and seconded shall be first put.—Scob. 28, 22; 2 Hats. 81. But this rule gives way to what may be called privileged questions; and the privileged questions are of different grades among themselves.

A motion to adjourn, simply takes place of all others; for otherwise the House might be kept sitting against its will, and indefinitely. Yet this motion cannot be received after another question is actually put, and while the House is engaged in voting.

Orders of the day take place of all other questions, except for adjournment. This is to say, the question which is the subject of an order, is made a privileged one, pro hac vice. The order is a repeal of the general rule as to this special case. When any member moves, therefore, for the orders of the day to be read, no further debate is permitted on the question which was before the House; for if the debate might proceed, it might continue through the day, and defeat the order. This motion, to entitle it to precedence, must be for the orders generally, and not for any particular one; and if it be carried on the question, "Whether the House will now proceed to the orders of the day?" they must be read and proceeded on in the course in which they stand.—2. Hats. 83. For priority of order gives priority of right, which cannot be taken away but by another special order.

After these there are other privileged questions, which will require considerable explanation.

It is proper that every Parliamentary assembly should have certain forms of question so adapted as to enable them fitly to dispose of every proposition which can be made to them. Such are, 1. The previous question: 2. To postpone indefinitely: 3. To adjourn to a definite day: 4. To lie on the table: 5. To commit: 6. To amend. The proper occasion for each of these questions should be understood.

1. When a proposition is moved, which it is useless or inexpedient now to express or discuss, the previous question has been introduced for suppressing, for that time, the motion and its discussion.—3 Hats. 188, 189.

2. But as the previous question gets rid of it only for that day, and the same proposition may recur the next day, if they wish to suppress it for the whole of that session, they postpone it indefinitely.—3 Hats. 183. This quashes the proposition for that session, as an indefinite adjournment is a dissolution, or the continuance of a suit sine die is a discontinuance of it.

3. When a motion is made which it will be proper to act on, but information is wanted, or something more pressing claims the present time, the question or debate is adjourned to such a day within the session as will answer the views of the House.—2 Hats, 81. And those who have spoken before, may not speak again when the adjourned debate is resumed.—2 Hats. 73. Sometimes, however, this has been abusively used, by adjourning it to a day beyond the session, to get rid of it altogether, as would be done by an indefinite postponement.

4. When the House has something else which claims its present attention, but would be willing to reserve in their power to take up a proposition whenever it shall suit them, they order it to lie on their table. It may then be called for at any time.

5. If the proposition will want more amendment and digestion than the formalities of the House will conveniently admit, they refer it to a committee.

6. But if the proposition be well digested, and may need but few and simple amendments, and especially if these be of leading consequence, they then proceed to consider and amend it themselves.

The Senate, in their practice, vary from this regular gradation of forms.—Their practice, comparatively with that of Parliament, stands thus :

For the Parliamentary,
Postmt. indefinite.
Adjournment.
Lying on the table.

The Senate uses,
—Postmt. to a day beyond the session.
—Postmt. to a day within the session.
{ Postponement indefinite.
{ Lying on the table.

In their 11th Rule, therefore, which declares, that while a question is before the Senate, no motion shall be received, unless it be for the previous question, or to postpone, commit or amend the main question, the term postponement must be understood according to their broad use of it, and not in its Parliamentary sense. Their rule then establishes as privileged questions, the previous question, postponement, commitment, and amendment.

But it may be asked, Have these questions any privilege among themselves ? or are they so equal that the common principle of the “ first moved, first put,” takes place among them ? This will need explanation. Their competitions may be as follow :

In the 1st class, where the previous question is first moved, the effect is peculiar ; for it not only prevents the after motion to postpone or commit from being put to question before it, but also from being put after it. For if the previous question be decided affirmatively, to wit, that the main question shall now be put, it would of course be against the decision to postpone or commit. And if it be decided negatively, to wit, that the main question shall not now be put, this puts the House out of possession of the main question, and consequently, there is nothing before them to postpone or commit. So that neither voting for nor against the previous question, will enable the advocates for postponing or committing to get at their object. Whether it may be amended, shall be examined hereafter.

2d Class.—If postponement be decided affirmatively, the proposition is removed from before the House, and consequently, there is no ground for the previous question, commitment, or amendment. But if decided negatively, that it shall not be postponed, the main question may then be suppressed by the previous question, or may be committed or amended.

The 3d class is subject to the same observations as the 2d.

The 4th class.—Amendment of the main question first moved, and afterwards the previous question, the question of amendment shall be first put.

Amendment and postponement competing, postponement is first put, as the equivalent proposition to adjourn the main question would be in Parliament. The reason is, that the question for amendment is not suppressed by postponing or adjourning the main question, but remains before the House whenever the main question is resumed; and it might be that the occasion for other urgent business might go by, and be lost by length of debate on the amendment, if the House had it not in their power to postpone the whole subject.

Amendment and commitment. The question for committing, though last moved, shall be first put; because in truth it facilitates and befriends the motion to amend. Scobell is express—"On a motion to amend a bill, any one may, notwithstanding, move to commit it, and the question for commitment shall be first put."—Scob. 46.

We have hitherto considered the case of two or more of the privileged questions contending for privilege between themselves, when both were moved on the original or main question; but now let us suppose one of them to be moved, not on the original primary question, but on the secondary one, e. g.

Suppose a motion to postpone, commit, or amend the main question, and that it be moved to suppress that motion by putting the previous question on it.—This is not allowed: because it would embarrass questions too much to allow them to be piled on one another several stories high; and the same result may be had in a more simple way, by deciding against the postponement, commitment, or amendment.—2 Hats. 81, 2, 3, 4.

Suppose a motion for the previous question, or commitment or amendment of the main question, and that it be then moved to postpone the motion for the previous question, or for commitment or amendment of the main question; 1. It would be absurd to postpone the previous question, commitment, or amendment, alone, and thus separate the appendage from its principal; yet it must be postponed separately from its original, if at all; because the 8th rule of the Senate says, that when a main question is before the House, no motion shall be received but to commit, amend, or pre-question the original question; which is the Parliamentary doctrine: therefore, the motion to postpone the secondary motion for the previous question, or for committing or amending, cannot be received: 2. This is a piling of questions one on another, which to avoid embarrassment, is not allowed: 3. The same result may be had more simply, by voting against the previous question, commitment or amendment.

Suppose a commitment moved, of a motion for the previous question, or to postpone, or amend.

The 1st, 2d and 3d reasons before stated, all hold good against this.

Suppose an amendment moved to a motion for the previous question? Answer: The previous question cannot be amended. Parliamentary usage, as well as the 9th Rule of the Senate, has fixed its form to be, "Shall the main question be now put?" i.e. at this instant. And as the present instant is but one, it can admit of no modification. To change it to to-morrow or any other moment, is without example and without utility. But suppose a motion to amend a motion for postponement, as to one day instead of another, or to a special instead of indefinite time. The useful character of amendment gives it a privilege of attaching itself to a secondary privileged motion. That is, we may amend a postponement of a main question. So we may amend a commitment of a main question, as by adding, for example, "with instruction to inquire," &c. In like manner, if an amendment be moved to an amendment, it is admitted. But it would not be admitted in another degree; to wit, to amend an amendment to an amendment of a main question. This would lead to too much embarrassment. The line must be drawn somewhere; and usage has drawn it after the amendment to the amendment. The same result must be sought by deciding against the amendment to the amendment, and then moving it again as it was wished to be amended. In this form it becomes only an amendment to an amendment.

When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee, and to a standing committee, the question on reference to the standing committee shall be first put.—Rule 35.

In filling a blank with a sum, the largest sum shall be first put to the question, by the 13th Rule of the Senate,* contrary to the rule of Parliament, which privileges the smallest sum and longest time.—5 Grey, 179; 2 Hats. 8, 83; 3 Hats. 132, 133. And this is considered to be not in the form of an amendment to the question; but as alternative or successive originals. In all cases of time or number, we must consider whether the larger comprehends the lesser, as in a question to what day a postponement shall be, the number of a committee, amount of a fine, term of an imprisonment, term of irredeemability of a loan, or the terminus in quem in any other case. Then the question must begin a maximo. Or whether the lesser includes the greater, as in question on the limitation of the rate of interest, on what day the session shall be closed by adjournment, on what day the next shall commence, when an act shall commence or the terminus a quo in any other case, where the question must begin a minimo. The object being not to begin at that extreme, which, and more, being within every man's wish, no one could negative it, and yet, if we should vote in the affirmative, every question for more would be precluded; but at that extreme which would unite few, and then to advance or recede till you get to a number which will unite a bare majority.—3 Grey, 376, 384, 385. "The fair question in this case is not that to which and more all will agree, whether there shall be addition to the question."—1 Grey, 365.

* In filling up blanks, the largest sum and longest time shall be first put.—Rule 13.

Another exception to the rule of priority is, when a motion has been made to strike out or agree to a paragraph. Motions to amend it are to be put to the question, before a vote is taken on striking out, or agreeing to the whole paragraph.

But there are several questions, which, being incidental to every one, will take place of every one, privileged or not; to wit, a question of order arising out of any other question, must be decided before that question.—2 Hats. 88.

A matter of privilege arising out of any question, or from a quarrel between two members, or any other cause, supersedes the consideration of the original question, and must be first disposed of.—2 Hats. 88.

Reading papers relative to the question before the House. This question must be put before the principal one.—2 Hats. 88.

Leave asked to withdraw a motion. The rule of Parliament being, that a motion made and seconded is in possession of the House, and cannot be withdrawn without leave, the very terms of the rule imply that leave may be given, and consequently, may be asked and put to the question.

SECTION XXXIV.

THE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

WHEN any question is before the House, any member may move a previous question, "Whether that question (called the main question) shall now be put?" If it pass in the affirmative, then the main question is to be put immediately, and no man may speak anything further to it, either to add or alter.—Memor. in Hakew. 28; 4 Grey, 27.

The previous question being moved and seconded, the question from the chair shall be, "Shall the main question be now put?" and if the nays prevail, the main question shall not then be put.—Rule 9.

This kind of question is understood by Mr. Hatsell to have been introduced in 1604.—2 Hats. 80. Sir Henry Vane introduced it.—2 Grey, 113, 114; 3 Grey, 384. When the question was put in this form, "Shall the main question be put?" A determination in the negative suppressed the main question during the session; but since the words "now put" are used, they exclude it for the present only. Formerly indeed, only till the present debate was over; 4 Grey, 43; but now for that day and no longer.—2 Grey, 113, 114.

Before the question, "Whether the main question shall now be put?" any person might formerly have spoken to the main question, because otherwise he would be precluded from speaking to it at all.—Mem. in Hakew. 28.

The proper occasion for the previous question is, when a subject is brought forward of a delicate nature as to high personages, &c., or the discussion of which may call forth observations, which might be of injurious consequences. Then the previous question is proposed, and, in the modern usage, the discussion of the main question is suspended, and the debate confined to the previous question. The use of it has been extended abusively to other cases; but in these, it is an embarrassing procedure: its uses would be as well answered by other more simple Parliamentary forms, and therefore it should not be favored, but restricted within as narrow limits as possible.

Whether a main question may be amended after the previous question on it has been moved and seconded?—2 Hatsell, 88, says, If the previous question has been moved and seconded, and also proposed from the chair, (by which he means, stated by the Speaker for debate,) it has been doubted whether an amendment can be admitted to the main question. He thinks it may, after the previous question moved and seconded; but not after it has been proposed from the chair.

In this case he thinks the friends to the amendment must vote that the main question be not now put; and then move their amended question, which being made new by the amendment, is no longer the same which has been just suppressed, and therefore may be proposed as a new one. But this proceeding certainly endangers the main question, by dividing its friends, some of whom may choose it unamended, rather than lose it altogether; while others of them may vote, as Hatsell advises, that the main question be not now put, with a view to move it again in an amended form. The enemies of the main question by this manœuvre to the previous question, get the enemies to the amendment added to them on the first vote, and throw the friends of the main question under the embarrassment of rallying again as they can. To support his opinion, too, he makes the deciding circumstance, whether an amendment may or may not be made, to be, that the previous question has been proposed from the chair. But as the rule is, that the House is in possession of a question as soon as it is moved and seconded, it cannot be more than possessed of it by its being also proposed from the chair. It may be said, indeed, that the object of the previous question being to get rid of a question, which it is not expedient should be discussed, this object may be defeated by moving to amend, and, in the discussion of that motion, involving the subject of the main question. But so may the object of the previous question be defeated by moving the amended question. as Mr. Hatsell proposes, after the decision against putting the original question. He acknowledges, too, that the practice has been to admit previous amendment, and only cites a few late instances to the contrary. On the whole, I should think it best to decide it ab inconvenienti; to wit, Which is most inconvenient, to put it in the power of one side of the House to defeat a proposition by hastily moving the previous question, and thus forcing the main question to be put amended? or to put it in the power of the other side to force on, incidentally at least, a discussion which would be better avoided? Perhaps the last is the least inconvenience; inasmuch as the Speaker, by confining the discussion rigorously to the amendment only, may prevent their going into the main question; and inasmuch also, as so great a proportion of the cases, in which the previous question is called for, are fair and proper subjects of public discussion, and ought not to be obstructed by a formality introduced for questions of a peculiar character.

SECTION XXXV.

AMENDMENTS.

ON an amendment being moved, a member who has spoken to the main question may speak again to the amendment.—Scob. 23.

If an amendment be proposed inconsistent with one already agreed to, it is a fit ground for its rejection by the House; but not within the competence of the Speaker to suppress, as if it were against order. For, were he permitted to draw questions of consistence within the vortex of order, he might usurp a negative on important modifications, and suppress instead of subserving the legislative will.

Amendments may be made so as totally to alter the nature of the proposition; and it is a way of getting rid of a proposition, by making it bear a sense different from what was intended by the movers, so that they voted against it themselves.—2 Hats. 79; 4. 82. 84. A new bill may be ingrafted, by way of amendment, on the words "Be it enacted," &c.—1 Grey, 190, 192.

If it be proposed to amend by leaving out certain words, it may be moved as an amendment to this amendment to leave out a part of the words of the amendment, which is equivalent to leaving them in the bill.—2 Hats. 80, 9. The Parliamentary question is always, Whether the words shall stand part of the bill?

When it is proposed to amend by inserting a paragraph, or part of one, the friends of the paragraph may make it as perfect as they can, by amendments, before the question is put for inserting it. If it be received, it cannot be amended afterwards, in the same stage, because the House has, on a vote, agreed to it in that form. In like manner, if it is proposed to amend by striking out a paragraph, the friends of the paragraph are first to make it as perfect as they can by amendments, before the question is put for striking it out. If, on the question, it be retained, it cannot be amended afterwards: because a vote against striking out is equivalent to a vote agreeing to it in that form.

When it is moved to amend, by striking out certain words and inserting others, the manner of stating the question is, first to read the whole passage to be amended, as it stands at present; then the words proposed to be struck out; next those to be inserted; and lastly, the whole passage, as it will be when amended. And the question, if desired, is then to be divided, and put first on striking out. If carried, it is next on inserting the words proposed. If that be lost, it may be moved to insert others.—2 Hats. 80, 7.

A motion is made to amend by striking out certain words, and inserting others in their place, which is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words, and to insert others of a tenor entirely different from those first proposed. It is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words and insert nothing, which is agreed to. All this is admissible; because to strike out and in sert A, is one proposition. To strike out and insert B. is a different proposition. And to strike out and insert nothing is still different. And the rejection of one proposition does not preclude the offering a different one. Nor would it change the case were the first motion divided by putting the question first on striking out, and that negatived. For as putting the whole motion to the question at once would not have precluded, the putting the half of it cannot do it.*

But if it had been carried affirmatively to strike out the words and to insert A., it could not afterwards be permitted to strike out A. and insert B. The mover of B. should have notified, while the insertion of A. was under debate, that he would move to insert B. In which case, those who preferred it would join in rejecting A.

After A. is inserted, however, it may be moved to strike out a portion of the original paragraph, comprehending A., provided the coherence to be struck out to be so substantial as to make this effectively a different proposition. For then it is resolved into the common case of striking out a paragraph after amending it. Nor does any thing forbid a new insertion, instead of A. and its coherence.

In Senate, January 25, 1798, a motion to postpone, until the second Tuesday in February, some amendments proposed to the Constitution. The words, "until the second Tuesday in February," were struck out by way of amendment. Then it was moved to add, "until the first day of June." Objected, that it was not in order, as the question should first be put on the longest time; therefore, a shorter time decided against, a longer cannot be put to question. It was answered, that this rule takes place only in filling blanks for time. But when a specific time stands part of a motion, that may be struck out as well as any other part of the motion; and when struck out, a motion may be received to insert any other. In fact, it is not till they are struck out, and a blank for the time thereby produced, that the rule can begin to operate, by receiving all the propositions for different times, and putting the questions successively on the longest. Otherwise, it would be in the power of the mover, by inserting originally a short time, to preclude the possibility of a longer. For, till the short time is struck out, you cannot insert a longer; and if, after it is struck out, you cannot do it, then it cannot be done at all. Suppose the first motion has been to amend by striking out "the second Tuesday in February," and inserting, instead thereof, "the first of June." It would have been regular then to divide the question, by proposing first the question to strike out and then that to insert. Now this is precisely the effect of the present proceeding; only, instead of one motion and two questions, there are two motions and two questions to effect it: the motion being divided as well as the question.

* In a case of a division of the question, and a decision against striking out, I advance, doubtfully, the opinion here expressed. I find no authority either way; and I know it may be viewed under a different aspect. It may be thought, that having decided separately not to strike out the passage, the same question for striking out cannot be put over again, though with a view to a different insertion. Still I think it more reasonable and convenient to consider the striking out and insertion as forming one proposition; but should readily yield to any evidence that the contrary is the practice in Parliament.

When the matter contained in two bills might be better put into one, the manner is to reject the one, and incorporate its matter into another bill by way of amendment. So, if the matter of one bill would be better distributed into two, any part may be struck out by way of amendment, and put into a new bill. If a section is to be transposed, a question must be put on striking it out where it stands, and another for inserting it in the place desired.

A bill passed by the one House, with blanks. These may be filled up by the other, by way of amendments, returned to the first, as such, and passed.—3 Hats. 83.

The number prefixed to the section of a bill being merely a marginal indication, and no part of the text of the bill, the clerk regulates that; the House or committee is only to amend the text.

SECTION XXXVI.

DIVISION OF THE QUESTION.

IF a question contain more parts than one, it may be divided into two or more questions.—Mem. in Hakew. 29. But not as the right of an individual member, but with the consent of the House. For who is to decide whether a question is complicated or not? where it is complicated? into how many propositions it may be divided? The fact is, that the only mode of separating a complicated question is by moving amendments to it; and these must be decided by the House on a question, unless the House orders it to be divided: as on the question, Dec. 2, 1640, making void the election of the Knights of Worcester, on a motion it was resolved to make two questions of it, to wit, one on each Knight.—2 Hats. 85, 86. So, wherever there are several names in a question, they may be divided, and put one by one.—9 Grey, 444. So, 1729, April 17, on an objection that a question was complicated, it was separated by amendment.—2 Hats. 79. 5.

The soundness of these observations will be evident from the embarrassments produced by the 12th rule of the Senate, which says, "If the question in debate contain several points, any member may have the same divided:" but on a motion to strike out and insert, it shall not be in order to move for a division of the question; but the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition, shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor prevent a subsequent motion, simply to strike out: nor shall the rejection of a motion, simply to strike out, prevent a subsequent motion to strike out and insert.

1798, May 30, the alien bill in quasi-committee. To a section and proviso in the original, had been added two new provisos by way of amendment. On a motion to strike out the section as amended, the question was desired to be divided. To do this, it must be put first on striking out either the former proviso, or some distinct member of the section. But when nothing remains but the last member of the section, and the provisos, they cannot be divided so as to put the last member to question by itself; for the provisos might thus be left standing alone as exceptions to a rule when the rule is taken away; or the new provisos might be left to a second question, after having been decided on once before at the same reading; which is contrary to rule. But the question must be on striking out the last member of the section as amended. This sweeps away the exceptions with the rule, and relieves from inconsistency. A question to be divisible, must comprehend points so distinct and entire, that one of them being taken away, the other may stand entire. But a proviso or exception, with an enacting clause, does not contain an entire point or proposition.

May 31. The same bill being before the Senate. There was a proviso, that the bill should not extend, 1. To any foreign minister; nor, 2. To any person to whom the President should give a passport; nor, 3. To any alien merchant, conforming himself to such regulations as the President shall prescribe; and division of the question into its simplest elements was called for. It was divided into four parts, the 4th taking in the words "conforming himself," &c. It was objected, that the words "any alien merchant" could not be separated from their modifying words "conforming," &c., because these words, if left by themselves, contain no substantive idea, will make no sense. But admitting that the divisions of a paragraph into separate questions must be so made as that each part may stand by itself, yet the House having, on the question, retained the first two divisions, the words "any alien merchant" may be struck out, and their modifying words will then attach themselves to the preceding description of persons, and become a modification of that description.

When a question is divided, after the question on the 1st member, the 2d is open to debate and amendment: because it is a known rule, that a person may rise and speak at any time before the question has been completely decided by putting the negative, as well as the affirmative side. But the question is not completely put when the vote has been taken on the first member only. One half of the question, both affirmative and negative, still remains to be put.—See Executive Journal, June 25, 1795. The same decision by President Adams.

SECTION XXXVII.

CO-EXISTING QUESTIONS.

It may be asked whether the House can be in possession of two motions or propositions at the same time? So that, one of them being decided, the other goes to question without being moved anew? The answer must be special. When a question is interrupted by a vote of adjournment, it is thereby removed from before the House; and does not stand ipso facto before them at their next meeting, but must come forward in the usual way; so, when it is interrupted by the order of the day. Such other privileged questions also as dispose of the main question (e. g. the previous question, the postponement, or commitment) remove it from before the House. But it is only suspended by a motion to amend, to withdraw, to read papers, or by a question of order or privilege, and stands again before the House when these are decided. None but the class of privileged questions can be brought forward while there is another question before the House; the rule being, that when a motion has been made and seconded, no other can be received except it be a privileged one.

SECTION XXXVIII.

EQUIVALENT QUESTIONS.

IF, on a question for rejection, a bill be retained, it passes of course to its next reading.—Hakev. 141. Scob. 42, and a question for a second reading determined negatively, is a rejection without farther question.—4 Grey, 149. And see Elsynge's Memor. 42, in what cases questions are to be taken for rejection.

Where questions are perfectly equivalent, so that the negative of the one amounts to the affirmative of the other, and leaves no other alternative, the decision of the one concludes necessarily the other.—4 Grey, 157. Thus the negative of striking out amounts to the affirmative of agreeing: and therefore to put a question on agreeing after that on striking out, would be to put the same question in effect twice over. Not so in questions of amendments between the two Houses. A motion to recede being negated, does not amount to a positive vote to insist, because there is another alternative, to wit, to adhere.

A bill originating in one House, is passed by the other with an amendment. A motion in the originating House, to agree to the amendment is negated. Do these result from this vote of disagreement? or must the question or disagreement be expressly voted? The questions respecting amendments from another House are, 1st. To agree: 2d. Disagree: 3d. Recede: 4th. Insist: 5th. Adhere.

1st. To agree.	}	Either of these concludes the other necessarily, for the positive of either is exactly the equivalent of the negative of the other, and no other alternative remains. On either motion, amendments to the amendment may be proposed; e. g. if it be moved to disagree, those who are for the amendment have a right to propose amendments, and to make it as perfect as they can, before the question of disagreeing is put.
2d. To disagree.
3d. To recede.	}	You may then either insist or adhere. You may then either recede or adhere. You may then either recede or insist.—Consequently, the negative of these is not equivalent to a positive vote, the other way. It does not raise so necessary an implication as may authorize the secretary by inference to enter another vote; for two alternatives still remain, either of which may be adopted by the House.
4th. To insist.
5th. To adhere.

SECTION XXXIX.

THE QUESTION.

THE question is to be put first on the affirmative, and then on the negative side.

After the Speaker has put the affirmative part of the question, any member who has not spoken before the question, may rise and speak before the negative be put. Because it is no full question till the negative part be put.—Scob. 23; Hats. 73.

But in small matters, and which are of course, such as receiving petitions, reports, withdrawing motions, reading papers, &c., the Speaker most commonly supposes the consent of the House, where no objection is expressed, and does not give them the trouble of putting the question formally.—Scob. 22; 2 Hats. 87. 2. 87; 5 Grey, 129; 9 Grey, 301.

SECTION XL.

BILL, THIRD READING.

To prevent bills from being passed by surprise, the House, by a standing order, directs that they shall not be put on their passage before a fixed hour, naming one at which the House is commonly full.—Hakew. 153.

The usage of the Senate is, not to put bills on their passage till noon.

A bill reported and passed to the third reading, cannot on that day be read the third time and passed. Because this would be to pass on two readings on the same day. At the third reading, the clerk reads the bill, and delivers it to the Speaker, who states the title, that it is the third time of reading the bill, and that the question will be, Whether it shall pass? Formerly, the Speaker, or those who prepared a bill, prepared also a breviate or summary statement of its contents, which the Speaker read when he declared the state of the bill at the several readings. Sometimes, however, he read the bill itself, especially on its passage.—Hakew. 136, 137. 153; Coke, 22. 115. Latterly, instead of this, he, at the third reading, states the whole contents of the bill, verbatim; only instead of reading the formal parts, “be it enacted,” &c., he states, that “the preamble recites so and so; the first section enacts, that, &c. the second section enacts,” &c.

But in the Senate of the United States, both of these formalities are dispensed with; the breviate presenting but an imperfect view of the bill, and being capable of being made to present a false one; and the full statement being a useless waste of time, immediately after a full reading by the clerk; and especially as every member has a printed copy in his hand,

A bill, on the third reading, is not to be committed for the matter or body thereof; but, to receive some particular clause or proviso, it hath been sometimes suffered, but as a thing very unusual.—Hakew. 156; thus, 27 El. 1584, a bill was committed on the third reading, having been formerly committed on the second; but it is declared not usual.—D' Ewes, 137, col. 2, 414, col. 2.

When an essential provision has been omitted, rather than erase the bill, and render it suspicious, they add a clause on a separate paper, engrossed and called a rider, which is read, and put to the question three times.—Elsynge's Memorials, 59; 6 Grey, 335; 1 Blackst. 183. For examples of riders, see 3 Hats. 121, 122. 124. 126. Every one is at liberty to bring in a rider without asking leave.—10 Grey, 52.

It is laid down as a general rule, that amendments proposed at the second reading shall be twice read, and those proposed at the third reading thrice read; as also all amendments from the other House.—Town. col. 19. 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

It is with great, and almost with invincible reluctance, that amendments are admitted at this reading, which occasion erasures or interlineations. Sometimes the proviso has been cut off from a bill; sometimes erased.—9 Grey, 513.

This is the proper stage for filling up blanks; for if filled up before, and now altered by erasure, it would be peculiarly unsafe.

At this reading, the bill is debated afresh, and for the most part is more spoken to, at this time, than on any of the former readings.—Hakew. 153.

The debate on the question, Whether it should be read a third time? has discovered to its friends and opponents the arguments on which each side relies, and which of these appear to have influence with the House; they have had time to meet them with new arguments, and to put their old ones into new shapes. The former vote has tried the strength of the first opinion, and furnished grounds to estimate the issue; and the question now offered for its passage, is the last occasion which is ever to be offered for carrying or rejecting it.

When the debate is ended, the Speaker, holding the bill in his hand, puts the question for its passage, by saying, "Gentlemen, all you who are of opinion that this bill shall pass, say ay;" and after the answer of ayes, "All those of the contrary opinion, say no."—Hakew. 154.

After the bill has passed, there can be no further alteration of it in any point.—Hakew. 159.

SECTION XLI.

DIVISION OF THE HOUSE.

THE affirmative and negative of the question having been both put and answered, the Speaker declares whether the yeas or nays have it by the sound, if he be himself satisfied, and it stands as the judgment of the House. But if he be not himself satisfied which voice is the greater, or if, before any other member comes into the House, or before any new motion is made, (for it is too late after that,) any member shall rise and declare himself dissatisfied with the Speaker's decision, then the Speaker is to divide the House.—Scob. 24; 2 Hats. 140.

When the House of Commons is divided, the one party goes forth, and the other remains in the House. This has made it important which go forth and which remain; because the latter gain all the indolent, the indifferent, and inattentive. Their general rule, therefore, is, that those who give their vote for the preservation of the orders of the House, shall stay in, and those who are for introducing any new matter or alteration, or proceeding, contrary to the established course, are to go out. But this rule is subject to many exceptions and modifications.—2 Rush. p. 3, fol. 92; Scob. 43. 52; Co. 12. 116; D'Eves, 505, col. 1; Mem. in Hakew. 25. 29; as will appear by the following statement of who go forth.

The one party being gone forth, the Speaker names two tellers from the affirmative, and two from the negative side, who first count those sitting in the House, and report the number to the Speaker. Then they place themselves within the door, two on each side, and count those who went forth, as they come in, and report the number to the Speaker.—Mem. in Hakew. 26.

A mistake in the report of the tellers may be rectified after the report made.
—2 Hats. 145. Note.

But, in both Houses of Congress, all those intricacies are avoided. The ayes first rise, and are counted, standing in their places, by the President or Speaker. Then they sit, and the noes rise, and are counted in like manner.

In Senate, if they be equally divided, the Vice-President announces his opinion, which decides.

The Constitution, however, has directed that “the yeas and nays of the members of either House, on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.” And again, that in all cases of re-considering a bill, disapproved by the President, and returned with his objections, “the votes of both Houses shall be determined by the yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill, shall be entered on the journals of each House respectively.”

By the 16th and 17th rules of the Senate, when the yeas and nays shall be called for by one-fifth of the members present, each member called upon shall, unless for special reasons he be excused by the Senate, declare openly, and without debate, his assent or dissent to the question. In taking the yeas and nays, and upon the call of the House, the names of the members shall be taken alphabetically.

When the yeas and nays shall be taken upon any question, in pursuance of the above rule, no member shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the decision is announced from the chair.

When it is proposed to take a vote by yeas and nays, the President or Speaker states, that “The question is whether, e. g. the bill shall pass? That it is proposed that the yeas and nays shall be entered on the journal. Those, therefore, who desire it will rise." If he finds and declares that one-fifth have risen, he then states, that "those who are of opinion that the bill shall pass, are to answer in the affirmative; those of the contrary opinion, in the negative." The clerk then calls over the names alphabetically, notes the yea or nay of each, and gives the list to the President or Speaker, who declares the result. In Senate, if there be an equal division, the secretary calls on the Vice President, who notes his affirmative or negative, which becomes the decision of the House.

In the House of Commons, every member must give his vote the one way or the other.—Scob. 24. As it is not permitted to any one to withdraw who is in the House when the question is put, nor is any one to be told in the division who was not in when the question was put.—2 Hats. 140.

This last position is always true when the vote is by yeas and nays; where the negative as well as the affirmative of the question is stated by the President at the same time, and the vote of both sides begins and proceeds pari passu. It is true, also, when the question is put in the usual way, if the negative has also been put. But if it has not, the member entering, or any other member may speak, and even propose amendments, by which the debate may be opened again, and the question greatly deferred. And, as some who have answered ay, may have been changed by the new arguments, the affirmative must be put over again. If, then, the member entering may, by speaking a few words, occasion a repetition of the question, it would be useless to deny it on his simple call for it.

While the House is telling, no member may speak, or move out of his place; for, if any mistake be suspected, it must be told again.—Mem. in Hakew. 26; 2 Hats. 143.

If any difficulty arises in point of order, during the division, the Speaker is to decide peremptorily, subject to the future censure of the House, if irregular. He sometimes permits old experienced members to assist him with their advice, which they do sitting in their seats, covered to avoid the appearance of debate; but this can only be with the Speaker's leave, else the division might last several hours.—2 Hats. 143.

The voice of the majority decides. For the lex majoris partis, is the law of all councils, elections, &c., where not otherwise expressly provided.—Hakew. 93. But if the House be equally divided, "semper presumatur pro negante:" that is, the former law is not to be changed but by a majority.—Towns. col. 134.

But, in the Senate of the United States, the Vice-President decides, when the House is divided.—Const. U. S., Art. I. Sec. 2.

When, from counting the House, on a division, it appears that there is not a quorum, the matter continues exactly in the state in which it was before the division, and must be resumed at that point on any future day.—2 Hats. 126.

1606, May 1, on a question, whether a member having said Yea, may afterwards sit and change his opinion? A precedent was remembered by the Speaker, of Mr. Morris, attorney of the wards, in 39 Eliz., who in like case changed his opinion.—Mem. in Hakew. 27.

SECTION XLII.

TITLE.

AFTER the bill has passed, and not before, the title may be amended, and is to be fixed by a question; and the bill is then sent to the other House.

SECTION XLIII.

RE-CONSIDERATION.

WHEN a question has been once made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member of the majority to move for the re-consideration thereof; but no motion for the re-consideration of any vote shall be in order after a bill, resolution, message, report, amendment, or motion, upon which the vote was taken, shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate, announcing their decision; nor shall any motion for re-consideration be in order, unless made on the same day on which the vote was taken, or within the two next days of actual session of the Senate thereafter.—Rule 20.

1798, Jan. A bill on its second reading, being amended, and on the question, whether it shall be read a third time negatived, was restored by a decision to re-consider the question. Here the votes of negative and re-consideration, like positive and negative quantities in equation, destroy one another, and are as if they were expunged from the journals. Consequently the bill is open for amendment, just so far as it was the moment preceding the question for the third reading. That is to say, all parts of the bill are open for amendment, except those on which votes have been already taken in its present stage. So also may it be re-committed.

The rule permitting a re-consideration of a question affixing to it no limitation of time or circumstance, it may be asked whether there is no limitation? If, after the vote, the paper on which it has passed has been parted with, there can be no re-consideration: as if a vote has been for the passage of a bill, and the bill has been sent to the other House. But where the paper remains, as on a bill rejected, when, or under what circumstances, does it cease to be susceptible of re-consideration? This remains to be settled, unless a sense that the right of re-consideration is a right to waste the time of the House in repeated agitations of the same question, so that it shall never know when a question is done with, should induce them to reform this anomalous proceeding.*

In Parliament, a question once carried, cannot be questioned again, at the same session; but must stand as the judgment of the House.—Towns. col. 67; Memor. in Hakew. 33. And a bill once rejected, another of the same substance cannot be brought in again the same session.—Hakew. 158; 6 Grey, 392. But this does not extend to prevent putting the same questions in different stages of a bill; because every stage of a bill submits the whole and every part of it to the opinion of the House, as open for amendment, either by insertion or omission, though the same amendment has been accepted or rejected in a former stage. So in reports of committees, e. g. report of an address, the same question is before the House, and open for free discussion.—Towns. col. 26; 2 Hats. 98. 100, 101. So, orders of the House, or instructions to committees may be discharged. So a bill begun in one House, sent to the other, and there rejected, may be renewed again in that other, passed, and sent back.—Ib. 92; 3 Hats. 161. Or if, instead of being rejected, they read it once, and lay it aside, and put it off a month, they may offer in another to the same effect, with the same or a different title.—Hakew. 97, 98.

Divers expedients are used to correct the effects of this rule; as by passing an explanatory act, if any thing has been omitted or ill-expressed, 3 Hats. 278; or an act to enforce, and make more effectual an act, &c., or to rectify mistakes in an act, &c., or a committee on one bill may be instructed to receive a clause to rectify the mistakes of another. Thus, June 24, 1685, a clause was inserted in a bill for rectifying a mistake committed by a clerk in engrossing a bill of reply.—2 Hats. 194. 6. Or the session may be closed for one, two, three, or more days, and a new one commenced. But then all matters depending must be finished, or they fall, and are to begin de novo.—2 Hats. 94. 98. Or a part of the subject may be taken up by another bill, or taken up in a different way.—6 Grey, 316.

And in cases of the last magnitude, this rule has not been so strictly and verbally observed as to stop indispensable proceedings altogether.—2 Hats. 92. 98. Thus, when the address on the preliminaries of peace, in 1782, had been lost by a majority of one; on account of the importance of the question, and smallness of the majority, the same question in substance, though with words not in the first, and which might change the opinions of some members, was brought on again and carried: as the motives for it were thought to outweigh the objection of form.—2 Hats. 99, 100.

A second bill may be passed, to continue an act of the same session; or to enlarge the time limited for its execution.—2 Hats. 95. 98. This is not in contradiction to the first act.

SECTION XLIV.

BILLS SENT TO THE OTHER HOUSE.

ALL bills passed in the Senate, shall, before they are sent to the House of Representatives, be examined by a committee, consisting of three members, whose duty it shall be to examine all bills, amendments, resolutions or motions, before they go out of the possession of the Senate, and to make report that they are correctly engrossed; which report shall be entered on the journal.—Rule 33.

A bill from the other House is sometimes ordered to lie on the table.—2 Hats. 97.

When bills, passed in one House and sent to the other, are grounded on special facts requiring proof, it is usual, either by message, or at a conference, to ask the grounds and evidence: and this evidence, whether arising out of papers, or from the examination of witnesses, is immediately communicated.—3 Hats. 48.

SECTION XLV.

AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES.

WHEN either House, e. g. the House of Commons, sends a bill to the other, the other may pass it with amendments. The regular progression in this case is, that the Commons disagree to the amendment; the Lords insist on it; the Commons insist on their disagreement; the Lords adhere to their amendment; the Commons adhere to their disagreement. The term of insisting may be repeated as often as they choose, to keep the question open. But the first adherence by either, renders it necessary for the other side to recede or adhere also; when the matter is usually suffered to fall.—10 Grey, 148. Latterly, however, there are instances of their having gone to a second adherence. There must be an absolute conclusion of the subject somewhere, or otherwise transactions between the Houses would be endless.—3 Hats. 268. 270. The term of insisting, we are told by Sir John Trevor, was then [1679] newly introduced into Parliamentary usage, by the Lords.—7 Grey, 94. It was certainly a happy innovation, as it multiplies the opportunities of trying modifications which may bring the House to a concurrence. Either House, however, is free to pass over the term of insisting, and to adhere in the first instance.—10 Grey, 146. But it is not respectful to the other. In the ordinary Parliamentary course, there are two free conferences at least before adherence.—10 Grey, 147.

Either House may recede from its amendment, and agree to the bill; or recede from their disagreement to the amendment, and agree to the same absolutely, or with an amendment. For here the disagreement and receding destroy one another, and the subject stands as before the disagreement.—Elsynge, 23. 27. —9 Grey, 476.

But the House cannot recede from or insist on its own amendment with an amendment, for the same reason that it cannot send to the other House an amendment to its own act after it has passed the act. They may modify an amendment from the other House by ingrafting an amendment on it, because they have never assented to it; but they cannot amend their own amendment, because they have, on the question, passed it in that form; 9 Grey, 353; 10 Grey, 240. In Senate, March 29, 1798. Nor where one House has adhered to their amendment, and the other agrees with an amendment, can the first House depart from the form which they have fixed by an adherence.

In the case of a money bill, the Lords' proposed amendments, became, by delay, confessedly necessary. The Commons, however, refused them, as infringing on their privilege as to money bills, but they offered themselves to add to the bill a proviso to the same effect, which had no coherence with the Lords' amendments, and urged, that it was an expedient warranted by precedent, and not unparliamentary in a case become impracticable, and irremediable in any other way.—3 Hats. 256. 266. 270, 271. But the Lords refused, and the bill was lost, 1 Chand. 288. A like case, 1 Chand. 311. So the Commons resolve, that it is unparliamentary to strike out at a conference any thing in a bill which hath been agreed and passed by both Houses, 6 Grey, 274; 1 Chand. 312.

A motion to amend an amendment from the other House, takes precedence of a motion to agree or disagree.

A bill originating in one House, is passed by the other with an amendment.

The originating House agrees to their amendment with an amendment. The other may agree to their amendment with an amendment; that being only in the second and not the third degree. For, as to the amending House, the first amendment with which they passed the bill is a part of its text; it is the only text they have agreed to. The amendment to that text by the originating House, therefore, is only in the 1st degree, and the amendment to that again by the amending House is only in the 2d, to wit: an amendment to an amendment, and so admissible. Just so when, on a bill from the originating House, the other, at its 2d reading, makes an amendment; on the 3d reading, this amendment is become the text of the bill, and if an amendment to it be moved, an amendment to that amendment may also be moved, as being only in the second degree.

SECTION XLVI.

CONFERENCES.

It is on the occasion of amendments between the Houses that conferences are usually asked: but they may be asked in all cases of difference of opinion between the two Houses on matters depending between them. The request of a conference, however, must always be by the House which is possessed of the papers.—3 Hats. 71; 1 Grey, 425.

Conferences may be either simple or free. At a conference simply, written reasons are prepared by the House asking it, and they are read and delivered without debate, to the managers of the other House at the conference; but are not then to be answered.—3 Grey, 144. The other House then, if satisfied, vote the reasons satisfactory, or say nothing; if not satisfied, they resolve them not satisfactory, and ask a conference on the subject of the last conference, where they read and deliver in like manner written answers to those reasons.—3 Grey, 183. They are meant chiefly to record the justification of each House to the nation at large, and to posterity, and in proof that the miscarriage of a necessary measure is not imputable to them.—3 Grey, 255. At free conferences, the managers discuss viva voce and freely, and interchange propositions for such modifications as may be made in a Parliamentary way, and may bring the sense of the two Houses together. And each party reports in writing to their respective Houses the substance of what is said on both sides, and it is entered in their journals.—6 Grey, 220; 3 Hats. 280. (Vide Joint Rules, 1.) This report cannot be amended or altered as that of a committee may be.—Journal Senate, May 24, 1796.

A conference may be asked, before the House asking it has come to a resolution of disagreement, insisting or adhering.—3 Hats. 269. 341. In which case the papers are not left with the other conferees, but are brought back to be the foundation of the vote to be given. And this is the most reasonable and respectful proceeding. For, as was urged by the Lords on a particular occasion, "it is held vain, and below the wisdom of Parliament, to reason or argue against fixed resolutions, and upon terms of impossibility to persuade."—3 Hats. 226. So the Commons say "an adherence is never delivered at a free conference, which implies debate."—10 Grey, 147. And on another occasion, the Lords made it an objection that the Commons had asked a free conference after they had made resolutions of adhering. It was then affirmed, however, on the part of the Commons, that nothing was more Parliamentary than to proceed with free conferences after adhering; 3 Hats. 269; and we do in fact see instances of conference or of free conference, asked after the resolution of disagreeing.—3 Hats. 251. 253. 260. 286. 291. 316. 349. of insisting, ib. 280. 296. 299. 319. 322. 355. of adhering, 269, 270. 283. 300; and even of a second or final adherence.—3 Hats. 270. And in all cases of conference asked after a vote of disagreement, &c., the conferees of the House asking it are to leave the papers with the conferees of the other; and in one case where they refused to receive them, they were left on the table in the conference chamber.—3 Hats. 271. 317. 323. 354; 10 Grey, 146.

After a free conference the usage is to proceed with free conferences, and not to return again to a conference.—3 Hats. 270; 9 Grey, 229.

After a conference denied, a free conference may be asked.—1 Grey, 45.

When a conference is asked, the subject of it must be expressed, or the conference not agreed to.—Ord. H. Com. 89; 1 Grey, 425; 7 Grey, 31. They are sometimes asked to inquire concerning an offence or default of a member of the other House, 6 Grey, 181; 1 Chand. 304; or the failure of the other House to present to the King a bill passed by both Houses, 8 Grey, 302; or on information received, and relating to the safety of the nation, 10 Grey, 171, or when the methods of Parliament are thought by the one House to have been departed from by the other, a conference is asked to come to a right understanding thereon.—10 Grey, 148. So, when an unparliamentary message has been sent, instead of answering it, they ask a conference.—3 Grey, 155. Formerly an address, or articles of impeachment, or a bill with amendments, or a vote of the House, or concurrence in a vote, or a message from the King, were sometimes communicated by way of conference. 7 Grey, 128. 300. 387; 7 Grey, 80; 8 Grey, 210. 255; 1 Torbuck's Deb. 278; 10 Grey, 293; 1 Chandler, 49. 287. But this is not modern practice.—8 Grey, 255.

A conference has been asked, after the first reading of a bill.—1 Grey, 194. This is a singular instance.

SECTION XLVII.

MESSAGES.

MESSAGES between the Houses are to be sent only while both Houses are sitting.—3 Hats. 15. They are received during a debate, without adjourning the debate.—3 Hats. 22.

In Senate, the messengers are introduced in any state of business, except—1. While a question is putting. 2. While the yeas and nays are calling. 3. While the ballots are calling. The first case is short: the second and third are cases where any interruption might occasion errors difficult to be corrected.—Rule 46.

In the House of Representatives, as in Parliament, if the House be in a committee when a messenger attends, the Speaker takes the chair to receive the message, and then quits it to return into a committee, without any question or interruption.—4 Grey, 226.

Messengers are not saluted by the members, but by the Speaker, for the House.—2 Grey, 253. 274.

If messengers commit an error in delivering their messages, they may be admitted, or called in, to correct their message.—4 Grey, 41. Accordingly, March 13, 1800, the Senate having made two amendments to a bill from the House of Representatives, their secretary, by mistake, delivered one only; which being inadmissible by itself, that House disagreed, and notified the Senate of their disagreement. This produced a discovery of the mistake. The secretary was sent to the other House to correct his mistake, the correction was received, and the two amendments acted on de novo.

As soon as the messenger, who has brought bills from the other House, has retired, the Speaker holds the bill in his hand, and acquaints the House, "that the other House have, by their messenger, sent certain bills," and then reads their titles, and delivers them to the clerk to be safely kept, till they shall be called for to be read.—Hakew. 178.

It is not the usage for one House to inform the other by what numbers a bill has passed.—10 Grey, 150. Yet they have sometimes recommended a bill as of great importance to the consideration of the House to which it is sent.—3 Hats. 25. Nor when they have rejected a bill from the other House, do they give notice of it; but it passes sub-silentio, to prevent unbecoming altercations.—1 Black. 133.

But in Congress the rejection is notified by message to the House in which the bill originated,—Joint Rules, 12.

A question is never asked by the one House of the other, by way of message, but only at a conference; for this is an interrogatory, not a message.—3 Grey, 151. 181.

When a bill is sent by one House to the other, and is neglected, they may send a message to remind them of it.—3 Hats. 25; 5 Grey, 154. But if it be mere inattention, it is better to have it done informally, by communications between the Speakers, or members of the two Houses.

Where the subject of a message is of a nature that it can properly be communicated to both Houses of Parliament, it is expected that this communication should be made to both on the same day. But where a message was accompanied with an original declaration, signed by the party, to which the message referred, its being sent to one House, was not noticed by the other, because the declaration, being original, could not possibly be sent to both Houses at the same time.—2 Hats. 260, 261, 262.

The King having sent original letters to the Commons, afterwards desires they may be returned, that he may communicate them to the Lords.—1 Chandler, 303.

SECTION XLVIII.

ASSENT.

THE House which has received a bill, and passed it, may present it for the King's assent, and ought to do it, though they have not by message notified to the other their passage of it. Yet the notifying by message is a form which ought to be observed between the two Houses, from motives of respect and good understanding.—2 Hats. 242. Were the bill to be withheld from being presented to the King, it would be an infringement of the rules of parliament.—2 Hats. 242.

When a bill has passed both Houses of Congress, the House last acting on it notifies its passage to the other, and delivers the bill to the joint committee of enrolment, who see that it is truly enrolled in parchment.—(Vide Joint Rules, 6.) When the bill is enrolled, it is not to be written in paragraphs, but solidly, and all of a piece, that the blanks within the paragraphs may not give room for forgery.—9 Grey, 143. It is then put in the hands of the clerk of the House of Representatives, to have it signed by the Speaker. The clerk then brings it by way of message to the Senate, to be signed by their President. The secretary of the Senate returns it to the committee of enrolment, who present it to the President of the United States.—(Vide Joint Rules, 8, 9.) If he approves, he signs and deposits it among the rolls in the office of the Secretary of State, and notifies by message the House in which it originated, that he has approved and signed it; of which that House informs the other by message. If the President disapproves, he is to return it, with his objections, to the House in which it shall have originated; who are to enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to re-consider it. If, after such re-consideration, two-thirds of the House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the President's objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be re-considered, and if approved by two-thirds of that House, it shall become a law. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days, (Sundays excepted,) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress, by their adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.—Const. U. S. Art. I Sec. 7.

Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and the House of Representatives may be necessary, (except on a question of adjournment,) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or, being disapproved by him, shall be re-passed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.—Const. U. S. Art. I, Sec. 7.

SECTION XLIX.

JOURNALS.

EACH House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may, in their judgment, require secrecy.—Const. I. 5. 3.

The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as in a committee of the House, shall be entered on the journals, as concisely as possible, care being taken to detail a true account of the proceedings. Every vote of the Senate shall be entered on the journals, and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper, presented to the Senate, be also inserted on the journals.—Rule 32.

The titles of bills, and such parts thereof only as shall be affected by proposed amendments, shall be inserted on the journals.—Rule 31.

If a question is interrupted by a vote to adjourn, or to proceed to the orders of the day, the original question is never printed in the journal, it never having been a vote, nor introductory to any vote: but when suppressed by the previous question, the first question must be stated, in order to introduce, and make intelligible the second.—2 Hats. 83.

So also, when a question is postponed, adjourned, or laid on the table, the original question, though not yet a vote, must be expressed in the journals; because it makes part of the vote of postponement, adjourning, or laying on the table.

Where amendments are made to a question, those amendments are not printed in the journals, separated from the question; but only the question as finally agreed to by the House. The rule of entering in the journals only what the House has agreed to, is founded in great prudence and good sense; as there may be many questions proposed which it may be improper to publish to the world, in the form in which they are made.—2 Hats. 85.

In both Houses of Congress, all questions whereon the yeas and nays are desired by one-fifth of the members present, whether decided affirmatively or negatively, must be entered on the journals.—Const. I. 5. 3.

The first order for printing the votes of the House of Commons, was October 30, 1685.—1 Chandler, 387.

Some judges have been of opinion, that the journals of the House of Commons are no records, but remembrances. But this is not law.—Cob. 110, 111; Lex. Parl. 114, 115; Jour. H. C. Mar. 17, 1592; Hale Parl. 105. For the Lords, in their House, have power of judicature; the Commons, in their House, have power of judicature; and both Houses together have power of judicature; and the book of the clerk of the House of Commons is a record, as is affirmed by act of Parliament.—6 H. 8. c. 16; Inst. 23, 24; and every member of the House of Commons has a judicial place.—4 Inst. 15. As records, they are open to every person; and a printed vote of either House is sufficient ground for the other to notice it. Either may appoint a committee to inspect the journals of the other, and report what has been done by the other in any particular case.—2 Hats. 261; 3 Hats. 27. 30. Every member has a right to see the journals, and to take and publish votes from them. Being a record, every one may see and publish them.—6 Grey, 118, 119.

On information of a mis-entry or omission of an entry in the journal, a committee may be appointed to examine and rectify it, and report it to the House.—2 Hats. 194, 5.

SECTION L.

ADJOURNMENT.

THE two Houses of Parliament have the sole, separate, and independent power of adjourning, each their respective Houses. The King has no authority to adjourn them; he can only signify his desire, and it is in the wisdom and prudence of either House to comply with his requisition, or not, as they see fitting.—2 Hats. 332; 1 Blackstone, 186; 5 Grey, 122.

By the Constitution of the United States, a smaller number than a majority may adjourn from day to day.—I. 5. But neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.—I. 5. The President may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper.—Const. II. 3.

A motion to adjourn simply, cannot be amended as by adding, "To a particular day." But must be put simply, "That this House do now adjourn?" and, if carried in the affirmative, it is adjourned to the next sitting day, unless it has come to a previous resolution. "That at its rising, it will adjourn to a particular day;" and then the House is adjourned to that day.—2 Hats. 82.

Where it is convenient that the business of the House be suspended for a short time, as for a conference presently to be held, &c., it adjourns during pleasure.—2 Hats. 305. Or for a quarter of an hour.—5 Grey, 331.

If a question be put for adjournment, it is no adjournment till the Speaker pronounces it.—5 Grey, 137. And from courtesy and respect, no member leaves his place till the Speaker has passed on.

SECTION LI.

A SESSION.

PARLIAMENT have three modes of separation, to wit, by adjournment, by prorogation, by dissolution by the King, or by the efflux of the term for which they were elected. Prorogation or dissolution constitutes there what is called a session; provided some act has passed. In this case, all matters depending before them are discontinued, and at their next meeting are to be taken up de novo, if taken up at all.—1 Blackst. 186. Adjournment, which is by themselves, is no more than a continuance of the session from one day to another, or for a fortnight, a month, &c., ad libitum. All matters depending remain in statu quo, and when they meet again, be the term ever so distant, are resumed without any fresh commencement, at the point at which they were left.—1 Lev. 165; Lex. Parl. c. 2; 1 Ro. Rep. 29; 4 Inst. 7. 27, 28; Hutt. 61; 1 Mod. 152; Ruffh. Jac. L. Dict. Parliaments; Blackst. 186. Their whole session is considered in law but as one day, and has relation to the first day thereof.—Bro. Abr. Parliament, 86.

Committees may be appointed to sit during a recess by adjournment, but not by prorogation.—5 Grey, 374; 9 Grey, 350; 1 Chandler, 50. Neither House can continue any portion of itself in any Parliamentary function, beyond the end of the session, without the consent of the other two branches. When done, it is by a bill constituting them commissioners for the particular purpose.

Congress separate in two ways only, to wit, by adjournment or dissolution by the efflux of their time. What then constitutes a session with them? A dissolution certainly closes one session, and the meeting of the new Congress begins another. The Constitution authorizes the President, "On extraordinary occasions, to convene both Houses, or either of them."—Art. I. Sec. 3. If convened by the President's proclamation, this must begin a new session, and of course determine the preceding one to have been a session. So, if it meets under the clause of the Constitution, which says, "The Congress shall assemble, at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day,"—I. 4,—this must begin a new session. For even if the last adjournment was to this day, the act of adjournment is merged in the higher authority of the Constitution, and the meeting will be under that, and not under their adjournment. So far we have fixed landmarks for determining sessions. In other cases, it is declared by the joint vote authorizing the President of the Senate and the Speaker, to close the session on a fixed day, which is usually in the following form, "Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, that the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, be authorized to close the present session, by adjourning their respective Houses on the — day of —."

When it was said above, that all matters depending before Parliament were discontinued by the determination of the session, it was not meant for judiciary cases, depending before the House of Lords, such as impeachments, appeals, and writs of error. These stand continued of course to the next session.—Raym. 120. 381; Ruffh. Jac. L. D. Parliament.

TREATIES.

THE President of the United States has power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur.—Const. U. S. Art. II. Sec. 2.

All confidential communications, made by the President of the United States to the

* It was held, in the case of Hastings, that a dissolution did not work the discontinuance of an impeachment.

Senate, shall be, by the members thereof, kept inviolably secret; and that all treaties, which may hereafter be laid before the Senate, shall also be kept secret, until the Senate shall, by their resolution, take off the injunction of secrecy.—Rule 38.

Treaties are legislative acts. A treaty is a law of the land. It differs from other laws only as it must have the consent of a foreign nation, being but a contract with respect to that nation. In all countries, I believe, except England, treaties are made by the legislative power: and there, also, if they touch the laws of the land, they must be approved by Parliament. Ware vs. Hilton.—3 Dallas's Rep. 199. It is acknowledged, for instance, that the King of Great Britain cannot, by a treaty, make a citizen of an alien.—Vattel, b. 1, c. 19, sec. 214. An act of Parliament was necessary to validate the American treaty of 1783. And abundant examples of such acts can be cited. In the case of the treaty of Utrecht, in 1712, the commercial articles require the concurrence of Parliament. But a bill brought in for that purpose was rejected. France, the other contracting party, suffered these articles, in practice, to be not insisted on, and adhered to the rest of the treaty.—4 Russell's Hist. Mod. Europe, 457; 2 Smollett, 242. 246.

By the Constitution of the United States, this department of legislation is confined to two branches only, of the ordinary Legislature; the President originating, and Senate having a negative. To what subject this power extends, has not been defined in detail by the Constitution; nor are we entirely agreed among ourselves. 1. It is admitted that it must concern the foreign nation, party to the contract, or it would be a mere nullity res enter alias acta. 2. By the general power to make treaties, the Constitution must have intended to comprehend only those objects which are usually regulated by treaty, and cannot be otherwise regulated. 3. It must have meant to except out of these the rights reserved to the States; for surely the President and Senate cannot do by treaty what the whole government is interdicted from doing in any way. 4. And also to except those subjects of legislation in which it gave a participation to the House of Representatives. This last exception is denied by some, on the ground that it would leave very little matter for the treaty power to work on. The less the better, say others. The Constitution thought it wise to restrain the Executive and Senate from entangling and embroiling our affairs with those of Europe. Besides, as the negotiations are carried on by the Executive alone, the subjecting to the ratification of the Representatives such articles as are within their participation, is no more inconvenient than to the Senate. But the ground of this exemption is denied as unfounded. For examine e. g. the treaty of commerce with France, and it will be found that out of thirty-one articles, there are not more than small portions of two or three of them which would not still remain as subjects of treaties, untouched by these exceptions.

Treaties being declared, equally with the laws of the United States, to be the supreme law of the land, it is understood that an act of the Legislature alone can declare them infringed and rescinded. This was accordingly the process adopted in the case of France, 1798.

It has been the usage of the Executive, when it communicates a treaty to the Senate for their ratification, to communicate also the correspondence of the negotiations.—This having been omitted in the case of the Prussian treaty, was asked by a vote of the House of February 12, 1800, and was obtained. And in December, 1800, the Convention of that year, between the United States and France, with the report of the negotiations by the Envoys, but not their instructions, being laid before the Senate, the instructions were asked for, and communicated by the President.

The mode of voting on questions of ratification is by nominal call.

Whenever a treaty shall be laid before the Senate for ratification, it shall be read a first time for information only; when no motion to reject, ratify, or modify the whole or any part, shall be received.

Its second reading shall be for consideration ; and on a subsequent day, when it shall be taken up as in a committee of the whole, and every one shall be free to move a question on any particular article in this form, " Will the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of this article ?" or to propose amendments thereto, either by inserting or by leaving out words, in which last case the question shall be, " Shall the words stand part of the article ?" And in every of the said cases, the concurrence of two-thirds of the Senators present shall be required to decide affirmatively. And when through the whole, the proceedings shall be stated to the House, and questions be again severally put thereon for confirmation, or new ones proposed, requiring in like manner a concurrence of two-thirds for whatever is retained or inserted.

The votes so confirmed shall, by the House, or a committee thereof, be reduced into the form of a ratification with or without modifications, as may have been decided, and shall be proposed on a subsequent day, when every one shall again be free to move amendments, either by inserting or leaving out words ; in which last case the question shall be, " Shall the words stand part of the resolution ?" And in both cases the concurrence of two-thirds shall be requisite to carry the affirmative ; as well as on the final question to advise and consent to the ratification in the form agreed to.—Rule 37.

When any question may have been decided by the Senate, in which two-thirds of the members present are necessary to carry the affirmative, any member who voted on that side which prevailed in the question, may be at liberty to move for a reconsideration ; and a motion for reconsideration shall be decided by a majority of votes.—Rule 44.

SECTION LIII.

IMPEACHMENT.

THE House of Representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 3.

The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief-Justice shall preside ; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present. Judgment, in cases of impeachment, shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit, under the United States. But the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law.—Const. U. S. Art. I. Sec. 3.

The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.—Const. U. S. Art. II. Sec. 4.

The trial of crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury.—Const. U. S. Art. III. Sec. 2.

These are the provisions of the Constitution of the United States on the subject of impeachments. The following is a sketch of some of the principles and practices of England on the same subject :

Jurisdiction.—The Lords cannot impeach any to themselves, nor join in the accusation, because they are judges.—Seld. Judic. in Parl. 12. 63. Nor can they proceed against a commoner, but on complaint of the Commons.—Ib. 84. The Lords may not, by the law, try a commoner for capital offence, on the information of the King, or a private person ; because the accused is entitled to a trial by his peers generally ; but on accusation by the House of Commons, they may proceed against the delinquent, of whatsoever degree, and whatsoever be the nature of the offence ; for there they do not assume to themselves trial at common law. The Commons are then instead of a jury, and the judgment is given on their demand, which is instead of a verdict. So the Lords do only judge but not try the delinquent.—Ib. 6, 7. But Wooddeson denies that a commouer can now be charged capitally before the Lords, even by the Commons; and cites Fitzharris's case, 1681, impeached of high treason, where the Lords remitted the prosecution to the inferior court.—8 Grey's Deb. 325, 6, 7; 2 Wooddeson, 601. 576; 3 Seld. 1610. 1619. 1641; 4 Black. 257; 3 Seld. 1604. 1618. 9. 1656.

Accusation.—The Commons, as the grand inquest of the nation, become suitors for penal justice.—2 Woodd. 597; 6 Grey, 356. The general course is to pass a resolution, containing a criminal charge against the supposed delinquent, and then to direct some member to impeach him by oral accusation, at the bar of the House of Lords, in the name of the Commons. The person signifies, that the articles will be exhibited, and desires that the delinquent may be sequestered from his seat, or be committed, or that the Peers will take order for his appearance.—Sachv. Trial. 325; 2 Woodd. 602. 605; Lords' Jour. 3 June, 1701; 1 Wms. 616; 6 Grey, 324.

Process.—If the party do not appear, proclamations are to be issued, giving him a day to appear. On their return they are strictly examined. If any error be found in them, a new proclamation issues, giving a short day. If he appear not, his goods may be arrested, and they may proceed.—Seld. Jud. 98, 99.

Articles.—The accusation (article) of the Commons, is substituted in place of an indictment. Thus, by the usage of Parliament, an impeachment for writing or speaking, the particular words need not be specified.—Sach. Tr. 325; 2 Woodd. 602. 605; Lords' Journ. 3 June, 1701; 1 Wms. 616.

Appearance.—If he appears, and the case be capital, he answers in custody; though not if the accusation be general. He is not to be committed, but on special accusations. If it be for a misdemeanor only, he answers a Lord in his place, a Commoner at the bar, and not in custody, unless, on the answer, the Lords find cause to commit him till he find sureties to attend, and lest he should fly.—Seld. Jud. 98, 99. A copy of the articles is given him, and a day fixed for his answer.—T. Ray; 1 Rushw. 268; Fost. 232; 1 Clar. History of the Reb. 379. On a misdemeanor, his appearance may be in person, or he may answer, in writing, or by attorney.—Seld. Jud. 100. The general rule on accusation for a misdemeanor is, that in such a state of liberty or restraint as the party is when the Commons complain of him, in such he is to answer.—Seld. Jud. 101. If previously committed by the Commons, he answers as a prisoner. But this may be called, in some sort, judicium parium suorum.—Seld. Jud. In misdemeanors, the party has a right to counsel by the common law; but not in capital cases.—Seld. Jud. 102—5.

Answer.—The answer need not observe great strictness of form. He may plead guilty as to part, and defend as to the residue; or, saving all exceptions, deny the whole, or give a particular answer to each article separately.—1 Rush. 274; 2 Rush. 1374; 12 Parl. Hist. 442; 3 Lords' Journ. 13 Nov. 1643; 2

Wood. 607. But he cannot plead a pardon in bar to the impeachment.—
2 Wood. 618; 2 St. Tr. 735.

Replication, rejoinder, &c.—There may be a replication, rejoinder, &c.—
Seld. Jud. 114; 8 Grey's Deb. 233; Sach. Tr. 15; Journ. House of Commons, 6 March, 1640, 1.

Witnesses.—The practice is to swear the witnesses in open House, and then examine them there: or a committee may be named, who shall examine them in committee either on interrogatories agreed on in the House, or such as the committee, in their discretion, shall demand.—Seld. Jud. 120. 123.

Jury.—In the case of Alice Pierce, 1 R. 2. a jury was empannelled for her trial before a committee.—Seld. Jud. 123. But this was on a complaint, not an impeachment by the Commons.—Seld. Jud. 163. It must also have been for a misdemeanor only, as the Lords' Spiritual sat in the case, which they do on misdemeanors, but not in capital cases.—Seld. Jud. 148. The judgment was a forfeiture of all her lands and goods.—Seld. Jud. 188. This, Selden says, is the only jury he finds recorded in Parliament for misdemeanors; but he makes no doubt if the delinquent doth put himself on the trial of his country, a jury ought to be empannelled: and he adds, that it is not so on impeachment by the Commons; for they are in oco proprio, and here no jury ought to be empannelled.—Ib. 124. The Lord Berkley, 6 E. 3, was arraigned for the murder of, L. 2, on an information on the part of the King, and not on impeachment of the Commons; for then they had been patria sua. He waved his peerage, and was tried by a jury of Gloucestershire and Warwickshire.—Ib. 125. In one, 1 H. 7, the Commons protest that they are not to be considered as parties to any judgment given, or hereafter to be given in Parliament.—Ib. 133. They have been generally, and more justly considered, as is before stated, as the grand jury. For the conceit of Selden is certainly not accurate, that they are the patria sua of the accused, and that the Lords do only judge, but not try. It is undeniable that they do try. For they examine witnesses as to the facts, and acquit or condemn according to their own belief of them. And Lord Hale says, "the Peers are judges of law as well as of fact."—2 Hale. P. C. 275. Consequently of fact as well as of law.

Presence of Commons.—The Commons are to be present at the examination of witnesses.—Seld. Jud. 124. Indeed, they are to attend throughout, either as a committee of the whole House; or otherwise, at discretion, appoint managers to conduct the proofs.—Rushw. Tr. of Straff. 37; Com. Journ. 4 Feb., 1709, 10; 2 Wood. 614. And judgment is not to be given till they demand it.—Seld. Jud. 124. But they are not to be present on impeachment when the Lords consider of the answer or proofs, and determine of their judgment. Their presence, however, is necessary at the answer and judgment in cases capital.—Ib. 58. 159; as well as not capital, 162. The Lords debated the judgment among themselves. Then the vote is first taken on the question of guilty or not guilty; and if they convict, the question, or particular sentence, is out of that which seemeth to be most generally agreed on. Seld. Jud. 167; 2 Wood. 612.

Judgment.—Judgments in Parliament, for death, have been strictly guided per legem terræ, which they cannot alter; and not at all according to their discretion. They can neither admit any part of the legal judgment, nor add to it. Their sentence must be secundum, non ultra legem.—Seld. Jud. 168, 169, 170, 171. This trial, though it varies in external ceremony, yet differs not in essentials from criminal prosecutions before inferior courts. The same rules of evidence, the same legal notions of crimes and punishments, prevail. For impeachments were not framed to alter the law, but to carry it into more effectual execution against two powerful delinquents. The judgment, therefore, is to be such as is warranted by legal principles or precedents.—6 Sta. Tr. 14; 2 Wood. 611. The Chancellor gives judgments in misdemeanors; the Lord High Steward, formerly, in cases of life and death.—Seld. Jud. 180. But now the Steward is deemed not necessary.—Fost. 144; 1 Woodd. 613. In misdemeanors, the greatest corporal punishment hath been imprisonment.—Seld. Jud. 184. The King's assent is necessary in capital judgments, (but 2 Woodd. 614. contra.) but not in misdemeanors.—Seld Jud. 136.

Continuance.—An impeachment is not discontinued by the dissolution of Parliament; but may be resumed by the new Parliament.—T. Ray. 383; 5 Com. Jour. 23 Dec., 1790; Lord's Jour. May 16, 1791; 2 Wood. 618.

XII. When a question has been once put and decided, it shall be in order for any member who voted in the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for the reconsideration of any vote, shall be made after the ordinance, resolution, or act shall have gone out of the possession of the Board; and no motion of reconsideration shall be taken more than once.

| 2. To commit it. | 5. For the previous question, or |
| 3. To lay on the table. | 6. To adjourn. |

XXII. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, and shall be decided without debate.

XXIII. The previous question, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments and debate of the main question, and shall be in this form—"Shall the main question be now put?"

XXIV. Every member who shall be present when a question is put, shall vote for or against the same, unless the Board shall excuse him, unless he be immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote; but no member shall be permitted to vote upon a question when a division is called, unless present when his name is called in its regular order.

XXV. A member called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the Board, if appealed to, shall decide on the case, but without debate. If there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to.

XXVI. All questions shall be put in the order they are moved, except in filling up blanks—the longest time and the largest sum shall be first put.

XXVII. RULES AND ORDERS
OF THE
BOARD OF ASSISTANT ALDERMEN
OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

PASSED JANUARY 7, 1850.

I. UPON the appearance of ten members, including the President, the members shall be called to order.

II. In case the President shall not attend, the Clerk, on the appearance of ten members, shall call the Board to order, when a President pro tem. shall be appointed by the Board for that meeting, or until the appearance of the President.

III. Immediately after the President shall have taken the chair, the minutes of the preceding meeting shall be read by the Clerk, to the end that any mistake therein may be corrected by the Board.

IV. The order of business, which shall in no case be departed from, except by the consent of ten members voting therefor, shall be as follows :

1st. Presentation of Petitions.

2d. Reports of Committees.

3d. Communications and Reports from the Departments or Corporation Officers.

4th. Motions or Resolutions.

5th. Unfinished business of the preceding meeting.

6th. Special Orders of the day.

7th. General Orders of the day.

8th. Messages from the Mayor or from the Board of Aldermen, may be considered at any time.

V. Whenever the President may wish to leave the chair, he shall have power to substitute a member in his place, provided that such substitution shall not continue beyond the day on which it is made.

VI. When the Board shall be equally divided, including the vote of the President, the question shall be lost.

VII. Whenever any five members shall require the Board to go into Committee of the Whole, the President shall leave the chair, and shall appoint a Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, who shall report the proceedings of the Committee. The rules of the Board shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole, except the rules respecting a call for the ayes and noes, and limiting the time of speaking.

VIII. On motion in Committee to rise and report, the question shall be decided without debate.

IX. No amendment shall be allowed in the Board on any question which has been decided in Committee of the Whole, unless by the consent of two-thirds of the members present.

X. The President shall cause the Clerk to make a list of all the messages, ordinances, resolutions, and reports not finally disposed of, which shall be considered "the general orders of the day."

XI. If the question in debate contains several points, any member may have the same divided.

XII. A motion to refer or lay on the table, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments to the main question.

XIII. When a question has been once put and decided, it shall be in order for any member who voted in the majority to move for the re-consideration thereof; but no motion for the re-consideration of any vote shall be made after the ordinance, resolution, or act shall have gone out of the possession of the Board; and no motion of re-consideration shall be taken more than once.

XIV. No act, resolution, or ordinance, sent to this Board from the other Board for concurrence, shall be called up for final passage on the same day it passed the other Board, unless by unanimous consent of the members present, except in case of invasion, insurrection, or pestilence.

XV. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to publish all ordinances and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy; and whenever a vote shall be taken upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance, which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition, or appropriation of public property, or the expenditure of public money, or the income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment, he shall, before the same is sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment, cause the same to be published, with the ayes and noes, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings, and shall thereafter certify and send to the other Board every act, resolution and ordinance, which has originated in and passed this Board, and which requires a concurrent vote of the Board of Aldermen, and shall deliver to the Mayor, certified in like manner, all such ordinances and resolutions which shall have been received from the Board of Aldermen, and concurred in by this Board, and which are required to be submitted to him for his approval, and shall certify to the other Board the proceedings of this Board in reference to all acts or business originating with the other Board.

XVI. The President shall preserve order and decorum, and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Board.

XVII. Every member, previous to his speaking, shall rise from his seat, and address himself to the President.

XVIII. When two or more members shall rise at once, the President shall name the member who is first to speak.

XIX. No person shall speak more than twice to the same question, without leave of the Board; nor more than once, until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken; nor more than once upon the previous question.

XX. No question on a motion shall be debated or put, unless the same be seconded. When a motion is seconded, it shall be stated by the President before debate; and every such motion shall be reduced to writing, if any member desire it.

XXI. After a motion is stated by the President, it shall be deemed to be in possession of the Board; but it may be withdrawn at any time before decision or amendment.

XXII. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received, unless,

- | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1. To amend it. | 4. To postpone it. |
| 2. To commit it. | 5. For the previous question, or |
| 3. To lay on the table. | 6. To adjourn. |

XXIII. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, and shall be decided without debate.

XXIV. The previous question, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments and debate of the main question, and shall be put in this form—"Shall the main question be now put?"

XXV. Every member who shall be present when a question is put, shall vote for or against the same, unless the Board shall excuse him, or unless he be immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote; but no member shall be permitted to vote upon a question when a division is called, unless to vote when his name is called in its regular order.

XXVI. A member called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the Board, if appealed to, shall decide on the case, but without debate. If there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to.

XXVII. All questions shall be put in the order they are moved, except in filling up blanks—the longest time and the largest sum shall be first put.

XXVIII. Upon a division of the Board, the names of those who vote for, and those who vote against the question, shall be entered upon the minutes; not only in the case required by law, but when any two members require it.

XXIX. In all divisions taken by the Board by ayes and nays, on the call of the member, it shall also be the duty of the Clerk to enter on the minutes the name of the member so calling for the division.

XXX. All appointments of officers shall be by ballot, unless dispensed with by the unanimous consent of the Board, and a majority of the whole number present shall be necessary to constitute a choice.

XXXI. No member shall absent himself without permission from the President.

XXXII. All Committees shall be appointed by the President, unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

XXXIII. Committees appointed to report on any subject referred to them by the Board, shall report the facts in relation to the subject referred, with their opinion thereon in writing. And shall attach thereto all resolutions, petitions, remonstrances, and other papers relative to the matters referred; and no report shall be received unless the same be signed by a majority of the Committee. And no report shall be printed unless by the express direction of the Board, specifying the number of copies to be printed.

XXXIV. Whenever the doors are directed to be closed, all persons, excepting the members and the Clerk, shall retire.

XXXV. Every petition, remonstrance, or other written application, intended to be presented to the Common Council, is to be delivered to the President, or any other member of the Board, on any day, but not later than four o'clock on the day on which the Common Council convene, except on extraordinary occasions ; and the President or other member to whom it shall be given, shall examine the same, or endorse thereon the name of the applicant and the substance of such application, and sign his name thereto ; which endorsement only shall be read by the President, unless a member shall require the reading of the paper, in which case the whole shall be read.

XXXVI. The STANDING COMMITTEES to consist of three members each, shall be as follows :

Article I.

Of Police.

§ 3. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall divide the City into two or more Police Districts, in each of which Districts shall be established a Police Court and Office.

§ 4. The business of the Police Courts, in two of said Police Districts, shall be conducted by the Police Courts now established by law, in and for said City; and if the City shall be divided into more than two Police Districts, the Police Court which shall be established for such additional District, shall possess all the powers, and be subject to all the laws relating to the Police Courts now established in and for said City. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall prescribe the time and place for holding such Courts, and shall designate the Magistrates and Clerks for each Police District.

§ 7. Captains of Police, within their respective Districts, shall be Street Inspectors, Health Wardens, Fire Wardens, and Dock Masters; and in the Twelfth Ward, in addition thereto, shall be Superintendent of Roads; such Captains, aided and assisted by the Assistant Captains of Police and Policemen, shall do and perform all the duties heretofore performed by the several officers in this section mentioned.

§ 10. In case of the absence of the Captain, the duties required of him shall be performed by the First Assistant Captain, and in his absence, by the Second Assistant Captain, who, while acting in such capacity, shall possess and exercise the powers and rights of such Captain.

§ 11. At any alarm of fire, it shall be the duty of the Captain of Patrol nearest the scene of conflagration, forthwith to proceed to the same, with one-half of the number of Policemen off duty, to be diligent in preserving order and protecting property. In case of any riot, or any sudden emergency, requiring the services of the Police, on notice being given, the Captain of Police shall forthwith proceed to the scene of riot, with the whole of the Police off duty, or any part thereof, and be vigilant in suppressing the same.

§ 16. A room shall be provided at each Police Court, for the deposit and preservation of property brought to said Court. One of the Clerks of said Court, under the direction of the Magistrates, shall be charged with the safe keeping of said property.

§ 17. The Mayor shall detail from the Policemen a sufficient number to attend upon the Police Courts, serve the process of said Courts, and to attend upon other Courts of the City.

Article II.

Of Chief of Police.

§ 1. The offices of Inspector of Hacks, Omnibuses, Cabs, and Public Porters, Inspector and Deputy Inspector of Stages, Inspector of Carts, Keepers of Lands and Places, are hereby abolished; and all the duties performed by said Officers, shall be performed by the Chief of Police, aided and assisted by the Captains of Police, Assistant Captains of Police, and by the Policemen, in pursuance of the rules and regulations of the Mayor, in accordance with the Laws of the State and the ordinances of the Common Council.

§ 2. The Chief of Police in and for the City and County of New-York, shall possess the powers of a Special Justice of the Police Court, to entertain complaints in all cases where crimes have been committed; to issue a precept for the arrest of the person charged with having committed a crime, and to commit the person arrested for examination, such examination to be taken by officers now authorized to take such examinations; and in all such cases shall proceed in the same manner, and be governed by all laws relating to Police Justices in like cases; and shall also possess all the powers now possessed by Marshals appointed by the Mayor of the City of New-York; he shall (subordinate to the Mayor) be the chief executive of the Police Department; he shall obey, and cause the Police Department under him to obey the rules and regulations prescribed by the Mayor, in accordance with the laws of the United States, of this state, and the ordinances of the Common Council; he shall repair to the scenes of fires and riots, and take command of the Police present, and may direct any, or all of the Police of the City of New-York, to any place where their services may be deemed necessary.

Should said complaint be frivolous or malicious and untrue, the Magistrate may charge to the complainant, and receive from him all the costs and fees now authorized in such proceedings, which costs and fees shall be paid to the Clerks, who shall monthly pay all such fees into the City Treasury, accompanying such payment with an affidavit or affirmation, that the sums so paid, are all the fees received by them, for any matter or cause specified in this section.

§ 4. In the City and County of New-York, except by the first and two Associate Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, there shall be no costs or fees charged or received upon any proceedings upon writs of habeas corpus, either by the Judge or Commissioner granting them, or by the Officer serving them, or the Jailer obeying their orders; and the Judge, before whom the matter shall be heard, shall, if the case be bailable, and the amount of bail shall have been fixed by the Committing Magistrate, only determine whether the party is lawfully committed, or is legally chargeable with the offence imputed, and shall not adjudicate upon the question of bail. The amount of bail ordered by the Committing Magistrate, shall in such cases only, be altered by a Court having jurisdiction of the offence for which the prisoner was committed; and any Officer violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to the pains and penalties for such offence; the First Judge and Assistant Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in and for the City of New-York, may charge the fees now allowed by law in such cases.

FIRE DEPARTMENT FUND.

TRUSTEES' REPORT FOR 1849.

THE TRUSTEES having entrusted to them the management and disposition of the Charitable Fund of the Fire Department, respectfully submit herewith a statement of the condition of the finances, and of the result of their labors during the past year. In the first place, attention is called to the fact that the Treasurer reports last year a balance in the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank standing to the credit of the Fire Department Fund of five hundred and thirty dollars and fourteen cents; since which period he has received the sum of eleven thousand five hundred and fifty-seven dollars and ninety-five cents, making in the aggregate, twelve thousand eighty-eight dollars and nine cents; out of which sum there have been expended in various ways, for about one hundred tons of coal, eight hundred pairs of shoes, and for widows' pensions and special donations, and for funeral expenses, &c., &c., the sum of ten thousand dollars and twenty-four cents, leaving a balance deposited in Bank, of two thousand eighty-seven dollars and eighty-five cents.

The whole amount of the Permanent Fund of the Department, with the exception of two hundred and fifty dollars in Bank Stock, is vested in bonds and mortgages on good productive real estate in this city, and bears interest at seven per cent. per annum. The Permanent Fund is now thirty-nine thousand two hundred and fifteen dollars and twenty-five cents, which is invested as follows, viz.: Loaned on bond and mortgage, thirty-eight thousand nine hundred and sixty-five dollars and twenty-five cents, and two hundred and fifty dollars in Manhattan Bank Stock. In the Permanent Fund are invested, for the benefit of the widow and orphans of David Raymer, six hundred and thirty-five dollars, for the widow and orphans of James S. Wells, one thousand dollars, and for the widow and orphans of George Kerr, two thousand dollars, which amounts have been subscribed by benevolent individuals, associations, and the Common Council of this city, for their exclusive benefit during their widowhood and minority of the children, but eventually reverts to the Permanent Fund of the Department. At present the Trustees pay to them the interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, which amounts deducted, leaves the actual Fund of the Department thirty-five thousand five hundred and eighty dollars and twenty-five cents. During the past year the Trustees have had the most urgent demands made upon them for assistance; the prevalence of that awful scourge which ravaged our city, increased the number of applications for relief, which induced heavy expenditures during the entire summer. The sick required attention—the dead to be buried, and the widow and the orphan to be provided for. Yet the Trustees, although surrounded by the sick and the dying, gave their personal attention to the wants of the needy and the distressed, besides decently interring the remains of the unfortunate victims of the destroyer. The expenditures for the past year, therefore, have been very heavy, and no addition could be made to the Permanent Fund, the whole income of the Department being required to meet its current expenses.

The Trustees congratulate the Department upon the successful termination of the duties of the Committee appointed by the Representatives at their meeting in September, 1848, to apply to the Legislature for the passage of a law requiring the Foreign Insurance Companies, having agencies in this city, to pay a certain per centage of their profits to the Department to sustain its charity. The gentlemen composing that Committee proceeded to Albany during the last Session of the Legislature, and succeeded in securing the passage of the Law. It was a just and proper measure, and its establishment secures to the Department a sure and permanent revenue, which will most effectually aid the Trustees in extending the usefulness of their Institution. The sick fireman, his widow and orphan children, will be the more surely provided for. By the provisions of the law, the Insurance Companies upon whom the tax is levied, are required to deposit with the Treasurer of the Department satisfactory bonds for its faithful payment: this has been done in nearly every instance, the Companies having promptly complied with the requirements of the Statute. Another good law passed by the Legislature, is that constituting the Assistant Engineers a Board of Fire Wardens, to guard and protect the City against the erection of dangerous buildings. The adoption of this wise law, while it affords adequate protection to the lives of the members of the Fire Department when in the performance of their dangerous duties, at the same time gives more perfect security to our citizens in the protection of life and property. It has now been in force since the first of June last, and has thus far worked admirably, and promises the most excellent results. A measure so well calculated to inspire confidence had been long needed, and by taking the performance of the duty of Fire Wardens from the Star Police, and transferring it to those so closely connected with the Fire Department as the Assistant Engineers, affords a sufficient guaranty that the duty will be faithfully and rigidly discharged. The new Wardens have already accomplished a good deal—many unsafe buildings, in course of erection, have been checked, and the owners compelled to make them conform to the law; other parties persisting in the violation have been prosecuted;—gunpowder has been seized while being clandestinely brought into the city, and other equally dangerous practices, of which the Wardens have cognizance, have been prevented, and those engaged in such practices promptly reported to the Board of Trustees.

The Trustees take occasion also to refer to the liberal expression of regard evinced to the Firemen of the city by their distinguished fellow-citizen, Myndert Van Schaick, Esq., in presenting to the Department two free scholarships in the New-York University. A more appropriate selection of an institution of learning for the students, or a more enlightened and liberal expression of regard, could not have been given; and the Trustees do not doubt that the students who are to enjoy the privilege secured to them, will not only reflect credit upon themselves, but upon the Department they will represent. The suit of Jeremiah B. Taylor has not been decided. At the Annual Meeting it will be necessary to elect three Trustees for three years each, and one Trustee to serve during the unexpired term for which Mr. Dodge was elected. The Trustees whose terms expire are Messrs. John B. Peck, James Kelly, and Samuel Barstow.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN COGER, JR., President.

JAMES KELLY, Secretary.

* NOTE.—In March, 1815, Mr. Clinton was removed by the Council of Appointment, and John Ferguson, Esq., appointed Mayor. Mr. Ferguson then being Naval Officer of the Customs, was required by the President to state which of the two offices he would hold. By the advice of friends he resigned the Mayoralty in June following, when the Council appointed Jacob Radcliffe, Esq., in his place. Mr. Ferguson held the Naval Office to the time of his death, in September, 1832. There being no minutes of this change in the books of the Common Council, the above is furnished for the Compiler by a friend.

CROTON AQUEDUCT.

The Compiler is indebted to the President of the Croton Board and the Commissioner of said Board, for the following interesting statements in relation to the Croton Aqueduct, &c. :—

The following Map, showing the sources and course of the Croton River, is copied from "Schranke's Description of the New-York Croton Aqueduct."

At the point where the Aqueduct receives the water at the Dam, the elevation of the bottom of the water-way is 153 feet above mean-tide in the Hudson river, and the top-water line in the Distributing Reservoir at Forty-Second-street is 115 feet.

This great elevation is a remarkable feature in the peculiar adaptation of the Croton River to the purposes to which science and art have subjected it, but it is not the only one ;—the Department, in their Report to the Common Council, made on the 31st of December last, say, that "having its sources in many secluded lakes, and copious springs situated in a mountainous, and comparatively unfrequented region, intersected by numerous valleys, dark ravines, and steep declivities,—resting upon a geological formation consisting principally of gneiss rock, the soil can never support other than a scattered agricultural and pastoral population ;—thus assuring us that in all time to come it will continue to pour forth its crystal waters in undiminished volume and purity. These lakes are readily susceptible, at a small outlay, of being converted into natural reservoirs, and furnish the means of accumulating thousands of millions of gallons of water, to be used as the exigencies of coming centuries may require."

The Croton River, its Formation and Sources.

The Croton River, which supplies the City of New-York with an inexhaustible stream of pure water, rises in Putnam County, the springs at the head of which form three branches known as the East, Middle and West Branches of the Croton ; the first of which has its supply increased by the overflow of creans, stones, and peach ponds, the superficial areas of which are about five hundred acres ; the middle branch is supplied almost solely by the spring at its source, while the western concentrates the surplus from White's, Barrel's, Brown's, Cole's, Lockland, Court-House, Crosby and Crane's Ponds, the united area of which is about eight hundred and seventy acres. These branches unite their supply a little south of Owentown, near the boundary line between Putnam and Westchester Counties, forming the Croton River, which, at Mechanicsville, receives by Cross and Beaver Dam rivers the overflow supplies from Long Pond, four miles north of Bedford, and which has an area of eight hundred acres. About a mile below Mechanicsville the Croton is further reinforced by the Muscoot River, with the supplies of Lake Mahopac, Kirk, Berry and Yorktown Ponds, the united areas of which is estimated at fifteen hundred acres. The supply is therefore from natural formed lakes covering a surface of over thirty-six hundred acres, each of which may be made into store-houses or reservoirs, for an additional supply in time of need. The supplies to these ponds and branches is almost exclusively from the elevated land of Westchester and Putnam Counties, furnished by pure springs, which are characteristic of granite formations, surrounded by cleared upland shores, generally cultivated as grazing farms; the whole presenting an aspect of extraordinary cleanliness. The water is perfectly soft and clear, and fed by such springs, can scarcely be otherwise than pure. The quantity of saline matter, according to the analysis of Chilton, does not exceed two-and-eight-tenths of grains in the gallon.

The Lake.

Having thus disposed of the sources of supply, we, at five miles below the confluence of the Muscote, arrive at the Lake or Reservoir, which is irregular in shape, and so formed by the variations in the banks of the river and the obstruction to the channel, by the Dam erected at the head of the works. The Lake is four miles in length, and covers an area of four hundred acres, varying in depth from one to fifty feet, and holding an available supply of five hundred millions of gallons above the level, which will allow the Aqueduct to discharge thirty-five millions of gallons per day. About two miles above the Dam, the Lake is crossed by Pine's Bridge, at a location and crossing well-known as such in the revolutionary history of the County. The beauty of this sheet of water strikes every visitor with pleasure, while the cleanliness of the banks reflect credit on the keeper of this portion of the works, as well as on the precautionary measures, adopted by the projectors of this magnificent undertaking, to preserve the banks from the encroachments of the adjoining owners, or the evils to be apprehended from the designs of the vicious.

The Dam.

This structure, on the stability of which, perhaps, more depends, than on any other part of the work, is built of interlocked wood and stone-work, of sufficient strength to withstand the pressure of the immense body of water in the Lake, rises to the height of forty feet above the rocky bed of the river, which at this point is two hundred and eighty feet wide. The face of the Dam, built of cut granite, is in two sections or parts, the east of which is ninety feet wide, having a fall of forty feet; the western division has a fall of the same height, with a width of one hundred and eighty feet, over a beautifully formed facing of an ogee shape. Between the divisions of this structure, a pier forms the foundation for the gate-house and sluice-way for relieving the structure of its pressure from the Lake, or for the discharge of the waters during the repairs which may be required on the Dam, or the aprons of hewn timber which receive the water after the overflow. The gate-house is reached by a bridge from the eastern shore, running parallel with the Dam immediately over the lip. The waters after leaving the aprons, overflow a gravelled bed for about two hundred feet, at the extremity of which they are again broken by a brush dam composed of hemlock logs, after passing which the river flows on in its natural channel until it reaches the Hudson, at about six miles from this point. Over the brush dam, and about three hundred feet below the face of the main structure, a bridge has been erected for the convenience of travellers, and from a position on which, the fall over the Dam is received with the most facility and to the greatest advantage—the water, in its passage over the Dam, presenting a beautiful lacework-like appearance, and eliciting the admiration of the visitor. By far the greater and most difficult part of this structure is hidden from the view, but sufficient will be found in this part of the work to arrest the attention of the tourist, and will repay the admirer of the beautiful in art and nature, for his trouble in reaching this sequestered spot.

THE COMPILER IS INDEBTED TO THE POLITENESS OF DOCTOR A. F. VACHE, FOR THE FOLLOWING COPY OF A LETTER, IN ANSWER TO A COMMUNICATION FROM THE HON. C. D. ROBINSON, CHAIRMAN OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE ON MEDICAL SOCIETIES AND COLLEGES, IN SENATE, ALBANY, IN RELATION TO THE ORIGIN, PROGRESS, CAUSE AND TREATMENT OF CHOLERA, ETC. :---

NEW-YORK, February 23d, 1850.

SIR:—To your letter in relation to “the origin, progress, cause, and treatment of Cholera, together with what alteration or revision in existing laws, and what new sanitary regulations my experience in the late epidemics may have suggested to my mind as necessary to prevent its diffusion,” I can only make a very limited reply. To do otherwise, with so comprehensive a subject, would occupy volumes of manuscript, considerable time for research, and more labor than my professional duties will allow.

The history of Cholera, in which I shall include its progress, unequivocally traces its origin to Asia. It is noticed by Hippocrates, who lived several centuries before the Christian era, and by others, not many years subsequent to that event. It prevailed in London, in 1669 and in 1676, and in Paris, in 1730 and in 1780. In 1762, it is said to have destroyed, in Upper Hindostan, thirty thousand natives and eight hundred Europeans, and from these dates to the present day, it has been with great fatality one of the endemical diseases of India, clearly described by talented and unimpeachable authors.

It was not, however, until 1817, when with other ravages throughout Hindostan, it decimated the army under the command of the Marquis of Hastings, encamped on the banks of the Indus, that it assumed a positive epidemical form, and commenced its fearful and irresistible migration to the East, the South, the West and the North. To trace it on the Eastern Continent, from place to place and from period to period, as recorded by different writers, would scarcely come within the space allotted to a communication like the present, and I therefore shall confine any further observation, to the invasion by it of this hemisphere, with a short detail of the course it pursued as it occasionally travelled from district to district.

The first appearance of Cholera on this continent was in Quebec, Lower Canada, on the 8th of June, 1832; it reached Montreal on the 10th; New-York on the 24th;* Albany on the 3d of July; Rochester on the 12th; Troy on the 16th; Flatbush and Gravesend, L. I., on the 15th; States Prison, (Sing Sing,) on the 17th; Philadelphia on the 5th; Baltimore on the 22d of August, and the City of Washington on the 28th. It also prevailed in the large towns on the river St. Lawrence, and its tributary streams. It exhibited itself at Kamouraska; La Prairie; St. Johns; Buffalo; La Chine; Caughnawaga; Coteau de Lac; Chateaugay; Cornwell; St. Regis; Prescott; Ogdensburgh; Brookville; Kingston; York, Chambly; Plattsburgh, and Three Rivers. It visited Baltimore; Richmond; Norfolk; Edenton; Cincinnati; New-Orleans; and various portions of the Southern States. To the East, a limited number of cases occurred in New-Haven; Newport; Providence, and Boston. At Newport, it was unquestionably brought from the city of New-York.

During the time thousands were attacked. The average mortality was about fifty per cent., and the general duration of the epidemic at the various localities between two and four months. The deaths in this city were 3,513.

In this connection, it is important to note, that the brig Carricks arrived from Europe on the 3d of June, at the Quarantine Ground, Gross Island, thirty-nine miles below Quebec, with the loss at sea of thirty-nine passengers out of one hundred and thirty-three, by a disease which subsequent events established to be the one under consideration.

The two first cases at Quebec and Montreal, were immigrants landed from the steamboat Voyageur, which plied between the two places, and which was employed to convey persons from emigrant vessels anchored in the river.

In 1833, the disease commenced in February, at Havana and Matanzas, and prevailed for several months, with great severity; the deaths in the former place reached upwards of ten thousand in a population of about one hundred thousand, including in the melancholy catalogue, with other distinguished men, the American Consul, William Shaler, Esquire, and the acting Bishop, Pedro Valera Y Ximenes.

In June and August, it invaded Tampico; Campeachy; Vera Cruz, and the City of Mexico. In Central America, it attacked the army and destroyed large numbers of the officers and men.

In the United States, at the South, it appeared at Apalachicola, and Amelia Island, on the coast of Florida. At Mobile; Wilcox County; Montgomery; Tuscaloosa; Williams Port, &c., in Alabama. At Vicksburgh; Natchez; Claiborn; Jackson; Potage des Sioux, &c., in Mississippi. At New-Orleans; St. Martinsville; Thibodeauville; Franklin; Baton Rouge; Alexandria; Contrell, &c., in Louisiana, and at Brazoria, &c., in Texas.

In the Western States, it was at Helena; Little Rock, &c., in Arkansas; At Nashville; Pulaski; Memphis; Simsonville; Shelbyville; Effingham. Beach Grove, &c., in Tennessee. At Maysville; Flemingsburgh; Georgetown; Lawrenceburgh; Lexington; Lancaster; Paris; Blue Licks; Millersburg; Frankfort; Bardstown; Cynthiana; Greene County; Mt. Vernon; Danville ; Jacksonville, &c., in Kentucky. At Alton ; Carrollton ; Quincy ; Rushville ; Galena, &c., in Illinois. At Williams Port ; Salem, &c., in Indiana. At Cincinnati ; Steubenville ; Bridgeport ; Belmont County ; Zanesville ; Jackson ; Gallipolis ; Seneca ; Chillicothe ; Richmond ; Fulton ; Bayton ; Lebanon ; Columbus, &c., in Ohio. At Alleghany ; Pittsburgh ; Brownsville ; Claysville, &c., in Pennsylvania ; and at Hagerstown, &c., in Maryland. It also appeared at Wheeling ; Fredericksburgh ; Charleston, &c., in the northern parts of Virginia.

*Late in June, the ship Henry IV. arrived at quarantine, having the Cholera on board; but I have not been able to obtain the particulars, owing to the Register being mislaid for that year. May the disease not have been derived from that source in lieu of the Canadas, and may it not explain the singularity of the appearance of it in New-York, previous to the intervening cities and towns?

In 1834, it again made its first visit at Quebec and Montreal, and from thence spread to the country parishes throughout the whole course of the St. Lawrence. It prevailed severely at La Chine ; Kingston ; Prescott ; Ogdensburgh, in this state, opposite Prescott ; at Toronto, and amongst the villages on the north side of Lake Ontario. The village of Galt, U.C., was nearly depopulated. In Nova Scotia, it was very violent at Halifax, and extended to St. John's.

In the State of New-York, it exhibited itself in the villages on the south side of Lake Erie ; at Buffalo ; Rochester ; Salina ; Albany ; Poughkeepsie ; New-York ; Brooklyn, L. I. ; Staten Island, &c. The deaths in the City of New-York were 971.

In New-Jersey, at Bergen Hill, and at Newark. In Pennsylvania, at Williamsport ; on the line of the Schuylkill Canal ; Port Carbon ; Beaver, and Washington County. In Maryland, there were a few cases at Baltimore, and three or four in the District of Columbia. In Virginia, at Wheeling ; Richmond, and Petersburg. In Ohio, at Cincinnati ; Butler County ; the Miami country, and the townships of Columbia, Anderson, and Fulton ; at Huron ; Lower Sandusky, and Cleaveland. In Michigan, at Detroit. In Kentucky, at Mills Point ; the mouth of Sandy River, and Princeton. In Mississippi, at Rushton. In Illinois, at Luzerne, and Pekin. In Texas, at Austins' and Powers' Colonies ; in the towns of Labride and Warlaugh, and as far as the river Lavacca. In Florida, it was at Amelia Island, and at Pensacola, where it was introduced by the United States ship Falmouth. In Georgia, it was at several places on the Savannah and Ogeechee rivers. It also made its appearance at St. Jago, Island of Cuba.

In 1835, in Tennessee, there were cases at Nashville ; Murfreesborough ; Franklin ; north side of Duck River ; in the neighborhood of Jefferson ; Williamsport ; Memphis ; in the neighborhood of Jackson, and at several towns and on board of the boats, on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. It also continued on the Savannah and Ogeechee rivers, and prevailed to some extent on the Rio Grande.

In 1836, it was still at Havana, I. C., and for the first time appeared at Charleston, S. C., between which places there was constant commercial intercourse. During the previous years, it had not approached the last named city, nearer than Edenton on the north, Savannah River on the south, and Folly Island off the mouth of the harbor, where it was undeniably attributed to the brig Amelia, lost on the 31st October, 1832, bound from New-York to New-Orleans, and on board of which were cases of the disease. From the wreck, and the passengers with their effects landed from that vessel, it immediately extended to the few negroes inhabiting the island ; to the men employed in saving the cargo ; to the physicians and nurses sent to attend the sick, and to the City Guard detailed to enforce the quarantine. The mortality was extreme. It also lingered on the Mississippi, but did not assume an epidemic character.

With the epidemic of 1848 and 1849, every person is familiar. To continue, however, in chronological order the recurrence of this destructive disease, it becomes necessary to devote a page or more to the sad reminiscences of those years.

On that occasion, the first introduction of the malady was in the port of New-York, at the quarantine ground, Staten Island, by the Packet ship New-York. She sailed from Havre, then healthy, on the 9th of November, with three hundred and eighty-five French and German steerage passengers, twenty-one cabin, and a crew of thirty men. According to the statement of the commander, Captain Lines, all hands remained well until the sixteenth day out, and the vessel was in lat. 42°, long. 61°, Sable Island bearing about 140 miles, S. S. W., when, owing to the coldness of the weather, there was a general overhauling of chests in search of warm clothing, and the first cases occurred. At the time of her arrival on Friday night, December 1st, seven of the steerage passengers had been buried at sea, and on the 2d and 3d, eleven were landed sick at the Lazaretto, and put in the hospitals on the hills. Seven of them died. The remainder, in apparent health, were ordered on shore, and were lodged in the "Public Stores," belonging to the United States. From these buildings the disease spread to the hospitals, and prevailed in both until the 28th of the month. In that time, upwards of one hundred were attacked. The mortality was about one-half. It is alleged, and probably with truth, that several of the passengers were indirectly from Bremen, where cholera prevailed.

In April, the disease reappeared in the stores; and in May, in the hospitals. From the 18th of April, to the 15th of August, there were one hundred and ten deaths. During that period, forty-one persons with Cholera were received from the shipping. Several fatal cases also occurred on different parts of the Island.

In the early part of December, two cases exhibited themselves in the city. The first was an individual from quarantine; the other was a person who had occupied the same room in the boarding-house. Both were fatal.

With these exceptions, the first persons attacked in New-York, was on the 11th of May, 1849. It occurred in Orange-street, and was soon followed by six others who resided in the same premises. From that point, the disease gradually spread from ward to ward, and continued with more or less intensity until the last of September. The number of deaths was 5,161. The nearest vicinity of the pestilence was the quarantine, between which and the city there was constant intercourse by the residents of each place; and, in most instances, the well passengers from sickly vessels were permitted to disembark at the wharves with their unventilated baggage. If the infection was not ascribable to those causes, it could not be traced to any other.

In Brooklyn, L. I., it manifested itself about the 26th of May. In Williamsburgh, L. I., on the 29th. In Jamaica, L. I., on the 4th of June, and about the same period at Bergen and Newark, N. J.

It prevailed at Albany; Troy; on the line of the Erie Canal; in Chicago, and Buffalo. In Montreal, the deaths were 499; in Quebec, to the 23d of August, 943, and in Toronto, to the 9th of the same month, 380.

At Boston, Mass., the Bark Argyle arrived on the 4th of June, from Scotland, with Cholera on board, and cases are said to have occurred in that city from that time. From the 29th of June to the 13th of October, however, the deaths were 602. In several other cities and villages of New-England the disease prevailed.

In Philadelphia, eight cases were announced on the 22d of May. The number of deaths accurately reported from the 2d of June to the 22d of September, was 1022.

In Baltimore, it was reported on 22d; in Norfolk, Va., on the 29th, and in Richmond, Va., on the 30th of May, the Legislature of which adjourned to Fauquier Springs.

At New-Orleans, like at Staten Island, the Cholera appeared in December, and under similar circumstances. The two first cases sent to the Charity Hospital, were from the ship Swanton, from Havre, on board of which the disease manifested itself when about two weeks from port. Thirteen bodies had been thrown overboard. Her passengers were also composed of French and Germans, and the latter were recently from their own country. From that vessel, it spread to the shipping, to the river boats, and over the city. The number of deaths from the 11th of December to the 7th of February, was nearly twelve hundred, when the Board of Health pronounced the epidemic at an end, and ceased to report.

The disease visited Vicksburg; Cincinnati, and several other places. On the 8th of January it was at Memphis, and on the 17th at St. Louis. It also appeared at Mobile, and in a severe form in Texas. At Fort Lawson, forty deaths occurred in one night amongst the troops.

Subsequently, the malady resumed its fearful strides in New-Orleans, and in Cincinnati, and continued for several months. It prevailed throughout the valley of the Mississippi with sad havoc on the plantations, and extended itself to Indiana and Illinois. At St. Louis, its duration and violence was unsurpassed on this continent, and in Texas, it raged with unabated and destructive fury.

Amongst the victims of this unrelenting foe to the human race, were the chivalrous Worth—the brave Duncan—the gallant Yates—and the veteran Gaines. Invulnerable to the balls of an enemy while leading their victorious columns on the field of battle, they were suddenly and remorselessly stricken to the earth while receiving the plaudits of a grateful country. A nation's tears bedewed their graves!

At present, it is on Ward's Island—the home for destitute invalid and sick immigrants. The proximity of that institution to the City of New-York; the recurrence of Cholera in this Country with the return of it to Europe, and the probability of the spread of it from those sources, demand the prompt adoption of every available means to prevent so serious a catastrophe. It has also commenced its march in Louisiana, and will doubtless again overrun the valley of the Mississippi, and the shores of the Ohio.

The cause that produces cholera is not known. By some, it is said to be atmospheric; by others, meteoric; terruic—electric—animaculæ. To reiterate the speculations on the subject would be more curious than useful. Each writer has imagined the premise from which the fact is assumed, and the supposed fact has invariably been made to conform to the fancied premise. That it is a specific poison, it would be difficult to confute. Its effects on the human system, unlike any thing else ever beheld, seems conclusive evidence of the correctness of the problem.

The treatment of cholera has been as various as the conceptions of men on the nature of the disease. More obscure than any other malady presented to the consideration of the profession, each member of it seems to have framed his ideas agreeably to the hypothesis derived from his opportunity to investigate, and his ability to judge. As one of the number, I pursued the same course, and while I can with propriety avoid any reference to the views of others, I cannot well refuse, on such an occasion, to furnish you with the conclusions I reached, based on experience at the bed-side, during the epidemics in this city of 1832, 1834 and 1849, although, if intended for publication, more adapted to the columns of a medical journal.

In my opinion, many of the phenomena, and the immediate causes of death in cholera, are to be attributed to the disintegrated condition of the blood from the direct loss of serum poured out of the capillary vessels into the alimentary canal, and subsequently ejected, in most instances, from the body. Chemical analysis of the discharges has abundantly established the fact, and venous saline injection, by its instantaneous effects on the circulation, has synthetically confirmed the truth of the proposition. The first indication, therefore, is to suppress the loss of that fluid, in order to retain, as long as possible, sufficient vital energy for the action of other remedies on the system. For this purpose, astringents are the only agents. Various have been recommended, and I have fairly tested the efficacy of each. To the vegetable combinations, I gave a decided preference, and from tannin in five grain doses, diffused in half a wine glass of water, I derived the most satisfactory results. Ice, so generally used, produces similar effects. Independent of alleviating the intolerable thirst, its temperature contracts the muscular tissue of the prima viæ, and closes, in proportionate degree, the mouths of the discerning vessels.

Next, and equal in importance, is the necessity to incite the liver to action, as speedily as it can be accomplished by the administration of cathartic medicines. With me, twenty grains of calomel, blended with one grain of powdered opium, and a grain of powdered camphor, succeeded the best.

After a satisfactory trial of many others, in those remedies I placed the utmost reliance. If rejected they were repeated, for when retained by the stomach, and bilious evacuations were obtained from the bowels, little else remained to be achieved, in most instances, but to guard against relapse by cautious diet during the period of convalescence. When other diseases supervened, they were treated in accordance with the type, the condition, and habits of the patient.

External applications I looked upon as mere auxiliaries. As such of some importance; but in themselves, of very little value. For profuse perspiration, no agents equalled in my practice the free application in India rubber bags of very cold water to the skin; and for cramps, none exceeded the use of tourniquets, without the strap-pad, sufficiently tight to interrupt the superficial venous circulation in the limbs. Iced "Congress Spring" water was a grateful drink, and valuable from its saline and alkaline properties.

The above remarks, it must be understood, are alone applicable to Cholera, when it presents unmistakeable evidence of its existence, by the more or less alteration of the countenance; the clammy moistness of the skin; the slowness and feebleness of the pulse; the huskiness of the voice; the coldness of the tongue; the corrugation and lividness of the hands and feet; the spasmodic action of the muscles of the abdomen and extremities, and the "rice water" discharges from the stomach or bowels.

In the earlier stage, with simple diarrhœa, and excessive lassitude, diffusible stimuli composed of laudanum, spirits of hartshorn, essence of cloves and peppermint, tincture of cayenne pepper, and spirits of camphor, followed by calomel, if necessary, are all, in a large majority of cases, that is requisite to put a speedy termination to the attack.

At the several times that the "Health Laws" of the State underwent revision by the Legislature, no reference was had to Cholera unless in 1832, when a special act was passed to meet the occasion, and which expired, if I understand Section 10 correctly, by its own limitation, with the year 1833.

On reading over, however, the law as it appears to stand, for it is very difficult to say what portions have been repealed by the transfer of the "Marine Hospital" to the Commissioners of Emigration, it seems to me that the alteration of a few words and the addition of a few sections, are all that is required to render it more protective without being additionally oppressive.

With this view, I have marked in the annexed copy of the statute, as published by the Commissioners of Health in 1846, the amendments I suggest.

To those who examine the various sections for the first time, they will doubtless appear to confer power on individuals at variance with the spirit of Republican Governments; but when the despotism of law is measured by the despotism of disease, and the strength of the one is compared with the weakness of the other, it will be conceded, that personal considerations are of minor importance when placed in opposition to the inestimable blessings of health.

I also advise the separation of the quarantine from the institution provided for the protection of the immigrant. Between an establishment for the care of individuals in health, and with ailments harmless to others, and a lazaretto for the reception and detention of persons with pestilential and contagious maladies that endanger the lives of a community, it is difficult to discover any affinity, or to adopt any rational idea why the connection should exist. As it is, singular as it may appear, the Board of Health have control over the local sanitary laws of the county, with the exception of the important appointment of Health Wardens, who are selected by the Chief of Police, while the Commissioners of Emigration have possession of the hospitals and grounds on Staten Island, from whence the safety of the City of New-York, from imported disease, is to be derived. With such an extraordinary admixture of departments and divisions of powers and responsibilities, the results, it seems to me, cannot fail to be disastrous in its consequences to the public.

In my judgment the Marine Hospital, in order to fulfil the intentions of its creation, should be as the wise heads and pure hearts, governed by the experience of years, originally made it—a direct unencumbered branch of the Medical Police of the State, under the immediate jurisdiction of the authorities of the city and the Commissioners of Health, who are alone competent, from position, to meet the exigencies that momentarily arise. How to accomplish that object, in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, is the province of a lawyer, not of a physician to explain.

The mountain heretofore raised in relation to economy, or rather whether epsom salts can be purchased for one or two cents a dose, never can be worth the notice of enlightened men, especially when the health of a population comprising millions is under consideration.

Before leaving this branch of the subject, I deem it a duty to recommend the removal of the quarantine from its present location to a more distant site, if one can be procured, that shall afford a harbor for the secure anchorage of vessels, and sufficient accommodation for the safe detention and purification of passengers and their baggage when circumstances demand it. With any other disease than Cholera this perhaps would not be immediately necessary; but when the population of Staten Island—its proximity to the city—the constant unavoidable commingling of the inhabitants with each other, and the facility and rapidity with which the virus is conveyed, are taken into consideration, the conclusion is self-evident, that much greater security must arise from a more isolated and better ventilated position.

When this is done, and the law as amended in 1846, with trifling alterations, is restored to the statute book, and published in one act, that it may be understood, all, probably, will have been practically obtained by the authorities of the State, that is within the power of the wisest legislation to devise, short of non-intercourse with infected countries, divided by seas of thousand of miles in extent.

The prophylactic measures adopted against the accession of cholera, it must be admitted, have hitherto been futile. Military and civic cordons of the strongest kind have been instituted, and quarantines of the most rigid character have been established without avail. Governed by special, though inscrutable laws of its own, its independent march over valleys, mountains, and oceans, regardless of climate or of wind, has defied the most energetic efforts of human wisdom to control. That the disease, however, is indigenous to India, no one can dispute, and that it radiated from that point over the habitable globe, few will deny. Be the cause that produces it, therefore, what it may, there cannot be a doubt that it is transmittable from hamlet to village—from town to city—from country to country—and from continent to continent. Take for example, the invasion of Quebec and Folly Island in 1832, and who will question that the poison did not emanate from the brigs Carricks and Amelia, and the baggage of their infected passengers and crews? Look at the ship New-York, at Staten Island, in 1848, and who will seek any other source to explain from whence the peste was derived? Remember the ship Swanton, in the same month and year, at New-Orleans; the bark Argyle, at Boston, in 1849, and the myriads of steamboats on the northern and western rivers, and what greater proof can be required to establish that from those nuclei the malaria was disseminated in North America, dealing misfortune and death from one extremity of it to the other?

It has been observed, that Cholera primarily selected the vitiated and depraved members of society, and sought its victims to a greater extent in low grounds and filthy localities. However true that may be, it is very questionable if the result arose from any other cause than the greater susceptibility of that class to receive the impression of a poison. If impaired health, personal degradation, crowded dwellings, abject penury, and an atmosphere loaded with animal and vegetable putrefaction, were the only pre-requisites for an attack of the disease, the lapse of time between the years 1834 and 1849 could not have occurred in the City of New-York, especially in the "Five Points." An interval of fifteen years, under precisely the same local circumstances, surely requires some other explanation to account for the presence or absence of the epidemic.

That the malignity of the disease, however, may be mitigated by judicious local regulations, and the due observance of personal habits, cannot be contradicted. To accomplish that object, the most reliable means are the purification of the streets, yards, privies, gutters and sewers by the removal of all offensive matter, and the free use of water and other agents; cleanliness of person; strict precaution against transitions from heat to cold; regularity in the mode of living; avoidance of indigestible food, and excess in the use of malt or alcoholic drinks; due regard to change of clothing with alternations of weather; pecuniary and other aid to the indigent; the organization of hospitals for speedy reception of the sick, and of dispensaries for prompt advice and gratuitous distribution of medicines; the timely appointment of capable ward physicians to visit those who are unable to pay for professional services, and an admonition to the public to discard all nostrums and reject all preventive remedies.

With proper attention to these recommendations, the predisposition to the disease may, at least, be allayed, and the violence of its assaults greatly subdued; but in the practice of them, it is equally necessary to avoid sudden and decided changes in the habits of individuals, for no fact can be better established than the injurious tendency of immediate revolutions in the nervous system during the prevalence of an epidemic, and no greater exciting cause can be induced for the attack of thousands with the malady who otherwise might escape.

The burial of the dead in deep dug graves is preferable to vaults. The decomposition of the body under ground is far less objectionable than in tombs, the air of which, when opened from time to time, is diffused through the atmosphere, and cannot fail to have a deleterious effect on those within its influence.

Whether Cholera is contagious or non-contagious, is difficult to determine, if personal communicability alone be understood by the words. The evidence presented by the advocates of either side is so evenly balanced, that time alone can distinguish the right from the wrong. My own observation has been confined to localities where it prevailed in an epidemic form, and where all persons were alike subjected to the impression of the general cause, in a greater or lesser degree, independent of any connection with the sick. For me, therefore, to express an opinion on so doubtful a point, under circumstances where it was impossible to distinguish from which source the disease was derived, would be to place myself in the conjectural school, with about equal claim to the correctness of my views.

In closing these remarks, sir, I avail myself of the opportunity to say, that I sincerely hope, that others with far greater knowledge may point out more positive and effective measures to protect the citizens of this otherwise healthy and prosperous country from the devastations of a scourge,—the terrific offspring of a far distant land.

I have the honor to remain, sir,

Your obedient servant,

ALEX. F. VACHE.

To the HON. C. D. ROBINSON,

Chairman of the Standing Com. Med. Soc. & Colls. in Senate, Albany.

NEW-YORK INSTITUTION FOR THE INSTRUCTION OF THE DEAF AND DUMB.

Situated on Fiftieth-street, near the Fourth Avenue,

At a distance of somewhat more than three and a half miles from the City Hall. The grounds occupied by the Institution extend from the Fourth to the Fifth Avenue, and from Fiftieth to near Forty-Eighth-street.

The Institution was incorporated by the Legislature of the State, April 15, 1817. The School, however, was not opened till May of the following year. For several years the School was kept in the old Alms-House, so called, in the Park, the boarding pupils living with their teachers, in hired houses, in the city. The foundation of the present main building was laid in October, 1827, the site having been given by the Corporation of the city. The building then erected, and occupied for the first time, in April, 1829, was one hundred and ten feet by sixty, and four stories high, including the basement. It has since been enlarged by repeated additions to more than double the capacity of the original edifice, and now presents a front of two hundred and ten feet on Fiftieth-street, the extreme depth of the wings being ninety feet. The building is of brick and stuccoed, appearing at a distance like white marble.

The management of the Institution is entrusted to the Board of Directors, twenty-five in number, elected annually by the Society. The President, Harvey P. Peet, LL. D., who has been connected with the Institution since 1831, has the general direction and control of its concerns, with the counsel and advice of the Executive Committee. Associated with him, in the intellectual department, are eleven Professors and Teachers. In the domestic department, are a Physician, Steward, Matron and Assistant, and, in the mechanical department, a Book-binder, Cabinet-maker, Tailor, Shoemaker and Gardener.

Five hours each day are devoted to school exercises, independent of the evening studies, and between three and four hours to the various trades. The daily exercises of the School are opened and closed with prayer; and religious services are held on the Sabbath, conducted by the President and Professors in rotation.

At the date of the last Annual Report (the Thirty-First) there were two hundred and twenty-two pupils under instruction, supported as follows:—one hundred and sixty by the State of New-York; nine by the State of New-Jersey; sixteen by the City of New-York; twenty-eight by their friends; one by the Commissioners of Emigration, and eight by the Institution.

It is the design of the Institution to educate the whole man—to develope and cultivate the powers of the body, mind, and heart. And it has been eminently successful. Nearly seven hundred individuals, some of them very unpromising specimens of humanity, have participated in its advantages, and gone forth with scarcely an exception qualified, in a good degree, to discharge the various duties of social life; capable of self-support, industrious, honest, happy, respected, and not a few animated by the hopes of a future life where physical infirmity shall be unknown.

The following is a list of the Directors of the Institution, and of those employed by them in the more immediate management of its concerns:—

NO. 1 BROADWAY.

THIS house, though not yet a century old, has become one of the monuments of the past. It was erected in 1760, by the Honorable Captain Kennedy, who, it is believed, received the land as part of the portion of his wife, the sister of the late John Watts. At the period of its erection the garden in the rear extended to the Hudson, so that the shores of New-Jersey and the Bay were in full view from its windows.

Captain Kennedy returned to England prior to the Revolution, and became Earl of Cassilis, and this house went to his youngest son, Robert Kennedy, from whom it passed to the late Nathaniel Prime. During the war of the Revolution it was occupied by Sir Guy Carleton and other British Commanders, but not, as has been supposed, by Washington, unless for a short period previous to the occupation of New-York by the British.

Mr. Sears, one of the prominent Liberty Boys, lived in it subsequent to the Revolution. He was commonly called King Sears, and his daughters the Princesses, and was a man of wealth, who had taken an active part in opposition to the English. Subsequently it was taken by Mrs. Graham, for a girls' school, and either before or after this was known as the best boarding-house in the city, where all the distinguished travellers stayed. Talleyrand passed some time under its roof, during which period, though his abilities were admired, he was personally detested for the coldness and want of heart he exhibited in speaking of the misfortunes of his friends and countrymen. The drawing-room was probably the largest in the city, and in it the company frequenting the house habitually assembled. One cold day Talleyrand entered, wearing, as was then not unusual, buckskin breeches, and placed himself upon the hearth, with his back close to the fire. The great heat soon caused the leather to scorch and smoke, and the faces of those around exhibited the restraint of good breeding, struggling against mirth. Talleyrand's quick eye penetrated the mask without discovering the cause, until he seated himself, when his cry of pain drove away the ladies to conceal their merriment, and showed that however little feeling he might have for others he had some for himself.

From this house anxious eyes watched the destruction of the statue of George III., in the Bowling Green; and a few years afterwards, other eyes saw from its windows the last soldiers of that King passing forever from our shores. Still later, others looked sadly on the funeral of Fulton, who died in a house which had been built on what was once the garden. From its roof, at a more recent period, was seen with joy, the marriage of the lakes with the ocean—The increase of the city with the new wants of commerce, resulting from that happy union, will ere long cause this mansion to give place to other buildings; nor should we regret such changes when rendered necessary by the prosperity of the community. As the residence of the English noble, the British General, and the wealthy Republican, it was alike distinguished for its hospitality.

The foregoing sketch has been furnished through the politeness of the Messrs. Prime.

HIS SOJOURNS IN NEW-YORK IN OLDEN TIMES.

[Extracted from the Address delivered at the Printers' Banquet, January 17, 1850, by JOHN W. FRANCIS, M. D.]

I KNOW the craft to be enthusiastic for the glory of Franklin. It cannot be otherwise: he has stamped it with the impress of his mighty name, and his career of life is associated with the highest trophies of his country's renown, in her conflicts for freedom, in her deliberations on constitutional government, in her unparalleled march in knowledge, in her social characteristics, and in her national greatness. His labors, more than those of any other patriot, demonstrate how much one life may accomplish in many pursuits; his undivided vigor in whatever he undertook, gave him this supremacy. Such was his universality in the conduct of affairs, that the greatest problems in knowledge and the smallest matters in common life were equally cognizable by him. His political sagacity assigns him a place with the first of statesmen; his philosophical discoveries gave him a station in the front rank of original genius, and have bequeathed to mankind the materials for effecting results greater and more beneficial to the human race, than can be found associated with any other individual among the class of mortals. In whatever light we contemplate our Franklin, we cannot but be lost in admiration of his varied knowledge of matter and of mind: his own dexterous faculties were his schoolmaster. Unaided by any instructor, he accumulated knowledge for the guidance of man in the profoundest studies and in the humblest details of practical life.

Though reared in no Academy, his individual intellectuality gave creation to principles, by which academicians of every age, from their mere collegiate positions, might invest their own brows with the wreath of enduring renown.

From the cogitations of his own mind he unfolded the stores of wisdom, which have yielded new treasures and new reasonings to enlarge the science of both worlds.

There is another peculiarity which signalizes Franklin. Philosophy is our instructor in the matter. Ponder over the origin and progress of human knowledge. How hard, if not impracticable, is it often to determine who in the history of science was the original discoverer of principles now admitted to be of the surest application, and incontrovertible in their laws! How perplexed on some occasions we become, when striving to determine who was the actual inventor of problems now universally recognized as data from which legitimate science draws for aid! What fierce contentions have at times sprung up on conflicting statements of this character, even among men of the richest culture, and most courteous bearing one towards another! Examples to this effect may be found in all departments of inquiry. How have the mathematicians settled the special services of Newton and of Leibnitz? How acrimonious the medical discussions touching the claims of Servetus and of Harvey! How numerous have been the disquisitions held, how many the volumes published, to deprive the illustrious Swede of his proper merits as the expositor of the sexual system of the vegetable kingdom! What conflicts among the chemists has the gaseous philosophy created, as evinced in their endeavors to settle the merits of priority of discovery! And even in our own day, we have seen how sadly has fared that great benefactor, Fulton, by claimants, some of whom, if not able to deprive him of his glory, have determined that at least his country shall not boast of him as their own, and, with a peculiar felicity, assign him a foreign birth, perchance amidst the high mountains of Wales! Our Franklin stands unmolested by all difficulties and annoyances of this nature. No pretended rival dare approach him in order to detract from his merits, or usurp his renown. The few miserable attempts designed to disturb the simplicity and harmony of his grand Electrical Doctrines, proceeded from sciolists and the pensioners of royal bounty, and are not worthy to be dwelt upon. But as one of our own poets has impressively declared,

"Truth crushed to earth, will rise again, and the laws of the Omnipotent, even when intelligently proclaimed by one of his creatures, will be found inexorable, notwithstanding the little faith that the minions of despotism may choose to place in a republican philosopher. Signally were Franklin's principles, drawn so directly from nature, vindicated in this instance. The blunted rod on the monument reared by national pride to patriotic merit, (I allude to the pillar in honor of Nelson, erected on Calton Hill,) fit type of a mean prejudice, accumulated the lightning which our sage had demonstrated escaped from the pointed conductor, and shivered the imperial trophy. Thus nature avenged, with the artillery of her own domain, disobedience to her own laws. Where more significantly than in this occurrence, shall we find a stronger demonstration of the mighty truth, that God is his own interpreter?
The eternal years of God are her's;"

However profitable it might be to dwell longer on the character of Franklin—whose early toils are inseparably indented in all future times with the typographic art, as his original genius is connected with the lightnings of heaven—and give expression to our estimate of his sagacity, his indomitable industry, his inflexible integrity, both in private and in public affairs, the occasion allows us only to add, that those faculties which gave to his labors a practical adaptation to the most diversified undertakings, were further enriched by a sweetness of temper, a charity of feeling, a tolerance of opinion, and a superiority to envy, unsurpassed in the history of men; as if nature had been solicitous to unite in one being the choicest gifts, which she has, for the wisest ends, scattered only promiscuously among mankind. Well, indeed, has he been pronounced by the eminent, the most rational of philosophers, the kindest and most benevolent of men.

I will trespass but a moment longer on your patience. Fellow-members, you have done an act of justice only in associating so intimately the name of Franklin with the New-York Typographical Society. Every body knows that the great philosopher made his first appearance on this habitable globe in Boston; no one is ignorant that much of his long life is associated with Philadelphia. The house in which he first drew breath still stands, I believe, in its original place; his mortal remains still consecrate the city of his adoption. I never visit Philadelphia that I do not visit his venerated tomb. But Franklin is also closely connected with New-York, by his repeated sojourns here, by his philosophical discoveries made here, and by his delectable companionship with prominent individuals among us. Here, with Lieutenant-Governor Colden; with John Stevens, so early engaged in railway experiments; with Bard, the physician; with James Alexander; with Smith, the historian, he passed pleasing hours, and held occasional interviews of a social and scientific nature. But wherever he was, in whatever society, an intellectual atmosphere was imparted by him: he might discourse concerning the electrical eel with Williamson, the sturdy disputant on Colonial affairs; converse with John Bartram, on the sublimity of American forest scenery; blow soap bubbles with Ingenhouz, on the banks of the river Thauies; grace the soirees of Sir John Pringle, in London, with Cook and Banks, on the eve of voyages round the world; expatiate on ethical philosophy with the minstrel poet, Beattie; discuss the nature of the vital principle with Hewson, the anatomist; inspire with new hopes the destitute traveller, Capt. Jonathan Carver, in some secret lodging-place in London: on whatever topics he spoke, intelligence flowed from his lips; his hearers' eyes brightened with expectancy, and their hearts improved. A cultivated head is a perpetual workshop, at the command of its possessor; and this principle he never lost sight of in whatever country he was found, or in whatever capacity he appeared. Talleyrand, who, like Ulysses, had visited many cities, said that the greatest sight he had ever beheld was Hamilton walking through Broadway to the court-room, with his pile of law authorities under his arm; it must have been a no less gratifying spectacle to behold our Franklin among the busy haunts of men, moving with republican simplicity amid the scenes of humble industry.

In New-York, with Colden, I believe, he projected the foundation of the Association, now best known as the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia, for promoting Useful Knowledge. In some observations which I made at the Literary Dinner, given in New-York to Authors and Book-sellers, now some fifteen years ago, I stated that I thought the honor of the stereotype invention belonged to this city, because the new method of printing suggested by Colden, in his letter to Franklin, is very likely the same as that practised by M. Herhan, of Paris, under letters patent of Napoleon. Colden's details of his plan were addressed to Dr. Franklin, in a communication written a century ago. Franklin was delighted with the feasibility of the invention, and when he went to France submitted it to Didot, the printer and type-founder at Paris. Herhan, a German, who had been an assistant of Didot, but now separated from him, took it up in opposition to Didot. It is affirmed, on good authority, that Herhan's method of stereotyping is precisely similar to that which Colden invented. Thus Didot and Herhan appear conclusively to have derived from America—from New-York may I be permitted to say—that celebrity in this art which they enjoyed in France.* Notwithstanding the remote period at which the project of stereotyping was suggested in this city, the first demonstration of the art was not made until 1813, when John Watts stereotyped and printed a copy of the Larger Catechism, in 12mo. In June, 1815, the Bruces, of New-York, stereotyped and printed the Bible, 12mo.

In my examination of the extensive manuscript correspondence of Colden, made many years ago, I found that Franklin, while in New-York, was sadly in want of apparatus to prosecute his experiments on electricity. He could find no competent artisan to execute his orders, and with that energy and perseverance which were peculiarly his own, he set about the work himself, and completed an electrical machine that effectively served his purposes. Some of his most valuable principles in his great science were verified by this machine of his own making; and his Observatory was the steeple of the then New Dutch Reformed Church, now occupied as the Post Office in this city. There are letters of his to his old and valued friend, Peter Collinson, of London, and others, that contain some of the results of his inquiries made under these circumstances. Had I been aware in season that my friend Morse was engaged in his Magnetic Telegraph experiments in New-York, I would have urged him to have taken the old steeple for the purpose. Is it not, however, beautifully appropriate to the genius of our country that, although she boasts no antiquated tower, such as that hallowed in Tuscany by the memory of Galileo's vigils, yet that the humble spire reared by the brave exiles for religious liberty, witnessed also the early triumphs of American science; and that the same quaint edifice is the memorial both of the truths of religion and of the truths of nature, equally derived from God, though so often ignorantly divided? But though the inventor of the electrical telegraph elsewhere proved the availability of his theory, let us here and now, on this occasion, sacred to the memory of native genius and to human progress, blend their honored names in an electric chain of sympathetic homage. In conclusion, gentlemen, I offer you a toast:

ELECTRICITY—The Mercury of the Elements, whose rapid movement and infinite adaptation are typical of American genius; Franklin brought him from Heaven, and Morse taught him to carry the messages of Earth.

OLD TIMES.

SELECTED FROM J. W. MOULTON'S WORK OF NEW-YORK, 170 YEARS AGO, &C.

New-York in 1673.

Sixty four years prior to this date, Manhattan Island, on which the City of New-York now stands, was discovered by Henry Hudson, and named by the Indians, Man-a-hatta, to denote according to the Lenni Lennape or Delawares, not only the landing place of the discoverer, but the effects of the "mad waters," which he gave to the natives in his first interview; the literal interpretation of the name being—"the place where we all got drunk."

New-Amsterdam was the title by which the Hollanders distinguished their little dorp or village, the nucleus of which had been formed by a few huts erected as early as 1613, for sheltering their fur trade and whale fishery, on the point where it is supposed Hudson had landed. By that name it was known for more than forty years, as the capital, during the administrations (1625 to 1664) of Minuet, Van Twiller, Kieft and Stuyvesant, the successive Directors or Governors-General of Novum Belgium or New-Netherland, a province which embraced portions of the present States of Delaware, New-Jersey, New-York and Connecticut.

The administration of the Governor-General, Stuyvesant, who for seventeen years (1647 to 1664) had ruled the province with singular address and ability, was terminated by his reluctant surrender of the city to an overpowering fleet from England in 1664. The city and province from that date assumed, and until 1673, retained the name of New-York. During the intervening nine years, it was governed as an English province by Nicolls, and his successor, Lovelace.

It was during the administration of the latter, while he was devising plans to ameliorate the condition and extend the commercial intercourse of the city, (for he had just ordered the "Great Dyke" or Broad-street Canal, to be improved, the streets to be paved, and the first mail known to the citizens to commence New-Year's-Day, [1673,] its journey, by a "sworn messenger and sealed bag," once a month to and from "Boston, Hartford, Connecticut, and places along the road,") that the leading event connected with the above date took place, which ended his authority and suspended for thirteen months the exercise of the English sovereignty over the province.

THE CONQUEST.

England and Holland were at war. The vigilance of that extraordinary people, whose surpassing energy of character, and matchless enterprise and valor, had filled the world's admiration for more than half a century, quickly detected the vulnerable condition of this city. They despatched a fleet of five vessels of war, and trusted the issue of the enterprise to the skill and courage of Commodores Cornelis Everson, Jun., and Jacob Bensch; Captains Anthonio Colve, Nicholas Boes, and Abram Ferdinand Van Zyll. The fleet anchored in July, at the outlet of the Narrows, and on the 30th approached the fort in an attitude to enforce their previous demand of a surrender. Manning, who commanded it on behalf of the English government, yielded its keys without firing a gun. He was subsequently tried for his imputed cowardice, and his sword broken over his head in execution of the sentence which disqualified him from any office, military or civil. But it is very doubtful whether resistance would have been available to save the fort from destruction or the city from conflagration.* Besides, the population were, ten to one, Hollanders; and Manning might have readily discovered the strong conflict between native feeling and forced allegiance, which would have neutralized any attempt on his part to retain possession of the city. The conquerors now transferred their sessions, as a Council of War, from the fleet to the fort; and, assuming the authority of a Supreme Military Tribunal, proceeded at once to organize a new government.

GOVERNMENT.

The name of Fort Willem Hendrick was substituted for Fort James. It was situated on high ground, directly south of an open space called the parade, now Bowling Green. It was a regular square, with four bastions, had two gates, and mounted forty-two cannon. New Orange was the new designation of the city, as a compliment to the Prince of Orange; and the province resumed its ancient name of New-Netherland. After these nominal exchanges, Colve, one of the commanding officers of the fleet, was provisionally appointed Governor General; and Cornelis Steenwyck, whose politics or popularity had sustained his elevation through every public vicissitude, (for he was Burgomaster under Stuyvesant, Commissioner at the capitulation in 1664, Mayor of the city under Nicolls in 1668, and under Lovelace in 1669,) was appointed Counsellor of State.

The City Hall (Stadt Huys) was the next place of their meeting. This seat of legislation and justice, memorable in the affairs of the city and colony, was situated on Hoog Straet or High-street, now Pearl, opposite Coenties Slip. Nicholas Bayard was then appointed Secretary of State, or Secretary of the city; and Geheim Schryver (Recorder of Secrets), for the Province, auctioneer for the city, and Book-keeper and Receiver-General of the revenues.

The selection of these officers for the general government, was from "the best" and "best qualified." The people therefore were virtually consulted, for they were too single-minded and virtuous to wish any other test of qualification for office. In this and in the direct appeal to them, which will be presently shown, we see that even in presence of a conquering fleet, popular sovereignty—the sovereignty of opinion—was recognized in the very act of organizing a new government over their conquest. It is so in every instance of the formation and administration of government. If tyrannical, it is influenced by popular opinion through fear; if liberal, through choice. The sovereignty of the people, therefore, as expressed in popular feeling and opinion, lies at the base of every government. If corrupt, it engenders but still controls arbitrary power; if enlightened and virtuous, it is the conservative strength, as well as origin and paramount authority of the government. In all cases it speaks emphatically, though it speaks in silence. In the present instance there appeared to be a strict regard to this primary element of political power, and in the choice of the city magistracy, the people, who were directly interested, were to be directly consulted.

The "Commanders and military council," therefore, invited the citizens to elect deputies to confer with them at the City Hall. They did so. The deputies then notified the citizens to assemble and nominate a list of six Burgomasters, (an office similar to Aldermen,) and fifteen Schepens, (or Assistant Aldermen,) "of the best and most respectable citizens, of the reformed Christian religion only." The citizens next day assembled in general meeting, and made their nomination by a majority of votes,* viz.: For Burgomasters, Cornelis Steenwyck, Cornelis Van Ruyven, Johannis Van Brugh,† Marten Cregier, Johannis de Peyster,† and Nicholas Bayard.

For Schepens, Jeronimus Ebbingh,‡ William Beeckman,‡ Egidius Luyck, Jacob Kip,‡ Gelyn Verplanck,‡ Lourans Van de Spiegel,‡ Balthazaer Bayard, Francois Rombouts, Stephen Van Cortlant, Adolph Pietersen, Reynier Willemson, Peter Jacobsen, Jan Vigne, Pieter Stoutenburg, Coenract Ten Eyck.

Those marked † were appointed burgomasters, and Egidius Luyck, (who had been rector of the Latin school) was superadded as a third burgomaster. Those marked ‡ were elected Schepens, and Anthony De Mill, Sheriff; and took an oath of allegiance "to the high and mighty lords, the States-general of the United Netherlands, and his highness the lord prince of Orange," to obey their magistrates, who were or might be appointed, administer equal justice to parties, promote the welfare of the city, "defend and protect in every part the sincere and true Christian religion, in conformity to the Synod of Dordrecht, as instructed in the churches of Netherland."

* All citizens (burgers) were entitled to vote. The suffrage with them was universal. But citizenship (Burgerrecht) was a privilege and a distinction under the Holland dynasty. It was divided into great and small (Groot Burgerrecht and Klein Burgerrecht.) Merchants, traders, and shop-keepers were obliged to pay a duty for the privilege of becoming small citizens, (klein burgers.) besides a recognition duty, a duty to the public wharf, to the overseer of the weigh-scales, to the store-house, (pack huys.) and to the weigh masters, (eyck meester.) for marking their weights and measures according to the "true Amsterdam standard." In 1673, their privileges were further taxed, for the public defence, by an extraordinary duty of two per cent. on exports of beaver and other furs; two and a-half on imports of "friezes and blankets, and five on imports of powder, ball, brandies, and distilled waters."

PETITION OF THE COMMON COUNCIL OF NEW-YORK,

FREE TRADE WITH HOLLAND.

1669.

TO HIS R. H's JAMES DUKE OF YORK, &c.

The humble petition of the Maior and Aldermen of New-Yorke, in behalfe of themselves and the rest of the inhabitants of this place, Humbly sheweth: that your petitioners being for the most part Dutch borne, (but now His Majesties faithfull and loyal subjects,) upon the surrender by the articles of agreem't were promised free trafficque and equall priuiledge as any of y'r ma'ties subjects, and some years since the surrender wee have had a free trade for Holland payeinge the Customes as formerlye, which did encouradge most of y'e dutch nation to remain, and uppon the happy peace betweene his Ma'tie and the states of Holland, it was in the articles specified in point of trade, accordinge to the acts of parliament and other denomination, and fearinge those articles might putt in question the freedome of trade here, did make ad-dresse that wee might have three permissionary shippes to trade from Holland to this place, (payenge his Ma'ties customes) for seauen yeares, which was graunted by his Ma'tie and his hono'ble counsell, and wee did enjoy the benefitt that yeare, to the great encouradgment of the place, and paid some considerable vallue in customes towards the defrayinge the charge of the Garrison, but since by what information we know not the three permission shippes are forbidden by his ma'tie and his hono'ble Counsell, w'ch wee most willing submitt unto.

Our humble request to your R. H's that wee may have a free trade from this porte to holland, and from holland to this, accordinge to severall acts of parliament, w'ch is not denied to any of his Ma'ties subjects, touchinge in some porte in England as they come from Holland, and payenge his Ma'ties Customes there, as also touchinge in England as they goe for Holland, and that wee may bring the comodities of holland for the trade of y'e indians, which cannot be so well made in England, and if prohibited, w'thout doubt in a short time will cause all the trade for Cannada, where they wil be furnished w'th these dutch duffles and blancoates, w'ch are scrupuled to be brought into England, sayenge it is cloath, and consequently forbidden to come from holland.

May it please y'r R. H., it cannot be called cloath, it is worse than a sorte called wadmoll, w'ch daily comes from some part of Holland, and not euer worne by an Christians, only by the Indians, soe that if the farmers of his Ma'ties customes may but haue an order to receaue y'e Customes at vallue, it would keepe y'e trade w'thin yo'r R. H's. territories and releiue yo'r petitioners.

PRINCIPAL MALE INHABITANTS OF NEW-YORK.

[In the year 1761, the Colonial Legislature passed an act, directing that all buildings to be erected after the 1st Jan'y, 1766, in the City of New-York, south of the Fresh Water, (say, Duane-street,) should be of stone or brick, covered with slate or tiles. Owing to the insufficient supply of these materials, the time was prolonged to 1768; when it was again finally extended to 1st Jan'y, 1774, after which date no wooden buildings were to be erected, nor any houses to be covered with shingles, in what are now the 1st, 2d, 3d, and part of the 4th and 6th Wards. The law continuing unpopular, the citizens applied to the Legislature in January, 1774, for its further suspension, but without effect. The following Petition was then presented to the Executive, on the 2d May, of the same year. Its prayer, however, was not granted. The citizens paid dearly, a few years after, for their opposition to the act of 1761, for a fire broke out in 1776, which destroyed 500 buildings, including Trinity Church. This Petition, signed by about 3,000 citizens, is now mainly of interest, as furnishing the names of perhaps all the proprietors of Real Estate in the City of New-York, in the year 1774.—E. B. O. C.]

---

To the Honourable CADWALLADER COLDEN, Esq., His Majesty's Lieutenant-Governor, and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Province of New-York, and the Territories depending thereon in America :

— The Petition of the Subscribers, Inhabitants of the City of New-York, Humbly Sheweth,

That there is now in force, in this City, an Act of the Legislature of this Province, whereby all buildings to the Southward of Fresh Water, are to be made of Brick or Stone, and roofed with Slate or Tile.

That the said Law, in the opinion of your Petitioners, will prove greatly detrimental and injurious to the Inhabitants of this City.

That from the wisdom of the Legislature, the carrying the said Act into execution, hath from time to time been prolonged, but is now become in actual force, whereby your Petitioners find themselves very sorely aggrieved, not only in the several following particulars, but in many others, which may reasonably occur:

That, supposing the materials, prescribed by the said Act, were in plenty for erecting Buildings, there are many hundred Lotts of Ground in this City, the Property of Persons in such Circumstances that they never can be able to build thereon, under the restrictions of the said Act; and several hundred Lotts of Ground, in remote parts of the said City, will be useless, (altho' possessed by persons in affluence,) because they must be let at such low rents, as would not pay one-half of the Interest for the Principal money expended in the erecting such houses and Buildings prescribed as aforesaid; and further, all kinds of materials in the building way will come to market without Buyers, and a temporary Stagnation injure for a time our future Commerce therein.

That your Honour may be easily satisfied, not one-sixth part of the Persons will be employed this year in buildings as in the years past, owing solely to the force of the before mentioned Act, which will certainly render these useful members to Society unable to pay their just debts, the Wives and Families of many become burthensome to the City, & the Goals filled with objects of the greatest compassion—Men willing to extricate themselves by their daily labour, from which they are prevented by the grievances before recited.—In this, your Petitioners' most humble complaint, is only in part set forth.

That your Petitioners beg leave to inform your Honour, there was a petition presented to the General Assembly at the last Sessions, but on account of the prorogation of the House, which soon after followed, unfortunately deprived them from getting any Redress.

Your Petitioners being now deeply sensible of the great distress which the artificers & dependants upon Building already begin to feel, and which must every day increase among them, without some speedy Redress, & of the manifest Injury of the above mentioned Law to the Community in general, do therefore most humbly pray, that your Honour would be pleas'd to issue Circular Letters to the Members of the General Assembly of this Province, requiring their attendance on the 20th of May next, the time to which they were last prorogued, by which means only your Petitioners humbly conceive a Remedy & Redress in the premises can be made.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound will ever pray.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF SOME OF THE STREETS OF NEW-YORK.

Pearl-street.

- This street was originally the water line of the East River. Old Maps.
- 1654.—The first wharf in this city was built by Daniel Litschoe, tavern-keeper, "on the strand." It was near the foot of Broad-street. Dutch Records.
- 1656.—The part of the street west of Broad-street was named "Perel-straat." East of Broad-street was named "Hoogh-straat." Ib.
- 1665.—The street contained 61 buildings. Ib.
- 1695.—This street was built upon as far as Maiden Lane, and soon after the accession of Queen Anne, was named Queen street, which name it retained until after the Revolution, when the present name was given to it. Map and Records.
- The first City Hall was erected upon this street, at the head of Coenties Slip. It was sold in 1699 to John Rodman, for £920. English Records.
- 1691.—A ducking-stool for the punishment of offenders, constructed in front of the City Hall. Ib.
- "All the land on the water side, from the block house to the hill next to Mr. Beekman's," was sold in lots in 1692. Those from the block house, (now Wall-street,) to the Green Lane, (now Maiden Lane,) were valued at 25 shillings per foot. From the Green Lane to Mrs. Van Clyff's, (now John street,) at 18 shillings per foot. From Mrs. Van Clyff's to Mr. Beekman's, (Beekman-street,) at 15 shillings per foot. Ib.
- In 1728, the Custom House stood on the north side of this street, about the middle of the block between Broad and Whitehall-street. Map.
- In 1735, an ordinance was passed to stake and lay out the high road from the gate at the end of Queen-street to the other road at fresh water, (Chatham-street,) as the same were laid out by act of 1707. The breadth to be four rods. English Records.
- Some years after the Revolution, the present name was given to this street. Ib.

Whitehall-street.

- Dutch Records. This street was named by the Dutch, in 1656, Winckel-Straat, or the shop-street. It was first paved in 1658.
- English Records. At the foot of this street, in 1695, was the Whitehall Battery of 15 guns, from which the name of this street was derived.

Exchange Place.

- English Records, 1692. Formerly Varlett's Hill and Garden-street. A Dutch Calvinist Church was erected on this street in 1692, occupying grounds 180 feet in front, which was purchased for £180. The site of which church is now between William and Broad streets. After the erection of the Dutch Church, the name Church-street was applied to this portion of the street.
- English Records. 11th June, 1697. "Application of Col. Nicholas Bayard that the Church-street may be laid out, he having ground there on which he designs to build; ordered that the City Surveyors lay out the said street as may be most convenient for the church, and the inhabitants of the same."
- Map. 1728.—The street was again called Garden-street.

Beekman street.

- Dutch Records. In 1656 William Beekman applied to the town magistrates, stating that certain persons claimed a right of way through his farm, and he requested that they might be called upon to show their title. These claimants stated that their cattle, with those of their neighbors, were herded every year on the Commons, (at present the Park,) and that there had been a right of way there before their time. This early record shows a public way nearly if not on the present line of Beekman-street in 1656,
- English Records. Beekman-street was first laid out as a street, regulated and paved, in 1750.
- Ib. The Episcopal Church (St. George's) was built about the year 1750.
- Ib. "Petition of Presbyterian churchmen for a grant of the angular piece of ground to the north-eastward of the vineyard, and opposite the old wind-mill spot," which was allowed, and a perpetual lease given at £40 per annum, 1766. Upon this ground the brick Presbyterian Church in Beekman-street was erected.
- Ib. At an early period Mr. Beekman's farm was in this neighborhood, and his orchard adjoined the swamp, or "cripple bush," as it was sometimes called. "Beekman swamp," which is now covered by Ferry and adjacent streets, was sold, in 1734, to Jacobus Roosevelt, for £200.

The Bowling Green.

- Dutch Records. Ordinance of 1659.—"It is found good and resolved, that for all fat cattle brought to the market (not slaughtered) posts shall be erected by the side of the church,* where those who bring such cattle to market for sale shall present them.

"It is also resolved, that shambles be built, a cover be made, and a block brought in, and that the key be given to Andries, the baker, who shall keep oversight of the same."

Ordinance of 1676.—"A Market Fair is ordered for three English Records. years ensuing, to be held in this city, att the markt-house and plaine afore the Forte, to be held each Thursday, Friday and Saturday."

In 1728, this place was called "the Parade."

Resolution of 1732.—"Resolved, that this Corporation English Records. will leave a piece of land lying at the lower end of Broad-way, fronting the Fort, to some of the Inhabitants, in order to be enclosed to make a Bowling Green there, with walks therein, for the beauty and ornament of said street, as well as for the delight of the Inhabitants of this city."

John Chambers, Peter Bayard, and Peter Jay, were the lessees for 11 years, at 1 pepper-corn per annum.

Broad-street

Was originally a marshy piece of ground, through which a drain was made after the settlement of the town by the Dutch. And this drain was called the "graft," or canal. After the erection of dwellings on each side it was called the "Heere graft," or the Principal Drain, which name was given by Ordinance of 1656. Dutch Records.

This was the first street paved in this city, by Ordinance of 1655.

Ib.

The drain was in 1657 sided with boards stuck endwise into the ground to prevent the caving of its banks, which occurred after high tides.

Ib.

In March, 1659, R. Waldron was made the "officer of the graft," with directions "to see that the newly-made graft was kept clean and in good condition, and that the boats, canoes and other vessels which came into it were laid in order."

Ib

The landing place for vessels was at the mouth of this inlet; with reference to which, the following petition was presented in 1658:—

TO THE HIGH HONOURABLE LORDS, THE GENERAL AND COUNCILLORS OF NEW-NETHERLANDS.

Great and honourable lords:—

It is respectfully represented by the Burgomasters and Schepens of the city of N. Amsterdam, that much inconvenience arises to the citizens of this city at this time from the condition of the floating way at the bridge, where they have before this landed with little trouble their wares and merchandize, and could with facility load and unload the vessels which came thereto. Now, whereas, the petitioners ex-officio are bound to be mindful and careful of the best interests of the citizens and inhabitants—therefore, they do request your Lordships to consent in order to the accommodation of said citizens and inhabitants and merchants, that they may make a “hoist,” by which the yachts, sloops and schooners can be easily laden and unladen: Furthermore, that they may appoint such prices as fees in regard to the same as your Lordships may think best.

- Dutch Records. The inhabitants of this street in 1665 were Cornelis Melyn, Ambrosius de Weerham, Teunis Kray, Symon Janzen Romein, Lucas Dirckzen, Bartholdus Maan, Stoffel Van Laar, Claas Pauluzen, Nicolaas Verbraack, Pieter Winster, Coonradt Ten Eyck, David Wessels, Aaght Jans, (widow of P. Van Naarden.) Nicholaas du Puys, Joghim Beeckman, Jacobus Backer, Albert Reuninck, Symon Felle, Adriaan Vincent, Teunis Davidts.
- English Records. A market house was erected “under the trees near the Bridge,” in 1677. Soon after which date the street was named Broad-street.
- Ib. A market house was built in Broad-street, between Wall-street and Exchange Place, in 1710, and in 1738 a new market house was built in the middle of the street, near Wall-street.
- Ib. Several gentlemen subscribed to erect an Exchange in Broad-street, “opposite the Bridge,” in 1751, which was finished in 1755.

Broadway.

- Dutch Records of 1656. This street was originally called “De Heere straat,” or principal street.
- Ib. In 1665 De Heere straat contained 21 buildings, and in 1677 it contained 65 buildings.
- English Records. It was soon after called Broadway.
- Ib. In December, 1697, an ordinance for lighting the streets, afterwards generally enforced throughout the city, was put in operation in Broadway. “It is resolved, as to the regulation of the lights to be put out in the darke time of the moon within this city, and for the ease of the Inhabitants, that every seaventh house doe every night in the dark time of the moon, until the 25 March next, cause a lanthorn and a candle to be hung out on a pole every night. The charge to be defrayed in equal proportion by the Inhabitants.”
- Ib. In 1703 the burial ground in Broadway was granted to the Corporation of Trinity Church forever, “on condition of keeping the fence in order, and taking no more for burial of each person of 12 years and upwards, than 3 shillings, and for each child 1s. 6d.”
- Ib. In 1708, permission was given to the Inhabitants to plant trees before their houses and lots. These trees, it would seem, were flourishing in 1759, at which time Professor Kaim, the Swedish traveller, describes them as follows:—“The BROADWAY is spacious and airy; the houses have most of them a row of trees before them, which form an agreeable shade, and produce a pretty effect."

In 1738, a market was built in the middle of Broadway, English Records. opposite Crown, now Liberty-street.

Water-street.

Laid out about 1734.

Named Water-street, 1736.

English Records.

Ib.

---

Marketfield-street.

Originally called by the Dutch the "Marckveltsteegie," or Dutch Records. Marketfield path.

Ib.

Nassau-street.

"Petition of Teunis DeKay, that a carte-way May be made, leading out of the Broad street to the street that Runs by the Pye-woman's leading to the Common of this City: that the Petitioner will undertake to doe the same, provided he may have the Soyle." 1692. English Records.

Called Kip-street in 1732.

Ib.

New Dutch church erected in 1732. (Present Post Office.)

Ib.

---

Maiden-Lane.

Formerly called the green lane, and made a public street in 1691. Regulated in 1696, and called Maiden Lane. English Records.

Laid out about the year 1690, and called Crown-street. English Records. Name changed after the Revolution.

---

Regulated in 1750, and named after an owner of the adjacent property. English Records.

---

Stone-street.

Originally called by the Dutch the "Brower straat," (the Brewers' street.)

The brewery of O. S. Van Cortland was situated in this street. Dutch Records. 1665.

- Dutch Records. This was the second street ordered by the City authorities 1665. to be paved with stone, 1657
English Records. Called Stone-street, 1676.

John-street.

- English Records. Between William and Pearl, was formerly a lane leading to the residence of Mrs. Van Clyff, from the high road, (Pearl-street,) and was ordered to be left open as a public street in 1692. It was at first called Golden hill.

Bridge-street.

This is the only street in the city, the name of which has not, at some time or other, been changed. It was called "de Brugh straat," or Bridge-street, in 1656, when names were first given to the streets in this city.

The name was appropriate, from the fact that it was the street leading to the bridge across the ditch or canal at the foot of Broad-street. A bridge was still at the foot of Broad-street one hundred years subsequently.

The Park.

- Dutch Records. The Park was originally a portion of the unappropriated lands on Manhattan Island, which were used in common by the citizens under the Dutch government, for herding cattle and other general purposes. By grant, under Dougan's Charter of 1686, "All the waste, vacant, unpatented and unappropriated lands, lying and being within the said City of New-York, and on Manhattan Island, aforesaid," were given to the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York.
- English Records. It was enclosed about the time of the Revolutionary war. The records, at different periods previous to that time, show that it was called The Common. A powder house stood north of the present site of the City-Hall, built in 1684. A windmill stood near the present brick church. A gallows was erected on the Commons in 1725, which in 1756 was removed "to the place where the negroes were burnt some five years before, at the foot of the hill called Catiemut's hill," near the fresh water.

The Battery.

- English Records. 1693.—"Whereas there is actual warr between our Sovereign Lord and Lady the King and Queen, and the French King; and I am informed of a Squadron of Ships and land forces, intended from France to invade this City and Province; and whereas, for the safety and preservation thereof, I finde itt of absolute necessity to make a plat-forme upon the outmost pointe of rocks under the Fort, whereon I intend to build a battery to command both rivers : I have therefore thought fitte, and doe hereby require you, the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the City of New-York and Manning and Barnes' Island, to cut down 86 cordes of stockadoes, of 12 feet in length, and to have them in readiness to be conveyed to New-York.

Signed, BENJ. FLETCHER.

The rocks upon which the Battery was built were called Capsey Rocks.

Wall-street.

The Records of the Magistrates of this City state, that in 1653, in apprehension of an invasion from New-England, the inhabitants threw up an embankment, and constructed a line of palisades on the present line of Wall-street, from which the name of that street is derived. The length of the City wall was 2,430 feet. The palisades were posts set six feet apart, sided up with boards. The whole cost being about $1,500 of present currency. (See note.) Dutch Records.

1653.—“ Jan Vinge complains to the Burgomasters of the damage sustained by him from the erection of the City walls. That his land lies open, and the cattle destroy his planted crops.” Entry in Dutch Records.

1665.—Ten small dwellings were built opposite the City wall, in what was then called “ de Wall.” This was the origin of Wall-street. Dutch Records.

In 1677, Wall-street contained 17 dwelling-houses. English Records.

1699.—“ The petition of the Mayor, &c., to the Lieut. Governor and Council sheweth : Entry in English Records.

“ That the former line of fortification that did range along the Wall-street from the East to the North River, together with the bastions* that were thereon erected, are fallen to decay, and the encroachment of buildings will render the same useless for the time to come; and the City, purporting to build a new City-Hall, at the end of one of the principal streets within the said City, fronting to the aforesaid line of fortifications, therefore humbly pray that your Honours will be pleased to intercede with his Excy. the Captain Genll, that the same fortification may be demolished according to the powers and authorities intrusted with him, and the stones of the said bastions may be appropriated to the building of the said City-Hall.”

The new City-Hall above spoken of, was built on the present site of the Custom-House in 1699. In 1703, a cage, whipping-post, pillory and stocks, for the punishment of criminals, were erected in the street in front of the City-Hall. Ib.

A slave-market was erected at the foot of Wall-street in 1709, “ at which place all negro and Indian slaves to be let out to hire, or to be sold, took their stand.” (Ordinance 1709 and 1712.) Ib.

* There were two stone bastions on the line of the City wall; one on the N. E. corner of Wall and Broadway, the other, on N. W. corner of Wall and William streets.

NOTE.—It may not be uninteresting, in connexion with the history of Wall-street, to give some extracts from the City Records, showing the emergencies upon which the city wall was built and maintained.

War with the English.

13 March. A. M., 1653.—General Session of the Councillors to take into consideration the intelligence from New-England.

It is resolved,—1st. That the whole body of citizens shall keep watch by night, in such places as shall be designated. The City Tavern to be the temporary head quarters.

2d. That the fort be repaired.

3d. Because the fort is not large enough to contain all the inhabitants, it is deemed necessary to enclose the city with palisades and breastworks.

4th. Some way must be devised to raise money.

5th. Captain Viseher is to be requested to fix his sails, to have his piece loaded, and to keep his vessel in readiness.

Same day, P. M.—A list of persons who shall contribute towards putting the city in a condition of defence is presented. The amount proposed to be raised is 5,050 Guilders (about $2,000.) It is also stated, that the citizens' watch has been already organized. They are to be furnished fire and light.

15 March, 1653.—Commissioners are appointed to contract for the building of the palisades.

The Commissioners on the same day gave notice that on the 20th March they will publish the conditions of the work, and receive proposals.

20 March 1653.—The conditions are published, and proposals made as follows :

The number of boards will be 156, one board in length,
9 boards in height,

1,404 boards in all.
1½ guilders each.

|                       |                 |

|                       | 2,106 guilders. |

| Freight.....          | 120 "           |
| Carpenters' fees..... | 500 "           |

Amounting in all to.....3,166 guilders.

3 April, 1653.—In view of the unhappy state of affairs, Gov. Stuyvesant orders a day of general fasting and prayer throughout the provinces for the 9th of April.

23 July, 1653.—Mission from the Governor to the City Magistrates, which states that the palisades are completed, and exhorts them to supply the city with corn and provisions. To pay for certain nails, side arms, etc., procured from the Government office, and to keep the cattle away from the repaired ramparts of the fort.

29 July, 1653.—Answer to the above mission, states that the citizens have been at an expense of from 4 to 5,000 guilders. That their business has been at a stand still, but that they are prepared to do their best.

In the fall of 1653.—A Commission representing New-England and New-Netherlands was organized, to consider the differences between the two governments, but parted without a settlement.

In the spring of 1654.—The fortifications were repaired.

29 May, 1654.—A meeting of the magistrates having been called, Gov. Stuyvesant communicated intelligence from New-England, to the effect that ships with warlike ammunition had arrived at Boston, and states that he should take measures to prepare for those ships, if directed against this place. He proposed first, a tax on land, a tax on cattle, and a tax on houses. Second, he asked whether or not he shall retain the company's ship for service. Third, whether he shall send for the people on the Delaware River, or let them stay.

The city magistrates state their unwillingness to answer, as to the taxing, without advising with the people of the other part of the province; but in co-operation with the government, they will proceed to put the fortifications in a thorough state of defence.

July, 1654.—The ship Golden Bear arrived, with news of peace between England and Holland.

War with the Swedes.

1655.—The Swedes on Delaware River had assaulted and occupied the neighboring Dutch fort, Cassiner, and it was supposed, contemplated advancing to the city of New-Amsterdam.

Council of War, 20 Feb., 1655.—The meeting considering the present serious occasion, deem it necessary that the fortifications be repaired, by spiking with good spikes a blind of planks, five or six in height, against the palisades.

The Captains of the Militia request that a person be appointed to distribute gunpowder to the citizens.

Paulus Leendeerin Vandegrist, Capt.; Daniel Letschoe, Lieutenant, and Cornelius Stecnwick, Ensign.

The records mention their marching and drilling on the Boston Road, now Chat-ham-street, near the Park.

May, 1655.—The Council of War make application for the appointment of two drummers to improve the marching of the Militia, which is allowed.

In the latter part of the month of August, the troops under Gov. Stuyvesant marched to the Swedish territory, and subdued the garrison of that Government, returning about 1st October, 1655.

War with the Indians.

On the night of the 15th September, 1655, taking advantage of the absence of the Governor and his forces, the Indians fell upon the hamlets and farms of the Dutch settlements, robbing and firing the tenements, and murdering the inhabitants. Many escaped to the city, and the magistrates, on the 20th September, resolved to raise up the palisades to the height of at least ten or twelve feet, to prevent the "overloopen," (jumping over) of the savages.

1 July, 1656.—"The Director General and Councillors of New-Netherlands make known to all, that the information has been given them by certain Indians, that several Indians of the Tappans are harboring some evil design, and have intimated their intention to murder certain Christians on the flats; and as the Director General and Councillors have not been able to ascertain towards what place, or against whom their design is entertained, and not knowing, indeed, but it may be a project of the whole nation, they can neither ordain or apply a remedy in any other way than to revive their former orders, to wit: That those persons who are living outside, in separate habitations, shall withdraw into the nearest village or hamlet, and form a combination for their protection; and in the meantime, that they warn each other, to be on their guard, and not to frequent the woods or the road without being armed; and that they always go in companies of two, three, or four, so as to be able to resist these bushmen.

And further, in order to prevent such separate murders, the Director General and Councillors, with the advice of the City Burgomasters, can devise no better expedient than (in addition to that above written) to forbid that any Indian, with a gun or other weapon, shall be admitted into any fortified place, nor into the flat lands, nor into any house, under penalty of forfeiting such weapon, which may be taken away by any magistrate.

This shall go in force eleven days from this date of publication, of which they command their subjects to inform the Indians, in the Indian tongue, and in the most civil manner."

GOV. DONGAN'S REPORT

To the Committee of Trade on the Province of New-York, Dated, 22d February, 1687.

[LOND., DOC. V.]

MY LORDS—I have received the heads of inquiry your Lo'ps sent to mee, and indeed I have been as industrious as possible I could to make myself capable of giving you satisfaction. And wherein I am short of answering your Lo'ps expectation I question not but you'l pardon it when you consider that to give a distinct answer to several of your queries must require a longer time than I have yet had since their arrival here. However to such of them as I am at present capable to make an answer, I herein give yo'r Lo'ps I hope the satisfaction required, which are as follows:

In answer to the first of your Ld'ps Querys,

Courts of Jus- The Courts of Justice are most established by Act of As-tice. sembly, and they are—

1. The Court of Chancery, consisting of the Governor and Council in the Supreme Court of this province, to which appeals may be brought from any other Court.

2. The Assembly finding the inconvenience of bringing of y'e peace, Sheriffs, Constables & other p'rsons concerned from the remote parts of the government to New-York, did, instead of the Court of Assizes which was yearly held for the whole Government of this province, erect a Court of Oyer and Terminer, to be held once every year within each County, for the determining of such matters as should arise within them respectively, the members of which Court were appointed to bee one of the two Judges of this province, assisted by three justices of the peace of that County wherein such Court is held. Which Court of Oyer and Terminer has likewise power to hear appeals from any inferior Court.

3. There is likewise in New-York & Albany a Court of Mayor & Aldermen held once in every fortnight, from whence there can be noe appeal, unless the cause of action bee above the value of Twenty Pounds, who have likewise priviledges to make such by-laws for y'e regulation of their own affairs as they think fitt, soe as the same be approved by y'e Gov'r & Council.

Their Mayor, Recorder, Town-Clerks & Sherriff, are appointed by the Governor.

4. There is likewise in every County twice in every year (except in New-York, where it's four times, & Albany, where it's thrice) Courts of Sessions, held by the Justices of the Peace for the resp'ive Countys in Engl'd.

5. In every Town w't'n y'e Government there are 3 Commissioners appointed to hear and determine all matters of difference not exceeding the value of Five Pounds, which shall happen within the respective towns.

6. Besides these, my Lords, I finding that very great inconveniences daily hapned in the managem't of his Ma'ts particular concerns within this province relating to his Lands, Rents, Rights, Profits & Revenues by reason of the great distance betwixt the Cursory settled Courts, & of the long delay which thereon consequently ensued, besides the great hazard of venturing the matter on Country Jurors, who over & above that they are generally ignorant enough, & for the most part linked together by affinity, are too much swayed by their particular humors and interests, I thought fit in Feb., by & with y'e advice & Consent of y'e Council to settle and establish a Court, which we call the Court of Judicature, (Exchequer,) to be held before y'e Gov'r & Council for the time being, or before such & soe many as the Gov'r should for that purpose authorize, comissionate & appoint, on the first Monday in every Month, at New-York, which Court hath full power and authority to hear, try & determine suits, matters & variances arising betwixt his Ma'ty & y'e Inhabitants of the said Province, concerning the said Lands, Rents, Rights, Profits and Revenues.

In Answer to the Second.

The Laws in force are y'e Laws called his Royal Highnes- Laws in Force. ses Laws, and the Acts of the General Assembly, the most of which I presume y'r Lor'ps have seen, & the rest I now send over by Mr. Sprag, to whom I refer your Lo'ps in this point.

In Answer to the Third.

In this Governm't there about four thousand foot & three hundred horse, besides one company of Dragoons, of which I shall bee able to give a more particular account when the Muster-Master shall make his returns.

In Answer to the Fourth.

At New-York there is a fortification of four bastions, built formerly against the Indians, of dry stone & earth, with sods as a breast-work, well & pleasantly situated for the defence of the Harbour, on a point made by Hudson's River on the one side and by the Sound on the other, It has Thirty-Nine Gunns, two Mortar pieces, thirty barils of Powder, five hundred ball, some Bumbshells & Granades, small arms for three hundred men, one Flanker, the face of the North Bastion, and three pouts of Bastions, & a Courlin has been done & are rebuilt by mee with Lime & Mortar, & all the rest of the fort pinned & rough-cast with lime since my coming here.

And the most of the Guns I found dismounted, & some of them yet continue to bee soe, which I hope to have mounted soe soon as the mills can sawe.

I am forced to renew all the Batterys with three-inch Plank & have spoke for new plank for that purpose.

And the breast-work upon the wall is so moultered away that it's likewise needful to make a reparation thereof. The officers' quarters had formerly a flat roof, which I finding to be chargeable to maintain, & it could not be kept right [qu. Dry ?] have caused a new roof to bee upon it, as also finding water to run through the Arch of the Gate I have been forc't to put a roof over it. I am forc't every day by reason of the rottenness of the Timber & Board to bee making reparations in the soldiers' quarters or my own.

The ground that the Fort Stands upon, & that belongs to it contains in quantity about two acres or thereabouts, about which I have instead of Palisades put a fence of polls which is more lasting.

Tho' this Fortification bee inconsiderable, yet I could wish the King had severall of them in these parts, the people growing every day more numerous, & they generally of a turbulent disposition.

In this country there is a woman yet alive, from whose Loyns there are upwards of three hundred & sixty persons now living.

The men that are here have generally lusty strong bodies.

At Albany there is a fort made of Pine trees fifteen foot high & foot over, with Batterys and Conveniences made for men to walk about, Where are nine guns, small arms for forty men, four barils of Powder with great and small Shot in proportion. The Timber & Boards being rotten were renewed this year. In my opinion it were better that Fort were built of stone & lime which will not be double the charge of this year's repair which yet will not last above 6 or 7 years before it will require the like again, whereas on the contrary were it built of Lime & Stone, it may bee far more easily maintained. And truly it is very necessary to have a fort there, it being a frontier place both to the Indians & ffrench.

Pemaquid Fort and Connecticut.

At Pemaquid there is another Fort built after the same manner as I am informed, a particular description whereof I am not capable of giving having never been there, however its a great charge to this government without being any thing of advantage to it, having officers there, twenty men always in pay. And which makes it yet more chargeable. I am forced to send from time to time provisions & stores thither, altho' its ~~about~~ four hundred miles from this place; if his Ma'ty were pleased that I might draw of the men and arms from that place with the guns, being of light carriage, & that I might have leave to put further into the country, I would place them where I will give your Lo'hip an acc't hereafter.

And then if his Ma'ty were further pleased to annex that place to Boston, being very convenient for them in regard to its vicinity, affording great Store of Fishery & Islands fit for that purpose, Lying all along to the Eastward of them—And in lieu of that to add to this government Connecticut & Rhode Island, Connecticut being so conveniently situate in its adjoining to us and soe inconvenient for the people of Boston, by reason of its being upwards of two hundred miles distance from thence. Besides, Connecticut, as it now is, takes away from us almost all the land of value that lies adjoyneing to Hudson's River, & the best part of the river itself. Besides, as wee found by experience, if that place bee not annexed to that government it will be impossible to make anything considerable of his Ma'tys customs & revenues in Long Island; they carry away with't entering all our Oyles, which is the greatest part of what wee have to make returns of from this place: And from Albany and that way up the river—our Beaver & Peltry.

This government too has an undoubted right to it by charter, which his late Ma'ty of Blessed Memory granted to our present King, and indeed if the form of the government bee altered these people will rather choose to come under this than that Government of Boston, as y'r Lo'ps will p'ceive by their present Gov'rs l'res directed to me.

And as for East Jersey, it being situate on the other side of Hudson's river & between us where the river disembogues itself into the sea, paying noe custom & having likewise the advantage of having better land & most of the settlers there out of this Govern'm't, Wee are like to bee deserted by a great many of our merchants whoe intend to settle there if not annexed to this government.—

Last year two or three ships came in there with goods, & I am sure that that country cannot now not with the help of West Jersey, consume one thousand £b in goods in two years, soe that the rest of their goods must have been run into this Government without paying his Maty's customs, and Indeed there's noe possibility of preventing it.

And as for Beaver & Peltry its impossible to hinder its being carried thither, the Indians value not the length of their journey soe as they can come to a good market, which those people can better afford them than wee, they paying noe custom or excise inwards or outwards.

An other inconveniency by the Government remaining as it does, is that privateres and others can come within Sandy Hook and take what provisions & goods they pleas from that side. Also very often shipp's bound to this place break bulk there & run their goods into that colony with intent afterwards to import the same privately & at more leisure into this Province notwithstanding their oath, They salving themselves with this evasion that that place is not in this Govern'm't. To day an Interloper landed five tun & one half of teeth there, to prevent all which inconveniences & for the securing of this place from enemies, I desire to have an order to make up a small Fort with twelve guns upon Sandy Hook, the channell there being soe near the shore that noe vessel can goe in nor out but shee must come soe neare the Point that from on board one might toss a biscuit cake on shore.

If the proprietors would rightly consider it they would find it their own interest that that place should bee annexed to this government, for they are at a greater charge for maintaining the present Govern'm't than the whole profits of the province (which is by quit rents) will amount unto; for they are at the whole charge, the country allowing Nothing towards its support, soe that had they not the charge of the government, they might put that money into their own pockets.

And indeed to make Amboy a port will be no less inconvenient for the reasons aforementioned, Neighboring Colonys being not come to that P'fection but that one fort may sufficiently serve us all.

Dutys to be Paid We in this Government look upon that bay that runs into at Sandy Hook, the sea at Sandy Hook in the Hudson's River, therefore there being a clause in my instructions directing mee that I cause all vessels that come into Hudson's River to enter at New-York, I desire to know whether his Ma'ty intends thereby those vessels that come within Sandy Hook, the people of East-Jersey pretending a right to the river soe farr as their province extends, which is Eighteen Miles up the river to the Northward of this place.

West Jersey remaining as it does will be no less inconvenient to this Govern'm't for the same reasons as East Jersey, they both making but one neck of land, & that so neer situate to us that its more for their convenience to have commerce here than any where else, & under those circumstances that if there were a warr either with Christians or Indians they would not bee able to defend themselves without the assistance of this govern'm't.

To bee short, there is an absolute necessity those provinces and that of Connecticut be annexed.

The three lower Countys of Pennsylvania have been a dependency on this place, & a great Many of the inhabitants persons that removed thither from this Govern't., and I do not believe it was his Maty's intention to annex it to Pennsylvania, nor to have it subject to the same laws, it being the King's own Land, the doing whereof by Mr. Pen there has been of great detriment to this place in hindring the Tobacco to come hither as formerly, for then there came two shippes for one that comes now; Beaver & Peltry taking up but small stowage in shippes.

And indeed it were in my opinion very necessary for the advantages of this place & increase of his Maty's revenues that it were soe ordered that the Tobacco of these countrys may bee imported hither without paying there the duty of one penny pr pound, and then wee should not bee at such streights for returns, their trade would much increase, and this place become a magazine for the Neighboring Provinces, & care taken that the Tobacco bee duly returned to England whereas now a great part of it goes another way, & soe its very necessary that the Collector of this place should be Collector of that River for the enumerated commoditys. And wee will have such regard to the advantage of this Port that we'el suffer noe fraud to bee committed there, nor noe Tobacco to be exported but what goes either for England or this place.

Besides wee find the contrary to bee very inconvenient in this, that whereas formerly the dammified Tobacco which came from thence not fit for England wee made up in rolls and sent ye same up the River to the Indians who in Exchange gave in Beaver & Peltry, for want whereof his Maty's revenue here is much impaired inasmuch as the Indians are therefore foret either to plant the tobacco themselves or to goe where they can be furnished with it & there carry there beaver & peltry (They being of that temper that they had rather want of clothes than Tobacco) by which means his Maty's revenue sustains a double loss, one in the ten pr cent. such tobacco pays custom up the river, & the other in the custome of such Beaver & Peltry as the same would produce.

Further, if Pennsylvania be continued as by charter running five degrees to the Westward it will take in the most of the five nations that lye to the Westward of Albany & the whole Beaver & Peltry trade of that place, the consequence whereof will be the depopulation of this Governm't, for the people must follow the trade. Those Indians and the people of this Govern't have been in continued peace & unity one with another these fifty years, And those Indians about forty years ago, did annex their lands to this Govern't, & have ever since constantly renewed the same with every Governor that has been here both in the time of the Dutch & the English & in particular to myself who have given them largely in consideration of their lands, And I am certainly informed that they have declared they will go & live on ye other side of the lake than be under any other Government on this than ours. Endeavors have been used (Tho' to noe purpose) to P'suade some of our Traders who speak the language to goe and live upon the Susquehanna river, tho' I cannot yet find out by whom this has been made.

The five Indian nations are the most Warlike people in America, & are a bulwark between us & the French & all other Indians; they go as far as the South Sea the North West passage & Florida to Warr. New England in their last warr with the Indians had been ruined had not Sr Edmund Andros sent some of those Nations to their assistance, and indeed they are soe considerable that all the Indians in these parts of America are tributary to them. I suffer no Christians to converse with them any where but at Albany, & that not without my license.

Since I came here the People of Boston have sent there presents in acknowledgement of their favor & freindship, & I was for't to goe with my Lord Effingham to bury his hatchet and theirs which is their way of making a peace.

I have sent herewith what the Nation that conquered the Indian Proposal
Susquehannas desired of the King in my lord Effingham's presence, and I believe it to be of dangerous consequence if denied. and Present.

This Governm't has allways been and still is at a great charge to keep them peaceable & annexed to this Government, which is of that moment that upon any occasion I can have three or four thousand of their men at a call.

I cannot believe that it ever was the King's intention to grant away soe considerable a part of this Government which has been so long appropriated to it, & even the people think it as a part of themselves & would be much troubled at a separation from soe good & ancient neighbors that at first of their own free wills became soe and have ever since continued with such constancy to desire and maintain a mutual freindship and correspondence. If therefore his Mat'y were pleased to have a line run from 41° and 40m. in Delaware River to the Falls upon the Susquehanna, and to let Mr. Penn keep all below that it would be sufficient for him, the bounds below it being conjectured to contain more than all England besides the Loner Countys which is near upon 100 miles from the Cape up the river; and in bredth more than 30 miles as is generally believed.

Pennsylvania &
for the Beaver Trade.

To Preserve the Beaver and Peltry for this & Albany. and to be an encouragement to our Beaver hunters I desire I may have order to erect a Compayne Fort upon Delaware River in 41° 40m.; another upon the Susquehanna where his Mat'y shall think fit Mr. Penn's bounds shall terminate. And another at Oneiga near the great lake in the way where our People goe a Beaver hunting or Trading, or any where else where I shall think convenient, it being very necessary for the support of Trade, Maintaining a correspondence with the further Indians; & in securing our right in the Country, the French making a pretence as far as the Bay of Mexico, for which they have no other argument than that they have had possession this twenty years by their fathers living so long among the Indians; they have fathers still among the five Nations aforementioned, viz. the Maquaes, Sinicaes, Cayouges, Oneidas, and Onondagues, & have converted many of them to the Christian faith & doe their utmost to draw them to Canada, to which place there are already 6 or 700 retired and more like to doe, to the great prejudice of this Govern't if not prevented. I have done my endeavours & have gone so far in it that I have prevailed with the Indians to consent to come back from Canada on condition that I procure for them a piece of land called Serachtague, lying upon Hudson's River about 40 miles above Albany, & then furnish them there with Priests.

Thereupon and upon a Petition of the People of Albany to mee setting forth the reasonableness and conveniency of Granting to the Indians there requests, I have procured the land for them, altho' it has been patented to people at Albany, & have promised the Indians that they shall have priests, and that I will build them a church, & have assured the people of Albany that I would address to his Mat'y as to your Lo'ds that care may bee taken to send over by the first five or six, it being a matter of great consequence.

These Indians have about 10 or 12 Castles, (as they term them,) & those at a great distance one from another, soe that there is an absolute necessity of having so many priests, that there bee three always travelling from castle to castle, & the rest to live with those that are Christians. By that means the French Priests will be obliged to retire to Canada, Whereby the French will bee divested of their pretence to ye country, & then we shall enjoy that trade without fear of being diverted.

I find very small matter will serve the French for a pretence of right. About thirty years ago 6 or 700 hundred of them taking advantage of the Indians being abroad soe far as Cape Florida at warr came down and burnt a castle of the Maques wherein there were none but old men, women & children, which the rest of the Indians pursned the French to a place called Sconectude about 20 miles above Albany, where they had every man been cut off had not one colarr (a Dutchman so beloved of the Indians that in memory of him they all Governors by that name) interposed.

However from that time they have fancied to themselves that they have a right to the country so farr as that place.

The Great difference between us is about the Beaver trade, and in truth they have the advantage of us in it & that by no other means than by their industry in making discoveries in the country before us.

Before my coming hither noe man of our Government ever went beyond the Sinicaes country. Last year some of our people went a trading among the Farr Indians called the Ottowais, inhabiting about three months journey to the West & W. N. W. of Albany, from whence they brought a good many Beavers. They found their people more inclined to trade with them than the French, the French not being able to protect them from the arms of our Indians, with whom they have had a continued warr, soe that our Indians brought away this very last year, a great many prisoners,

Last week I sent for some of our Indians to New-York, where when they came I obtained a promise from them that some of themselves would goe along with such of our people as goe from Albany & Esopus to there far nations & carry with them the captives they have prisoners in order to the restoring them to their liberty & bury their Hatchets with those of their enemys, by which means a path may be opened for these farr Indians to come with safety to trade at Albany, and our people go thither without any let or disturbance.

I hear the French have built a Wooden Fort or two in the Way thither, & that there are two officers with men in them to obstruct our passage. I am sending a Scotch Gent called McGregor, (that served formerly in France) along with our people; hee has orders not to disturb or meddle with the French, and I hope they will not meddle with him. Ever since my coming hither it has been no small trouble to keep the Sinicaes from making warr upon the French. Monsieur De La Barr was very hot upon it, & brought a great many men to a place called Cadaraque, lying on the Lake, with intent to fall on the Indians, who hearing of it came to me for leave to enter Canada with fire and sword, which I refused to permit, but immediately I wro't to La Barr & let him know those Indians were his Maty's of Great Britain's subjects, & that he must not molest them, & that if the Indians had done the Government of Canada any injury, upon his making the same appear, I would cause that hee should have satisfaction, as also I sent the arms of his Royal highness, now his Majesty, to be put up in each castle as far as Oneigra, which was accordingly done, & thereupon De La Barr retired without doing any thing, after having been at a vast expence, and all to no purpose.

The New Governor Mons'r de Nonville, has written mee that hee desires to have a very good correspondence with this Govern't, & I hope he will bee as good as his word, notwithstanding he put a great deal of provisions into, & keeps four or five hundred men in Cadaraque.

Last spring he sent one De la Croa with fifty soldiers & one hundred young men of Canada, to the North West passage, where as I am certainly informed from Canada they have taken three forts. About two years since there came a thousand men from France to Canada with the New Gov'r, and three hundred came the year after. But the most part of them as I hear are since dead, the country proving too cold for them. We need not fear them soe long as the Indians continue to bee our friends, & the less if wee can prevail with the Indians that are Christians to come from them to us, they being generally the Youngest & Lustiest men.

The number of Last year there was a list brought into the New Gov'r of French in Canada, 17,000 French Inhabitants in Canada, Men, Women & Children, of which 3000 fit to bear arms.

It will be very necessary for us to encourage our young men to goe a Beaver Hunting as the French doe.

I send a Map by Mr. Spragg, whereby your L<sup>o</sup>'s may see the several Govern'm'ts, &c., how they lye, where the Beaver hunting is, & where it will bee necessary to erect our Country Forts for the securing of beaver trade, & keeping the Indians in community with us.

Alsoe it points out where there's a great river discovered by one Lassal, a Frenchman from Canada, who thereupon went into France, & as its reported brought two or three vessels with people to settle there, which (if true) will prove not only very inconvenient to us but to the Spanish also, (the river running all along from our lakes by the back of Virginia & Carolina into the Bay Mexico,) & its believed Nova Mexico can not be far from the mountains adjoining to it, that place being in 36° North Latitude, if your Lop's thought it fit I could send a sloop or two from this place to discover that river.

In answer to the Fifth.

The strength of This query is for most part answered in the precedent, what our neighbors. is not answered followeth here.

Connecticut, according to the nearest conjecture I can make, may have about 3000 men able to bear arms.

In it there are but few Indians, having been generally destroyed or removed into this Government in the time of the last Warrs.

They have but a small trade; what they have is to the West Indies, Boston and this place.

They have not above a ketch or two and about 6 or 7 sloops belonging to the place.

The country is very good, accommodated with several good harbors & two considerable rivers. New-London is a very good harbor for shipping, where they may ride secure from all winds. As for the timber its the same as ours here.

To the Sixth.

The correspondence wee hold with our neighbors is very amicable & good, wee on all occasions doing to each other all the offices of Freindship & Service we can: Which has so much endeared them to us that they desire nothing more than to be a part of this government, those of Connecticut choosing farr rather to come under this Govern'm't than that of Boston, for the reasons aforementioned, and the Jerseys wishing the like as having once been a part of us. And seeing that in this Separation they are not so easy nor safe, as they might expect to bee were they reunited to us.

To the Seventh.

What arms, &c. It is answered in the answer to the Fourth.

To the Eighth.

For the Longitude, Latitude and contents of this Govern't I refer your Lo'ps to the aforementioned Map, wherein you will see in what Narrow bounds we are cooped up.

The land of this government is generally barren, rocky land, except the land wee have right to on the Susquehanna river, and up into the country amongst our Indians, where there are great quantities very good.

What was good & did lye convenient and near the Sea for y'e most part is taken from us by Connecticut, East and West Jersey.

What is left is pretty well settled, as your Lo'ps will perceive by the list of Patents Mr. Sprag has with him.

When I came to this Government I found very little quit rent reserved to his Ma'ty, however I have got the people, with their own consent to the Payment of a certainty, as Yo'r Lo'ps may perceive by the aforementioned list of Patents. Such as pay noe quit rents I bring into the aforementioned court for his Ma'tys rents & revenues, where in a short time they are easily induced to doe it, & I hope his Ma'ty will have considerable revenue by it.

What are the Boundaries, longitude & latitude, &c.

To the Ninth.

The Principal towns within the Government are New-York, Albany & Kingston, at Esopus. All the rest are country villages; the buildings in New-York & Albany are generally of stone & Brick. In the country the houses are mostly new built, having two or three rooms on a floor. The Dutch are great improvers of land. New-York & Albany lives wholly upon trade with the Indians, England and the West Indies. The returns for England are generally Beaver, Peltry, Oil & Tobacco, when we can have it. To the West Indies we send Flower, Bread, Pease, Pork & sometimes horses; the return from thence, for the most part, is rumm, which pays the King a considerable excise, & sometimes Molasses, which serves the People to make drink, & pays noe custom.

There are about nine or ten three-mast vessels of about 80 or 100 tons burthen, two or three Ketches & Barks of about 40 Ton, and about twenty sloops of about twenty or five & twenty Tunn, belonging to the Govern't, All of which trade for England, Holland & the West Indies, except six or seven sloops that use the river trade to Albany & that way.

What are the Principal towns, &c.

Ships & vessels.

To the Eleventh.

A thousand ships may ride here safe from winds & weather. I send herewith to your Lod'p a Map from the coming in of Sandy Hook to the Northmost end of this Island, wherein the soundings are marked, by which you'll perceive the coming in & conveniency of this Harbor.

Quit along the North Side of Long-Island are very good harbors & roads, but on the South side none at all.

How many Parishs, Precincts, &c.

What rivers, harbors, or roads, &c.

To the Twelfth.

What account I can at present give of this is for the most part contained in my answer to the fourth of your Lop's queries.

To the Thirteenth.

What Timber, Both our neighbors and we have convieny sufficient either mast, & other for transporting timber or building, And for trial if your Lod's materials, &c. think fit, I will send over boards of what dimensions you please; the three inch Planks I have for the Batteries cost me fifteen shillings the Hundred foot.

To the Fourteenth.

Whether Salt I can give ye Lo: no account at present, but by the next I Petre, &c. may. I will make diligent enquiry about it, & when I have got any thing worthy of your Lop's knowledge, I will acquaint you with it.

To the Fifteenth.

What number of inhabitants. Concerning the number of inhabitants, merchant, English & Foreigners, Servants, Slaves, & how many able to bear arms, it is not possible to give an exact account; but in order to my being certainly informed, I have issued forth several warrants to the sheriffs within this Government, requiring them to make an inquiry thereof, & to return the same to mee, on which returns I shall not fail to give your Lop's the account required.

To the Sixteenth.

What number of English, Scotch, Irish, or Foreigners have come to inhabit, &c. I believe for these 7 years last past, there has not come over into this province twenty English, Scotch, or Irish familys. But on the contrary, on Long Island the people encrease so fast that they complain for want of land, & many remove from thence into the neighboring province. But of French, there have been since my coming here several familys come both from St. Christopher's & England, & a great many more are expected, as alsoe from Holland, are come several Dutch familys, which is another great argument of the necessity of adding to this Govern't the neighboring English colonys, that a more equal ballance may bee kept here between his Mat's Naturall born subjects and forreigners, which latter are the most prevailing part of this Government.
I send herewith a petition of the new come naturalised French.

For Answer to the Seventeenth & Eighteenth.

17 & 18. What number of marriages, christenings, &c. What number of people dyed, &c. I must refer your Lop's to my next, by which time I doubt not but to be able to give ye desired account, having to that end issued forth the like warrant to the sheriff, as aforesaid.

To the Nineteenth.

What number of ships trade, &c. As concerning ye vessels belonging to this place, it is already answered in the answer to ye Lo's ninth querie, & for others they are but few, which are either from England, New-England, or the West Indies.

To the Twentieth.

What obstructions, &c. What obstructions do you find to the improvement of Trade, &c.
Ans. A great obstruction to our trade is the hindering the importing Tobacco from the three Lower Countys in Delaware, as I have already given your Lo's an account in answer to the fifth of your queries.

It is likewise a great hindrance to our trade here, & an inconvenience to the ships that come out of England and the fishery, that his Ma'ty keeps not an officer at Newfoundland, for formerly there went every year there sloops with provisions thither, & gave the provisions in exchange for their fish, who again sold them to the shippes for Bills of Exchange to England, which made good returns from this place, procuring back from England English goods, which paid his Ma'tys custom there.

For the regulation of our trade we have made several rules among ourselves, the cheif of which is that noe goods of the product of Europe or West Indies bee imported into this province unless it were directly from England or such part of the West Indies where such commoditys were produced, without paying as a custom to his Ma'ty 10 pr. cent.

To the One and Twentieth.

This querie is sufficiently answered in the foregoing answers. What advantage or improvements may be gained to your trade.

To the Two and Twentieth, concerning the Revenue.

I shall give your Lordships as exact an answer as its possible for me, and wherein I am deficient I shall acquaint your Lo'ps with the true causes of it. What rates and dutys, &c.

The Revenue, except that of Quit rents, has been settled upon his Ma'ty, then his Royal Highness & his heirs, by act of Assembly, payable in manner following, viz't:

For every gallon of Rum, Brandy & distilled liquors to bee imported into the province & its dependencies, four Pence currant money of the province.

For every pipe of Madera, Fyal, St. George, Canary, Malaga, Sherry, and all sweet wines, the summ of forty Shillings currant money aforesaid.

Upon all other Merchandizes imported into the province & dependencies, the sum of forty shillings currant money aforesaid, for every hundred pounds, valued at the Prime cost except those hereafter specified, viz't:

Salt, Brick, Pan Tyles, Coals, Fish, Sugar, Molasses, Cotton, Wool, Ginger, Logwood, brasolette, ffustick, West India hydes, Tobacco, bullion, & Plate.

Upon all Merchandize commonly called Indian Goods, as Duffels, Strouds, Blanketts, Plains, half thicks, Woollen Stokins, White Ozenbriggs, Kettles, hatchets, hoes, Red Lead, Vermilion, Cotton, Red Kersey, Knives, Indian Haberdashery & other Indian goods, the summ of ten Pounds currant money aforesaid, for every hundred pounds value prime cost, carried up Hudson's river, in any Vessel, Sloops, Boats or canoes, or any other way.

Upon every baril of Powder twelve Shillings.

Upon every lb. Weight of lead six Shillings.

To Every gun or gun-Baril with a lock six shillings.

For every Gall' of Rum, Brandy, or distilld Liquors that shall bee carried up Hudson's River aforesaid, four pence currant money aforesaid.

And likewise by the said act is settled upon his Ma'ty, his heirs & successors, an excise upon all liquors (beer and cyder excepted) retailed under five gallons, the sum of twelve pence currant money aforesaid, within y<sup>e</sup> city & county of New-York, Per Gallon, as alsoe the excise of twelve pence currant money aforesaid, upon each gallon of Liquor carried up Hudson's river.

And also an excise of twelve pence on Liquors retailed throughout the whole province & Dependencies, (beer and cyder only excepted.)

As also the custom & duty upon every beaver skin, commonly called a whole Beaver, nine pence.

And that all other furs & Peltry bee valued accordingly, that is, for two half Beavers nine pence, for four lapps nine pence, three drillings one shilling sixpence, ten ratoons ninepence, four foxes ninepence, four fishers ninepence, five cattis ninepence, four & twenty mees-catts ninepence, ten mallers ninepence, twenty four pounds of Moose & Deer Skin ninepence. And all other Peltry to be valued equivalent to the whole beaver exported out of this Province (bull & cowhides excepted.)

And also that all Indian Traders throughout the whole province & dependencies doe pay for the value of each hundred pounds prime cost they traffick with the Indians for, ten pounds money aforesaid.

And for all Beer & Sider retailed throughout the province & dependencies six shillings per barrel, and for each barrel of beer or sider that is sold to the Indians six shillings as if retailed.

Quit Rents.

As for quit rents at my arrival they were very inconsiderable, most made by Sr Edmund Andros, the greatest part whereof in Delaware River, the most part of the Patents granted by my predecessors were without any reservation of any quit rents or acknowledgement to his Ma'ty or very inconsiderable, such as several of Sr Edmond Andros's grants to great Townships, reserving the quit-rent of our land only, & were but confirmations of former grants & Indian purchases. These people have renewed their patents under a Greater Quit-rent, as will appear by the list sent herewith; most of these Patents granted by mee were confirmations alsoe.

The methods I took for the obliging them to this was, finding several tracts of land in their townships not purchased of the Indians and at his Maty's disposal. They were willing rather to submit to a greater quit-rent than to have that unpurchased land disposed of to others than themselves.

The persons that have had the collection, receipts & management of his Maty's revenue for these three years past and upwards, are Mr. Lucas Santon, by commission from his Ma'ty, then his Royal Highness, Collector & Receiver. John Smith, one that he brought out of England, was his deputy book-keeper & Surveyor for about three years, & one John Harlow, a servant of his, waiter & searcher.

Santon.

I gave order to Mr Santon, that for the good management of this small revenue to ye best advantage, he should not make any journey into the country on pretence of the King's business whereby to put him to charge, but that when anything occurred hee should acquaint mee with it, that I might order the Sheriffs or Justices of the Peace to take care of it. And alsoe went up to Albany myself on purpose to settle his Maty's there, where I made one Robert Livingstone, Collector & Receiver, with order to acct. wth & pay into Mr. Santon w<sup>t</sup> money hee sho<sup>d</sup> receive, for which he was to have 1s per pound of all such moneys as should pass through his hands, & alsoe made him Clerk of the Town, that both places might together afford him a competent Maintenance.

At Esopus, one Thomas Garton was by Mr. Santon made collector & receiver, who, as I find by Mr. Santon's account, had not accounted with him for these three years past. Upon which I was forc<sup>t</sup> to send an order of Council for his coming hither with his accts., who, when hee came, gave in a scroll of paper containing a confused acct. of about £200, pretending that his accts., together with a great deal of corn & peltry by him collected & received for his Maty's customs, excise, Quit-Rents, were burnt in his house, so that all the Council & I could get from him for three years & an half past, was a bond of £200.

Since that I have set the Excise of that Country alone to Mr. Pawling, Sheriff, for £110.

As for the County of Richmond I have no acct. thereof, as your Lop's will see by the audit.

And for the County of West Chester one Collins is Collector & Receiver there, whoe (as your Lop's may likewise see by the audit) has not given any account—only this Mr. Santon tells me that in Sept. last hee took two bonds for money payable in March next, which I look upon to bee nothing, & all the Revenue of that County lost, the man having hardly bread to put in his mouth.

The first year there was £52 offered for the Excise of Long Island, but I thought it unreasonable, it being the best peopled place in this govern<sup>t</sup>, & wherein there's great consumption of Rumm, & therefore I gave commission to Mr. Nicolls and Mr. Vaughton to gathere it, with whom I made this agreement, that out of it they should have forty pounds, & that they should account with Mr. Santon for the Remainder.

Since that, for these two years past, one Henry Fillkin has been collector, & for his pains has a salary of £30 per ann. What returns he makes I referr to the audit, most part of the people of that Island, especially towards the East end, are of the same stamp with those of New-England, refractory & very loath to have any commerce with this place, to the great detrm<sup>t</sup> of his Matys revenue & ruin of our Merchants. To prevent which, the aforementioned act of Assembly, imposing 10 p<sup>r</sup> cent. upon all such goods as should be imported from any Colony where such goods were not produced passed, which was intended chiefly to hinder their carrying their oyle to Boston & bringing goods from thence into this government.

They thought it a hardship to be obliged as formerly to come to this city to enter & clear, & on their application were allowed to have a port, where I made Mr. Arnold Collector & Receiver, with order to be accomptable to Mr. Santon.—What returns he has given, I likewise referr to the audit.

I allowed him for 3 years & half last past but £52, with which hee was well satisfied, having had some perquisites by Entrys & clearing there. Notwithstanding the desire of theirs was readily granted, they refused to take our merchants' money or goods, & carried away their oyle private to Boston, & brought back goods from thence as formerly. Therefore, with the advice of the Council, I made an order that all people before they goe there, shall enter & clear here; and also, I have bought a Bark that crusethe there, with a master, two seamen, a sergeant & six soldiers from the Garrison, for which the soldiers are allowed no more than their pay, except a little provision more than their former allowance; the Master & two Seamen I have listed in the Company alsoe, & allow them something more than Soldier's pay.

As for the Dukes County and County of Cornwall, I refer to ye audit. What acct Mr. Santon gives, & Judge Palmer whom I sent thither last spring, & has made his returns to Mr. Santon, among which there's an account of the seizure of wines and oyl made in the county of Cornwall.

The first year I left every thing to the care of Mr. Santon & what officers he thought fit to put in, but afterwards finding things ill managed, I spoke to Mr. Santon several times, advising him, as a friend, to look better to the trust reposed in him.

What returns hee has made mee for my kindness, I will pass by, & say noe more of them than I am obliged to doe for my own vindication, having nothing of ill will against him.

After the expiration of the year I desired him to bring in his accounts, that they might be audited, which he promised me from time to time, but in such a manner, as was not fit for him, for always when I spoke to him of Moneys & account, he flew into a passion.

Upon which, I ordered him, that since hee had no better government of himself, he should refrain from coming into my company, & after I frequently sent to him by the Sec'y for his accompt's, who likewise met with the same dilatory answers. Upon which, I had him brought before the council 3 or 4 times, where he was often ordered to bring in his acct's, but all to noe purpose, for upwards of a year together, as ye Lo'ps may see by the time of the audit, & by the several orders of council herewith sent.

At last, when his acct's came, I shewed them to the council, who were mightily surprised that for Eighteen years & upwards, the Revenue should amount but to £3000 & odd pounds, upon which I had them audited, and thereby found a great many frauds had been done to the King, as your Lop's may see by the said audit, & the charge brought in & proved against Mr. Santon.

Then I desired him to put John Smith from the office of Surveyor and out of the Custom house, having the Charity for Mr. Santon to believe that that man cheated him as well as the king, (I having had while in England this ill character of him, Sr. Benjn. Bathurst, that for his misbehavior he had been turned out of a good employment.) But he never wo'd comply with it notwithstanding several orders of the Council to that effect, until I put in one Thomas Coker to bee Surveyor, upon which Smith being concerned at losing his surveyor's place, grew very insolent, and put Mr. Santon upon worse measures as is believed, for which & other misdemeanors, as y'r Lop's may P'ceave by the minutes of council sent over by Mr. Sprag, he was turned wholly out of the custom House.

In. Hatlow, (sevt. to Mr. Santon,) that was writer and searcher, he sent into England, as I am informed, to the Commissioners of the Custom House, for a commission to bee Collector for the enumerated commoditys here, & would force so much for his going & coming as yr. Lop's may see charged in his acct. brought into the audit, & likewise has brought in a note of his for four and twenty pounds odd money for going to the East end of Long Island, in which he did not spend fourteen days time.

The Auditor finding noe cheque upon the collector, his book-keeper being surveyor, called upon this Hatlow for his warrants, who answered that hee had none, or that if ever hee had any hee had left them in England.

Upon which I put in one Larken in his stead, who, upon an order in Council set up in the Custom House, commanding noe goods to goe off without a warrant, refusing to lett some goods bee exported on the verbal order of Mr. Santon only, was by him turned out of that place, as your Lop's will see by the aforementioned charge & the proofs thereto.

After the audit of his first accts. the others were demanded, and with the same difficulty as the former obtained, as yr. Lop's may perceive by the said minutes of Council particularly, the order for payment every Saturday, which was thus. The Council considering how dilatory Mr. Santon was, & with what difficulty he would be brought to account. being satisfied that Mr. Santon was then behind hand in his paym'ts, & that in process of time he might bee yet more soe, for the preventing of further embezzlement of his Maty's revenue, they ordered him that every Saturday hee should acct. with & pay into mee what he had received the preceeding week, which was a method taken in the time of Sr. Edmond Andros with Capt. Dyer. the then collector, upon the like occasion, tho' this had not the like effect, thro' Mr. Santon's disobedience, for as hee did with all other orders, hee did with this, hee took noe notice of it.

As alsoe there were several orders of Council requiring him to have all his accts. from the 25th of March to the 6th of October, ready for Mr. Sprag to carry over audited with him, who had agreed for his passage in a ship, & kept her here on that purpose these two months past.

But with all this he made noe compliance, pretending that by a letter from My Lord Treasurer, hee was satisfied his accomps were not to be audited here, that hee was only obliged to leave a duplicate with mee, upon which the council upon sight of the letter, agreed that it was reasonable for him to send his accompts home, but that nevertheless it was my duty to have them audited according to former instructions, & soe to continue to doe until I should have order to the contrary from Mr. Blothwayt, to whom my Lord Treasurer, in his letter refers, it being otherwise impossible for me to answer this query.

Seeing soe many abuses done to his Mat'y, & finding fair means to be wholly ineffectual to the making Mr. Santon discharge his duty, & hee continuing still refractory & disobedient to the several orders of Council to him directed, the charge which yr. Lop's have herewith, was drawn up against him, to which he answered in such manner as your Lop's will see on perusal of the copy thereof herewith sent. Upon hearing of which charge and answer, & ye proofs thereto herewith likewise sent, the Council made their report to mee under their hands, in manner as your Lop's see by the copy thereof, which you have likewise herewith, wherein altho' they positively say that hee has been an unfaithful servt. to his Mat'y in the management of his Revenue, yet I sent for him & advised him to give security for the balance of the acct. that by the audit he was found behind hand. And for his better carriage for the future, which if he did, I promised to pass by all former faults and make noe complaint against him. I not only told him so myself, but from time to time sent messages to him to this effect, sometimes by such of the council as were his particular friends, sometimes by the ministers, & often by the secretary, but all to noe purpose, hee still continued obstinate.

And what returns hee made mee to these several instances of my kindness I shall not now trouble your Lo'ps with.

Nevertheless I forbade doing any thing further against him till the expiration of the second audit, proposing that then, when I could know the whole amount of his debt, I would at once doe my best to secure the King's concerns from sustaining any loss by him.

At last he brought in a book without being signed, and said hee could not leive them neither, they being to be sent over to Mr. Blothwayt. Whereupon we were forced to give him 3 weeks longer to get them copied, & then with great adoe he signed them & brought in with them an acc't, called a general acc't, an acc't so extravagant that your Lo'ps have hardly seen the like.

Then I pressing the auditors to make an end, they desired that they might have his papers to compare with those books & accomps he had delivered in, which by order of council hee was required to deliver to them. But he refusing as appears by the testimony of 3 of the auditors herewith sent, It was ordered that his said papers should bee seized & he suspended from the s'd office of collector, & bee taken into the sheriff's custody and there remain till hee should give in such security as in the said orders is expressed, as relation to the said orders had, may more at large appear.

Upon search of the Papr's relating to his Mat'y's revenue I found a charge drawn up against myself with letters to Ma'ty, Lord T'sear, Lord Chancellor & several other gentlemen, stuf't with complaints against me and other P'sons which are wholly false.

Indeed its true, the poor Gentleman since his coming here has been troubled with 304 Hypochondriack fitts, hee was in one of them when his Ma'ty's nomination of the council came over, upon which they all thought it not convenient to have him sworn at least at that time, as your Lopp's will see by the Minutes of councill.

And My lords, to be short, I must say this of him, hes a man wholly unfit for business, especially this, wherein hee has noe more skill than a child, Soe that for the executing of it hee must have his whole dependance on another. I am sure if I had not taken more care of the Revenue than he did since I found his failure, it been more embezeled than it is, for though hee received the Money I was obliged to continual watching to guard against his carelessness & neglects.

And truly, what he takes very ill, what there is neither president nor Establishment for.

In his commission hee has allowed him £200 pr. annum, the same allowance that Dyer had in the time of S'r Edmond Andros, of which £100 was for the Surveyor, Comptroller & Waiter, therefore, I finding no new establishment allow him no more than Dyer had for him & his officer's salary, it being the sentiment of the council that I could not alter the former practice with which they were well acquainted. But he gives himself a far larger allowance; hee will have it that his salary is sterling; & to make it so of this country money he charges three & thirty P'r cent. advance & one hundred pound more for his two under officers, Besides this, Mr. Smith being his Deputy-Surveyor & Book-Keeper, he would have allowance to him £50 P'r ann., as his deputy, £40 P'r ann., as his accomptant, £30 P'r ann., for his transcribing his books, £20 P'r annum, P'r his diet besides his salary for surveyor, For John Harlow hee would have allowed £30 P'r ann. as Waiter, £48 P'r ann. as being employed by him in the King's service where or how noe man knows, £20 P'r ann. for his Diet, and £162 and two voyages made into England with despatches for his Ma'ty, all this and a great deal more such for his officers in the country, & the like your Lo'ps will see in his general acct, a copy whereof is herewith sent.

Notwithstanding hee charges the King soe largely for his officers Salaries, to some of them hee has paid nothing at all, insomuch as they are making very great clamor for their money, & not getting it from him expect it from the King.

Of his own head hee bought a little rotten tool of a Sloop on pretence for his Mat'ys service, which as your Lo'ps may see by their audit, has stood the King in near £700, & now cannot be sold for thirty, soe must either be laid up or burnt.

In his Instructions & by several orders from me & the council, he was expressly forbid to trust out his Ma'tys revenue, notwithstanding I was forc't to take notes from him to the value of £8000, besides a great more which he pretends still to be standing out as your Lo'ps will perceive by the audit.

He has likewise been negligent in taking the bonds required by the laws of the Government from the masters of ships, one ill consequence whereof has been the New-York Pink has carried off several Elephants teeth without entry, & the bond being inquired for there was none taken, How he has behaved himself touching an Interloper that came in hither I have already given S'r Benjamin Batthurst an account, and as for the debts for him pretended too the auditors, upon enquiry the most of them are found to be received by him, and I beleive of thee rest, the twentieth part will never be had, they are soe ill.

And besides, notwithstanding his confused way of accounting, & being without a cheque upon him as aforesaid, he is found by his own accounts brought into the audit to be £1758 15 shilling three pence and  $\frac{3}{4}$ ths of a penny in debt to the King as your Lo'ps may see by said audit, which (as is to be feared) is all gone besides his Salary and P'quisites, on which he might have lived very handsomely.

Hee (as hee hath all along done) does to all persons he converseth with, speak scurrilously & abusively of me & ye council, which considering the circumstances we let pass without taking any notice of.

He is likewise very troublesome to the present management of his Ma'tys customs.

I desire that as soon as may bee I may know what his Mat'ys pleasure is should be done with him; what acc't I have here given y'r Lo'rps of him is as moderate as may bee, farr short of what I might have represented, & yet have spoken nothing but the truth. What I have done has not been out of malice, for I beare none to him, rather pitty, but purely with an intent to doe his Ma'ty Service & to secure his interest, as I doubt not will appear to y'r Lopp's, and if I bee to bee blamed for any thing in the series of this affair its for too much forbearance.

Thus my Lords I have given you as good an account of the Revenue received & by whom as I can, as also how the same in a great part of it has been mismanaged, and by what means I shall therefore now proceed to give your Lopp's an estimate of what charge the maintenance of this govern't has hitherto been to mee, & what will bee requisite for its further support.

Its a very hard thing upon mee that coming over hither in troublesome times, finding noe revenue established, & yet having three garrisons to look after, & the forts in the condition before mentioned, & finding such contest between the Govern't of Canada, & this about the Beaver Trade, the Inland Country & the Indians to purchase, as I was obliged by my instructions, sixty odd miles, upon Hudson's River 17 or 18 into the land in one place from the Indians. In another place up the River 16 miles. And on the south side of Long Island twelve miles, to give a great deal to the Indians for Susquehanna River, to bee at great expences on the Assembly at their first sitting, when they gave the revenue, & on the Lord Howard of Effingham, when here with his train, Governor Pen, Commissioners from Boston & other Colonies, the Gov'r of Connecticut, East & West Jersey, the running the line between this & East Jersey, and the like between Connecticut and this, tho' that last not yet finished, besides the Establishment as will appear by my books when audited & sent over, which shall be by the very first conveniency, & had been long ere now, had I got Mr. Santon's sooner done.

In the meantime y'r Lop's may be capable of making an estimate of the constant charge of the Govern't by the calculation thereof herewith sent, in which you see that there is set down yearly for the Council, Judges & Attorney-General, which, tho' not at present allowed in my opinion with submission to your Lop's, there is a necessity there should. The councillors being persons obliged to a constant attendance from their own buisness, & the Judges, such as devote themselves wholly to that service, & whose present salary is soe small to support, and their familys in that station as is set forth in their petition, which I have herewith sent to his Mat'y for his consideration, Neither can the Attorney-General's small perquisites be able to maintain him in going through his Mat'ys concerns, which takes up his whole time, without the addition of such salary as his Mat'y shall think fitt to allow.

Your Lop's taking all this into y'r consideration, cannot but think his Ma'ty must be in debt, which, however, would not have been very much had Mr. Santon done his duty.

What revenue there is, is with the ease & satisfaction of the people paid without grumbling, tho' as much as modestly can bee put upon them.

Soe that if Connecticut bee added to the Govern't, it can bee hardly able to support itself. But if it bee added, The revenue will be sufficient to keep the King wholly out of debt.

Mr. Santon taxes me covetousness, in not allowing sufficient-ly to the officers employed. Niggardly I have not been, but the revenue being soe small & having soe great a charge, I endeavored to bee as good a husband for the King as I could—I'm sure better than I ever was for myself—and truly I have been put soe to it to make things doe, that what small P'quisites I got, I have disburst, & not only soe, but have been forc't to engage my credit so far as t'would goe, & that not sparing to pawn my plate for money to carry on the King's affairs, & now I have sent some of it home by Mr. Sprag, to reimburse Sr. Ben. Bathurst what hee has paid for mee, & to provide clothes for the soldiers & some things for my own use.

Now My Lords, before I proceed to answer the rest of your queries, I will take occasion here to give your Lop's satisfaction as to those articles Mr. Santer has been pleased to draw up against me, a copie whereof I herewith send for y'r Lop's perusal, the scope of which being to charge me with mismanagement of his Maty's affairs, I thought noe place more proper for my making appear the falsity of his accusation than here, Wherein I have been soe long treating of the mismanagement of the revenue in which this man himself had soe large a share, which answers follow distinctly with relation to such proofs as are herewith sent necessary for my vindication.

As to the First Article—Concerning a copartnership in a trade to France, &c.

For my Justification, & making appear the falsehood of this article, is the testimony of Mr. John Sprag & Mr. Gabriel Minvielle, taken before Mr. Swinton, clerk of the council, hereunto annexed.

To the Second—Concerning a Partnership in Trade to Newfoundland.

This is noe less true than the other, as appears by Major Brokhelle's testimony, &c., & truly had I any such design, I had not communicated with the King's collector, especially to a man of his dispositions, & subject to soe many follies & infirmitys, that he was never capable of concealing his own secrets from the very rabble of the town, & always made the debates of the council (while he was a member of it) the subject matter of his tavern discourse.

To the Third—Concerning my going sharer with the Privateers.

Wherein hee does mee the honor to Join mee in Partnership with the privateers, I dont believe that Frederick Flipson ever went sharer with any body in a ship, & I am sure Beekman never had a vessel nor a share in a vessel, in his life. Had I had 2 or 3 men's shares of what was got upon the wreck, I think it had been noe breach of Law or my instructions, it being customary in such cases for the Gov'rs of Plantations to have it. But Mr. Santon, too, was mistaken in this; they did not clear for the wreck, & least they should make incursions upon the Spaniards, I took security from them that they should not; in short, for my Justification on this point, I refer myself to the testimonies of Frederick Flipson & Beekman, & the Obligation aforesaid, herewith sent.

To the Fourth—Copartnership with Mr. Antill for Jamaica.

Hee Does me wrong. I never was concerned with Mr. Antill in copartnership. One Vaughton, half Brother to Mr. Sprag, that had been a volunteer 2 or 3 years on board Capt'n Temple, & hapning to bee in London when I came away, offered his services to come along with me, whom finding a pretty ingenious young man & out of employment, I promised to help him with a little mony when hee stood in need of it for to put him into some way. Whereupon, not long after this Antill purposed, if he could get money from his brother or any other, to purchase the half of a little ship then to be sold, hee would purchase the other & that Vaughton should goe master of her, upon which, in kindness to him, I let him have the money & took the vessel in security for it, & by him sent as a venture ten barils of Oyle of a drift Whale that came to my share, & thirteen half barils of Flower, to purchase Sugar, Molasses, Sweetmeats, Oranges and other necessarys for use in my family. And this (as Mr. Santon knows as well as I and most of the town) was all the concerns I ever had with Antill.

To the Fifth—Concerning the Dogger.

This Mr. Beekman having a sloop went from this place to Nevis, & S'r William Stapleton hearing of a Dutch Privateer gave him a commission to goe after him, which hee did & took a great ugly vessel y'e Dutch have for fishing, with one deck, & went back with her to Nevis. Whereupon S'r Wm., in reward of his good service gave him the King's & his own share in her, soe hee brought her hither, where shee being a Dutch built, & the man having a mind to sell her, had her condemned at a court of admiralty. Upon which I forgave him the King's share, which by apprizement, amounted to —, as doth appear by Mr. Beekman's testimony.

To the Sixth—Concerning Heathcot's Sloop.

Mr. Santon does me wrong in this, for upon the word of a Christian, I knew not at this minute who were the apprizers, they having been appointed by the court, where the sloop & goods were condemned, & they too, upon their oaths. Neither had I any advantage by that vessel, as Mr. Santon knows, tho' hee had, by making George Heathcot pay him ninety pound & charges, which was more than the third part of the condemnation came too, soe that I hope this is not the voyage hee charges the King with soe much for, tho' it is the only remarkable one hee ever made, & yet but ten miles distant from this place.

To the Seventh—Concerning My Lord Neill Campbell's Goods.

My Lord Neill Campbell, its true, desired my bill of store for the 10 p'r cent., which I did grant, but Mr. Santon does me wrong to say that I ordered they should be entered without examination; to the best of my remembrance, there was noe such thing: but here hee forgets what hee has done himself, what goods hee has admitted to entry without examination contrary to Act of Assembly & my order, as appears by his own books, to the great diminution of his Ma'tys revenue in this province: neither does he remember what bills of store hee has granted, notwithstanding several orders to the contrary.

To the Eighth—Concerning one Riddell.

Mr. Santon does me wrong in this. One Mr. Riddell, a poor gentleman that brought into this city without entry (as a great many others have done, without Mr. Santon or his officers taking notice thereof) a small parcell of Linen afterwards appraised to be of the value of 3 or 5 Pounds, And after Riddell & one of the officers of the Custom House drinking, drunk together, fell a quarrelling, on which the officer went out, & meeting with Vaughton about one or two in the morning, compelled him to goe along with him to seize uncustomed goods at Riddell's lodging, where when they came they broke open the door upon this Riddell, who being still drunk endeavoured to keep them out, & in the struggling stabbed Mr. Vaughton. Whereupon he was secured in prison where hee lay a long time, till Vaughton recovered. Afterwards the poor man being in a starving condition on the application, Mr. Vaughton & himself, & Mr. Sprag & several others, he was set at liberty, and on a petition of his to the Council his goods were ordered to be released, hee paying all charges, which being more than the value of the goods, Mr. Sprag in charity to Riddell paid the Surgeons their demand, which was ten pounds without taking anything from him.

To the Ninth—Concerning Capt. Santon's Warrants to the Sheriffs, &c.

Mr. Santon knows himself, that from time to time, by order of Council, all the Sheriffs have been obliged to account with him for all rents, Quit rents & arrearages of rent, &c., yet this would not do to make himself seem great, hee would needs issue forth his own warrants, which poor man was done in one of his fits, & indeed they met with such reception as they deserved, the sheriffs took noe other notice of them than to send them to mee. Whereupon I being somewhat surprised at his manner of proceeding, called him before the Council, where (being asked how he came to issue forth such warrants) his answer was, that to his knowledge the Lord Treasurer did soe in England. But here I would ask Capt. Santon, why he hath not given a better account of such Quit rents, &c., as have passed through his hands?

To the Tenth—Concerning my Covetousness as he is pleased to term it.

Here (if Mr. Santon speaks true in saying I have been covetous) it was in the management of this small revenue to the best advantage, & had Mr. Santon been as Just as I have been Careful, the King had not been in debt, as I had more in my pocket than now I have.

It may be true when I called for the King's money & accomps from Mr. Santon, & I met with unbecoming returns I might use some passionate expressions.

And as for my pinching the officers, if hee means himself, it was because he took it very ill that I would not allow him 7 or 800 pounds extravagant expenses, As for Fran. Barber I never spoke a word to him of Salary in my life, and leave it to the audit what acct. hee gives of the Revenue of that Country for three years & one-half.

To the Eleventh—Concerning the Excise of Long Island, &c.

What Mr. Santon says concerning the offer of £52 for the excise p'r year may be true. I thought it very unreasonable that the Excise of three countrys should be formed for soe little, therefore I fixed upon Mr. Vaughton & Mr. Nicolls, looking upon them to be honest men, & agreed with them for £20 P. P's & what they could make over & above they should deliver to Mr. Santon. That Dan Whitehead offered mee three pounds for my license, it is false, or that I had £10 from Nicolls & Vaughton is likewise false, as doth appear by Mr. Nicolls testimony, & would by that of Mr. Vaughton, were hee here. Neither had I ever any money for licenses since I came to this government except from Albany, & this place £24, but on the contrary gave it all to the collectors of the respective countrys for their encouragement.

To the Twelfth—Concerning Mr. Pretty, &c.

Mr. Pretty is sheriff of that county, & having a great deal of other concerns upon his hands for the King & Country's service, that being a frontier Country to Canada, soe that hee could not possibly attend the Surveyors place, I put in William Shaw, who had that place before in the time of S'r Edmond Andros, & as Mayor Brockhellas informs us, behaved himself faithfully therein.

And as to his allegation in his memorandums, that Shaw was put in for satisfaction for two or three years pay due to him, it is wholly untrue, as does appear by the testimony of Mayor Baxter, Mr. Coker, and by the receipt under Shaw's own hand.

This John Smith is a man that if hee were as honest as hee is able, the King had had more Justice done him & Mr. Santon more money in his pocket. What account Sr. Benj. Batthurst gave mee of him I have already acquainted yr. Lopp's with, & for what reasons hee was turned out of the Custom House is herein before given to your Lop's.

To the Fourteenth—Concerning the pasture of Albany, &c.

As for this pasture, he is mistaken. It was never yet in the King's hands, but hee that was the commander took some profits of it, which was a great grievance to the people, it having been patented by Governor Nicolls to several people, & by them built upon, whose buildings have since been carried away by the overflowing of the river. It does not contain above fifteen or sixteen acres. I doubt not but I shall make it appear that I have done nothing in this to his Maty's prejudice. I conceive I have done the King very good service in Albany. The Town of Albany lyes within the Ranslaer's Colony, and to say the truth, the Ranslaers had the right to it, for it was they settled the place, & upon a petition of one of them to our present King about Albany, the Petitioner was referred to his Maty's Council at law, who, upon a perusal of the Ranslaers papers, made their return that it was their opinion that it did belong to them, upon which there was an order sent over to Sr. Edmund Andros that the Ranslaers should be put in possession of Albany, & that every house should pay some two beavers, some more some less, according to their dimensions, per annum, for thirty years, & afterwards the Ranslaers to put what rent upon them they could agree for—What reason Sr. Edmund Andros has given for not putting these orders in execution, I know not.

The Ranslaers came & brought me the same orders, which I thought not convenient to execute, judging it not for his Maty's interest that the second Town of the government, & which brings his Maty's soe great a Revenue should be in the hands of any particular men. The town of itself is upon a barren sandy spot of land, & the Inhabitants live wholly upon trade with the Indians. By the means of Mr. James Graham, Judge Palmer, & Mr. Cortlandt, that have great influence on that people, I got the Ranslaers to release their pretence to the town & sixteen miles into the country, for commons to the King, with liberty to cut firewood within the Colony for one and twenty years. After I had obtained this release of the Ranslaers, I passed the Patent for Albany, wherein was included the aforementioned pasture, to which the people apprehended they had so good right that they expressed themselves discontented at my reserving a small spot of it for a garden for the use of the garrison.

That the people of Albany has given me £700, is untrue. I am but promised £300, which is not near my p'rquisites, viz., ten shillings for every house, & the like for every hundred acres patented by me, established by a committee appointed by the assembly for the establishing of all fees, where Capt. Santon may remember, himself was chairman. Alsoe, what they have given to those other Gentlemen, I know nothing of it, & upon my word in Gen'l, I have not got the fourth part of my P'rquisites, chusing rather to want them than take from the poor people that cannot spare it.

Mr. Santon might have given a better account of this, if his malice had suffered him. The farm at East Jersey paid £10 P'r annum to his Ma'ty, & at a Rack-rent, the proprietors of East Jersey putting us to more trouble than the value of it, they constantly disturbing the Tenants, on pretence that his Ma'ty had granted that to them, soe that I conclude it would be more inconvenient to keep it than to part with it. Therefore, Judge Palner having an interest in East Jersey, & an influence with the Governor there, on his giving mee his obligation to pay as a fine the summ of £60 to the King, in case hee should not think fit to forgive it, & the rent of twenty shillings P'r annum, & to defend the Title, I gave him a lease of the reversion of it.

To the Sixteenth.—Concerning Rockaway Neck, &c.

Mr. Santon, poor man, neither understands his own nor others concerns, he was one of the council himself when Capt. Palmer petitioned for licence to purchase this land, lying without the Meers & bounds of Hempstead, & when the same was granted, & before hee had his patent granted, the People of Hempstead were summoned to appear to show cause, if they had any, why it should not be granted, Thereupon one person came to mee & told mee that it was his land, & that it was within the Meers & bounds of Hempstead, on which I ordered him to put in a Caveat into the Secr'y's office, against the passing of Judge Palmer's patent, and then the surveyor went to survey the lands, accompanied by some of the Inhabitants of Hempstead, to show him their bounds, who returning this land to be without their Meers & bounds, the patent was passed in which Capt'n Palmer is expressly bounded where hee adjoins to Hempstead by their line, and, wherein hee says the Hempstede people were frighted to let their suits fall, its quite otherwise, for this Pearsall, upon the granting of this Patent got into possession of this land, inasmuch as Judge Palmer was forced to commence suits against him. Where, after it had sometime depended, Pearsall finding that to insist on his pretence would not avail him, suffered Judgement to goe against him, and as for being frighted into it by Capt'n Palner's being Judge, there's noe such thing, for on purpose he withdrew himself, & left the management of that Court to his colleague, Judge Nicolls, and as for the lands being the only pasture of the town, its wholly false, for its noe pasture at all, being all woodland, and that town having a plain of upwards of 40,000 Acres of good pasture without a stick upon it, & as for its value, I believe Judge Palmer would think himself obliged to Capt'n Santon or any others, that would give him £200 for it.

To the Seventeenth.—Concerning Mr. Graham's Insinuation.

Mr. Santon is in the right, that Mr. Graham is Attorney-General & Supervisor of all patents, & soe made upon Mr. Rudyard's going from this place to Barbadoes, & is a person understanding in the law, it being his whole business.

Wherefore I thought it not fit to pass any patents without his perusal, least I might doe prejudice to the King. Its likewise true that I have called in former patents & still continue to doe so, that I might see by what tenure they hold their lands, which I find generally to be by none, they paying noe acknowledgement to the King, Whereupon being convinced of that defect by the resolution of y<sup>e</sup> Judges the people for their ow Ease & quiet, and that of their posterity, which otherwise might have fallen under the lash of succeeding Governors, without the least murmuring have renewed their patents with a reservation of a certain Quit-Rent to the King, to the noe small advancement of his revenue, & this done with general satisfaction, & of which none will in the least complain, but on the contrary express themselves thankful for it.

Mr. Santon, sure when he wrote this article against mee did not consider the obligation that was upon us both to advance the King's interest in our several stations, far less how inconsistent it was with his office, to bee the only P'son aggreived at the advancement of his Mat'ys revenue, when the people themselves that are concerned are not only satisfied but pleased with it.

Again hee forgets that hee was a member of the Council when they gave it for their opinion that those former patents were insufficient, & were then dayly consenting to the passing of New ones. As for sums of money exacted, I own I have received £200 from Ranslear, but its nothing to what my perquisites would have amounted to according to the aforementioned regulation, hee having a vast tract of land.

From Hempted I rec'd one hundred pound by forty, & that in cattle, which is far less than my P'quisites, they having upwards of 100,000 acres. I own alsoe I have received £300 from the City of New-York, & have granted them nothing more than what they had from my predecessors, & is now before his Mat'y for a confirmation.

The land that Mr. Santon complains of to bee such a greivance, is the Dock which the town at their own proper charge have taken from the sea, & dayly are at vast expense to maintain, & what use they make of it is not my business to inquire, but as to their selling to the value of £1500 for my use is wholly false, and as for those other sums of 50, 30, & 20 pounds, its not soe. I was never covetous to take from the poor people what they could not well spare, the Secretary is my witness, but if I had it never amounted to my P'quisites, according to the regulation aforesaid.

Besides the charge herein before answered, were found several Memorandums of what Mr. Santon intended to complain against me. Among which, there being some things not mentioned in the said charge, the same as I presume not being perfected, I presume further to trouble your Lop's with what I have to say therein in my vindication.

I am sorry Mr. Santon has not a better memory. The King's share of Cobby's ship came by apprizement to £19 7s. 6d., which was by Judge Palmer paid into Capt. Santon's own hands, as appears by the testimony of Capt'n Palmer.

As to Mr. Merritt's house, it does not pay soe much rent as Merritt's House Capt'n Santon pretends, & is too quite out of repair, ready to drop down.

Answers to
mem'dums.

Cobby's Ship.

The Farm.

And as to the farm, hee might have remembered that I showed him a letter from S'r B. Bathurst, wherein was intimated that his Royal Highness, now his Ma'ty, was pleased I should have both the farm & the house during the time of my government of this place.

Coker's House.

For Coker's house, I am glad Capt'n Santon has found so considerable a rent, for my part I never received a penny for it, therefore I shall now charge £72 more, being four years rent, to Capt'n Santon's account, for which he has not yet given the King credit. There was a cooper liv'd in the next house to it, and paid 12 or 15 pound P'r ann., for which I find no credit given to the King in Capt'n Santon's books. Since the cooper left, the poorest P'son in town would not live in it, being ready to drop down, & Coker's is not in a better condition, soe bad they are that its a wonder to every body that they stand yet, in soe much that when Dr. Innes brought me my Lord Middleton's order to let him have them, & I showed them to him, hee would not live in them.

Two or three years agoe S'r John Worden sent me an order to give a long lease of them to any that would take it. I have not met with any such person, & I am sure if rebuilt by the King, It will not give him the interest of his money, & Meritt's house is in the same condition, as appears by the return of a survey made by some of the council and carpenters sent to view it.

Antill's business.

As for the business between Mr. Santon & Mr. Antill, its a thing soe scandalous that I will not trouble your Lo'ps with an account of it, only this I'll say, that Mr. Antill sent severall to him, and I spake to him myself, to let him know that Mr. Antill would be satisfied with an acknowledgement that hee had done him wrong in speaking those scandalous words, & that it was the effects of drink. But Mr. Santon's pride was such that hee would not doe it, but continued to justify what hee had said.

Whereupon Mr. Antill took out the execution against him, (he not being then of the Council,) but before the serving sent him y'e like message as before with the same effect, whereupon the execution was served.

Larkin's Case.

As for Larkin's case, I refer to the orders of Council herewith sent.

And as for the King's concerns going in a right channel, I am sure they never can where he has powers. As for desiring a list of his Maty's Quit-Rents & my denying it to him, its wholly untrue, for he has a book with an acct. of all the Quit-Rents that then were to bee found mentioned in the records of Patents kept in the Secretary's office, which I caused Coker to draw out on purpose for him.

Smith kept the key of the Granary, & what corn I received for my own use or the use of the Garrison was taken out by Coker, & it was shown to Mr. Smith where I gave credit to the King for it in my books.

Afterwards finding that Santon gave no credit to the King for what corn came into the Granary, I took the key from Smith & gave it to James Larkins, with order to him to give receipts for what should bee brought in, & to give an account of it to Smith, that hee might enter it upon the books.

Hee does Judge Palmer & Mr. Graham wrong, for they are Capt. Palmer & persons look't upon by the Council as fittest for those employ- Mr. Jn. Graham. ments they are in, viz., Palmer Judge, & Graham attorney for the King, And if Mr. Santon would speak the truth, he must needs say they both have been very serviceable for the King in the advancement of his Revenue, & that they still continue with their utmost endeavors soe to bee. And though their way of living is by the law, yet their management has been such by arbitration & such other mild courses, that were there was ten actions formerly there is not one now. And the Council had soe good an opinion of Capt. Palmer, that hee was thought the fittest to bee the Judge of ye Court for the King's affairs.

As for Sloops, &c., going from this to Newfoundland, if it was against the act of Navigation, hee did ill to admit soe many to clear & enter to & from thence without soe much as taking notice of it, till hee & Major Brockelles falling out, hee took occasion to seize his sloop, which the Council & I looking upon to bee only malicious, discharged, taking security from him till his Maty's further pleasure were known. Mr. Mayne coming here & showing me his instructions, noe vessel has gone from hence thither since.

And had I not relyed soe much upon Capt. Santon none had gone, & for his sake I'll not trust to another soe much again.

Mr. Santon was in the right, I was angry to find a cart load of goods going off the bridge after shutting up the Custom House, without entry, & demanding of the man how long they had been there, hee answered from seven in the morning, without any officer taking notice of them. Upon my speaking to Mr. Santon he fell excusing his officers, & gave me ill words. What thereupon happened, I refer to my Lord Neal & Mr. Mayne's testimonies that were then witnesses of it.

As for Woolsford's case, I have already your Lo'ps to the account given thereof to S'r Benjamin Bathurst.

The Negro story I refer to the record herewith sent; I never did anything since I came into the Government without the advice & consent of the Council.

The Ship Charts was cleared upon trial. Mr. Santon had nothing to allege against her.

The sloop Lancaster is the same with that of Gov. Heathcot, before mentioned.

The Boat of D'Morez was condemned for going to the Mill with corn, without the Govern't, & seized by Capt. Santon.

The Sloop Fortune was condemned, & my own share as well as the King's forgiven, the poor man having done what he did innocently.

The Sloop Lewis came from Pettiquaves, & brought here some of our people who had been taken by the Spaniards in going to Jamaica with provisions, & had fled to Petiquaves, & the sloop coming hither, the Master sent up word from Sandy Hook that hee would willingly come & live here, which I willingly granted him liberty to doe, & in consideration of his service in bringing home our people, I forgave the King's & my own part in the sloop after she was condemned, with the Proviso that if his Ma'ty did not approve of it, hee should pay that share according to appraizement, for which bond was accordingly taken, as will appear to y'r Lo'ps by the attested copie herewith sent. In short, all that I'll say, hee's fitter for a retired life, than to bee the King's collector.

What estimate
You can make touching the Estates, &c.

To the Three & Twentieth.

The answer thereof is referred to the next.

In answer to the Tenth & Four & Twentieth Querie.

What Persuasions in Religi-

Every Town ought to have a Minister. New-York has first a chaplain belonging to the Fort, of the Church of England; Secondly, a Dutch Calvinist; thirdly, a French Calvinist; fourthly, a Dutch Lutheran. Here bee not many of the Church of England; few Roman Catholicks; abundance of Quakers preachers, men & women especially; Singing Quakers, Ranting Quakers; Sabbatarians; Antisabbatarians; Some Anabaptists; some Independents; Some Jews; in short, of all sorts of opinions there are some, and the most part of none at all.

The Church.

The Great Church which serves both the English & the Dutch is within the Fort, which is found to bee very inconvenient. therefore I desire that there may be an order for their building an other, ground already being layd out for that purpose, & they not wanting money in Store wherewithall to build it.

The most prevailing opinion is that of the Dutch Calvinists.

What course,

It is the endeavour of all P'sons here to bring up their children & servants in that opinion which themselves profess, but this I observe that they take no care of the conversion of their slaves.

Every Town and County are obliged to maintain their own poor, which makes them bee soe careful that no Vagabonds, Beggars, nor Idle persons are suffered to live here.

But as for the King's natural-born-subjects that live on Long-Island & other parts of the Government, I find it a hard task to make them pay their ministers.

THO. DONGAN.

My Lords,

Since my writing of this, on Perusal of some Papers in the Secretary's office, I found some Memorandums of S'r Edmond Andros, whereby I understand that in the year 1675-6, hee sent home Capt'n Salisbury, for England, to let his Royal Highness, now his Ma'ty, know how impossible it was, for this Government to subsist without the addition of Connecticut. And hee, himself, went with some soldiers to surprise them, intending when hee had done it, to keep possession by a Fort hee designed to make at a place called Seabrook, but was prevented by the opposition of two Company's of men then lodged there, ready to goe out ag'st the Indians, with whom they were in Warr.

Much less it can subsist now without it, being at more expence than in the time of S'r Edmond, & having lost Delaware, & soe consequently the Peltry Trade, which is not much inferior to that of the Beaver, besides much Quit-Rents & the Excise, which would have been a very considerable Revenue. And too, what helps, hee had these from East & West Jersey.

Weighing this with the reasons aforementioned, I hope his Ma'ty will bee graciously pleased to add that Colony to this, which is the centre of all His Dominions in America. And the people thereof have been more inclined to his Ma'ty service, and have expressed upon all occasions more Loyalty than any other of these Parts.

Likewise I am to give y'r Lop's an account that since I received my Instructions, I caused a vessel which came to Amboy to come hither and enter—It being the opinion of the Council, that it was both agreeable to my Instructions and former practise, especially in the time of Sr. Edm'd Andros.

I am now informed that the people of Pensilvania have had last year from the Indians, upwards of 200 packs of Beaver down to the Skonshill, & will have more this, as I have reason to believe, which if not prevented, his Ma'ty must not expect this government can maintain itself, besides that it will wholly depopulate both this Town & Albany.

One Rogers, the Weighmaster, being found indebted to the King in £190 17  $\frac{1}{2}$ , I demanded the Money from him, to which hee returned for answer, that he was Mr. Santon's servant, & would live & die by him, & would not pay it without his order, on which an Extent was made out against him, & hee taken thereupon & put into Prison; Where, after many endeavors of Mr. Santon to the contrary, as will appear by the minutes of Council, hee at last paid £140 of it, which I was willing to take rather than lose the whole. I am afraid we shall not have soe good an account of the rest of the debts.

Being informed that Mr. Smith has never accounted with Mr. Santon, & having the opinion of Capt'n Palmer and Mr. Graham, that he is accountable to the King at least for soe much of the money as hee has received to his own use on pretence of salary, without any authority for the same, I have caused him to be arrested in an action of account at his Ma'ty's suit, upon which hee lies a prisoner to answer it at the Court appointed for the Management of his Ma'ty's Revenue.

Mr. Santon, since his commi't, hath been soe unruly & abusive to mee and the Council, that in our own defence, We are forct to send him home, threatening us with chains at least for what wee have done.

The names of y'e Councillors,

Major ANTHONY BROCKHELLES,
FREDERICK FLIPSON,
STEPHEN VAN CORTLANDT,
JOHN SPRAG,
GERVIS BAXTER.

Pensilvania.

Councillors.

The council thought fit not to give Mr. Santon his Oath, as appears by the minutes of council

John Young had his Oath given him, but he lives 150 miles from this, & has no estate of his own, and very old, that its a thing impossible for him to serve.

There being a clause in my Instructions wherein I am limited not to act without five, therefore Mr. John Sprag & Major Lewis Baxter going for England, and there not being a sufficient number to make a quorum, I have, by virtue of a clause in my letters Patents, impowering mee, in case of absence out of the Government, death, or Suspension, to add of the Principal Freeholders, given the oath to Judge Palmer, and Nicholas Bayard, the present Mayor, to serve in the Council until his Ma'ty's pleasure be known.

And whereas, there is a clause in my Instructions, to send over the names of six persons more fitt to supply the vacancy of the council; six of the fittest I find in this Government are as followeth :—

Mathias Nicols, Judge,
James Graham,
William Smith,

Gabriel Minvielle,
Francois Rumbouls,
Major Nicolas Demyre.

Whereas we experience to our grief, that the previously Enacted and frequently renewed placards and Ordinances against the desecration of the Sabbath of the Lord, the unlawful and unseasonable Tapping on the same, and after Setting of the Watch or drum beat, are not observed, but that many of the Inhabitants almost make it a custom, in place of observing the Sabbath as it ought to be observed, to frequent the Taverns more than on other days, and to take their delight in illegal exercises, to prevent and Obviate which hereafter, as much as possible for the future, the Schout, Burgomasters, and Schepens, renew the aforesaid Placards enacted on that Subject, and hereby interdict and forbid within this City New-Orange, and the Jurisdiction thereof, from Sunrise to Sundown, on Sunday all sorts of Handicraft, trade or traffick, gaming, boat racing, or running with carts or waggons, fishing or fowling, running, and picking nuts, strawberries, etc.; all riotous racing, calling and shouting of children in the streets, together with all unlawful exercises and games, drunkenness, frequenting taverns or Tap houses, dancing, card playing, ball playing, rolling nine pins or bowls, etc., which is more in vogue on this than on any other day; to prohibit and prevent which all tavern keepers and Tapsters are strictly enjoined to entertain no clubs on this day from sunrise to sunset, nor permit or suffer any games in their houses or places, on pain for the Tavern keeper who shall be found to suffer such in his house, of forfeiting for the first offence 25 gl., for the second offence 50 gl., and for the 3d offence he shall no longer be allowed to tap, and moreover forfeit a fine of one hundred guilders Seawant; and if any children be caught on the street playing, racing and shouting previous to the termination of the last preaching, the officers of justice may take their hat or upper garment, which shall not be restored to the parents until they have paid a fine of two guilders.

The intention of the above prohibition, is not that a stranger or citizen shall not buy a drink of wine or beer for the assuaging of his thirst, but only to prevent the Sitting of the Clubs on the Sabbath, whereby many are hindered resorting to Divine Worship.

Further, no Tapsters nor Tavern keepers shall tap, present or sell any wines, brandies, beer, etc., nor set any clubs on Sunday, nor on the night of any other day after Setting of the Watch or Ringing of the Bell, under the penalty and fine as above. Done in the City Hall of the City N. Orange, the 28th August, A. D. 1673.

By Order of the Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens aforesaid.

Whereas, it is considered necessary in this conjuncture of war, to place this City in proper state of defence as far as can be done with earth and sods, and since it is found by experience that the hogs, which are at present kept in great quantities within this City, have done great damage to such like works, and will undoubtedly commit the same injuries on the newly begun fortifications, unless it be prevented by prohibiting the keeping of any hogs within the City: Therefore, We, Schout, Burgomasters & Schepens of this City New-Orange, have thought fit for the good of this City and the preservation of its newly erecting fortifications, to order and enjoin on all our good inhabitants within this City and its jurisdiction unto the Fresh Water, to prepare to confine all their hogs within the time of twice 24 hours, and not to suffer them to roam along the streets and high ways on this side of the Fresh Water, upon forfeiture of said hogs, to be applied one half for the officer, & the other half for the City.

Every one is hereby warned and put on his Guard against loss.—Done New-Orange, the 28th August, A. D. 1673.

By Order of the Hr. Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of the City N. Orange.

Was signed,

N. BAYARD, Sec'y.

 ROELOF JANSEN, Butcher, Def't. }

Pl't demands from Def't the quantity of three ankers of Rum for Sheep sold. Def't admits the debt.

The arguments of parties being heard, and what the Def't brought in regarding same a'cs against the H'r Govern'r Lovelace, the W. Court condemns the Def't to pay the said debt to Pl't.

JOHN SHARP, Pl't. }
ag'st
 THOM'S WALDRON, Def't. }

Pl't demands from Def't, according to a'c, the sum of fl. 62 6, demands payment.

Def't fully admits to owe something to the Pl't, but not so much as the Pl't demands.

The W. Court having heard the arguments of parties, and examined also the Pl'ts book, Condemns the def't to pay the Pl't the aforesaid debt. Meanwhile declares the attachment valid.

JOHN SHARP, Pl't. }
ag'st
 RALPH WARNER, Def't. }

Pl't demands from the def't according to Judgment and a'c made up in presence of the H'r Schout, the sum of fl. 470 2, demands Payment or Security.

Def't admits the debt, but maintains it is not so much since he disbursed the most in the ship's service, and says the governor and Capt. Manning owe him 7 or 800 guilders, if they will pay him he shall pay others.

The W. Court condemn the def't to pay the aforesaid debt to the Pl't, and declares the attachment Valid, Saving his right against the Governor or Capt. Manning, &c.

The person of Balthazar Bayard being sent for to court, he is asked if he will also collect the Weigh Money? Gives for answer, No; as he has already enough to do with collecting the Tapsters and Burgher Excise. It is further resolved to send for Jonas Bartelsen to agree with him about the Weigh house, either to rent it or collect the money. Who appearing, absolutely refuses the farming, and demands for the collection a salary of fl. 600 until the first of May next.

Again appearing in Court, he is asked how much per cent. he will collect it for? Answers, will have nothing to do with per centage, and demands the first fl. 450, and to have the preference on it until May. He was offered four hundred, and it is finally postponed until another time.

The Petition of Mr. Thomas Williams, referred to this W. Court, by the Honble. Heeren Commanders, being examined, and the above-named Williams entering, he is asked if he can produce any other proof than by book? Says no, as Capt. Lavall's books doubtless are not present.

He further produces an a/c of £366 17s. 6d., which he says he paid on half the Vessel, and says that Laval has no a/c against it, as he has always disbursed for the Ketch and her Equipage.

He is ordered to exhibit copy of the agreement made with Laval, which he says remains with Mr. Sharp.

In the case in question between Jan Romyn & Isaack Melyn, in the matter of a/c, ordered that parties be heard.

 ABELL HARDENBROCK, Def't. }

The H'r Schout complains that the Def't Hardenbrock had shoved him on the breast and abused him with very foul and unseemly language, wishing that the D—— should break his neck, when, on the 3rd S'ber last, the H'r Pl't repaired, by order of the Burgomasters and Schepens, to Def't's house, to warn his wife that she should not go again to the house of the H'r Burgomast'r Johannis de pyster, as she now had twice done, to make trouble there, also had obstinately refused to obey the order of the Burgomasters and Schepens, as well to the Court Messenger Henry Newton, the Burgomaster Luyck, and H'r Schepen Willem Beeckman, as to him, Pl't, and that the said delinquent being in the evening a prisoner at the City Hall, in the chamber of Pieter Schaefbanck, carried on and made a racket like a man possessed and mad, notwithstanding the efforts of the H'r Burgomaster Johannis Van Brugh, running up to the Court room, and going away next morning as if he had not been imprisoned, having made use of other more injurious and foul words and acts, as appears by divers declarations and other proofs thereof produced; all which ought in no manner be tolerated in a well regulated Burghery, being directly contrary to the customs and provisions of the Laws: Concludes and demands accordingly that the delinquent, as one unworthy to live in a well regulated Burgery, having triply violated the laws and ordinances of Amsterdam, be subjected to like punishment, at least be banished forever from the jurisdiction of this City, or be otherwise punished according to the circumstances of the case, and remain in prison until the delinquent shall have satisfied, with costs.

The Def't denies the occurrence of many things, according to the above mentioned complaint.

Burgomasters and Schepens having heard the delinquent's excuse and the arguments between parties, and examined the evidence produced, condemn the delinquent in a fine or penalty of fl. 25, beavers, and that the delinquent shall go to jail until he shall have paid the above fine; further, that the delinquent, for the assault, shall beg pardon of the Court, God and Justice, and pay the costs incurred herein.

Pl't says that making his visits on Sunday, the 3d S'ber last, he found 3 persons at Def'ts House; also, going gauging on the 15th ulto., he found him, the def't, tapping without licence, and thereupon entered a fine against him; concludes, accordingly, that the def't be condemned according to placard of the 28th August, for a double offence, in a fine of fl. 50, with costs.

Def't denies having tapped any drink for said persons on that Sunday, and says further that he took out a licence on the same day he was warned By the pl't, also that his wife had been before that time twice with Secretary Bayard to take out a licence.

Burgomasters and Schepens having heard the arguments between the parties, condemn the Defend't in a fine or penalty of fl. 25, unless the def't proves that his wife had been before the above mentioned time at Secretary Bayard's house for a licence.

Burgomasters and Schepens having heard the debates between parties and the def'ts excuse, and having seen the declarations, order the Pl't to produce clearer evidence of what he brings in; otherwise, that his suit shall be dismissed.

Thomas Gibbs appearing in court, requests that he may, according to notice, remove his goods from Edward Smith's house.

Whereupon the W. Court allows him to remove his goods on Security, as was allowed him in the previous order of the 3d Octob'r.

This date is published from the City Hall, by order of the Hon'ble Governo. and Council and Burgomasters of this City, the placard regarding the demolishing and removal of divers houses, gardens, and orchards lying right under the fortifications of the fortress Willem Hendrick, and the Fort of this City N. Orange, which reads as follows:—

Whereas, the Fortress Willem Hendrick, and City N. Orange, situate on the Island Manhattan, is much incumbered and obstructed by the Houses, gardens, and Orchards which be so close under its wall and bulwarks, so that it is impossible, when requisit, properly to defend it against its enemies, unless some at least of said houses, gardens, and orchards be demolished or removed; Therefore the Hon'ble Lord Governor General, with the previous advice of his Council, hath judged it necessary to demolish, break up, and remove the undermentioned houses, gardens, and Orchards; and the owners thereof are hereby strictly ordered and charged forthwith to commence the demolition, throwing down, and removal of their houses, gardens, and Orchards to such Lots as the H'r Governor hath laid out for this purpose, within this City; and the H'r Burgomasters shall indicate to each of them, under the penalty that all those who shall refuse or be found negligent therein shall de facto be excluded from the indemnity, which according to the tenor of this publication is granted and allowed to the following persons, or those of them who shall remove their under mentioned houses, gardens, and Orchards. And that moreover their said houses shall be demolished and burnt, on the first arrival of some ships:

The Houses, Gardens, and Orchards of	{ Pieter D. Riemer, Lodew Port, George Cobbett, Jan Dircksen Meyer, Jacobus V. Waeton, Symon Blanck, Andries Meyer, Gerrith Hendricksen, Pieter Jansen Slodt, Gerritt Jansen Roos, Pieter Stoutenburgh, Henry Taylor, The Lutheran Congregation, Willem Van Frederickssen, Pieter Jansen Mesier, Marten Meyer Smith, Augustina Hermans, Lybert Tyssen, Pieter Harmensen, }	Situate under the fort and Bulwarks of the City New-Or- ange.
The Gardens and Or- chards of	{ Johan V. Brugh, Sarg Rierstede. }

But inasmuch as said houses cannot be removed without great and excessive cost to the owners, to whom in justice indemnity and satisfaction ought to be made, therefore, as the said removal is for the benefit and better defence of the publick, it is resolved that the grounds and lots of said persons, together with the necessary expence which they shall incur by the removal of their houses, shall be estimated by impartial persons, and that in place of said lots shall, by similar valuation, be indicated and given to the owners in possession some other lots, whereupon they shall have power to remove their said houses, and what their lots which they are to lose and the expences of removing their houses shall be found to exceed the same in value those which shall be indicated to them instead, shall be promptly made good, Paid and satisfied to them from the extraordinary impost which for this purpose it is resolved and agreed shall now or hereafter be paid, until the same indemnity & damage shall be promptly paid and no longer, to Wit: From all beavers and peltries which, after the publication hereof, shall be exported from within this government to Patria or elsewhere, two and one half per cent; From Duffels and blankets which shall be imported from Patria or elsewhere into this government, two per cent; and from powder, & lead, guns, wines, brandies, distilled Waters and Rum, five per cent. They hereby order and charge all and every of the subjects and inhabitants of this government, and all others whom it any ways concerns, that they, on the importation or Exportation of the above specified goods, shall notify the Collector thereof, and pay the said extraordinary duties thereupon, under the forfeiture and confiscation of the imported or shipped goods, to be applied conformably to the order and placards enacted against smuggling.—Done, Fort Willem Hendrick, on the Manhattans, in N. The H'r Pl't says that the Def't on the 30th Oct. last, very shamefully affronted and treated the H'r Lieutenant Carell Quirynzen, as appears by the produced complaint of said H'r Lieutenant and Mr. Minvielle; concluding therefore that the Def't ought to be banished beyond the jurisdiction of this city, or be otherwise punished as he deserves, being a person who committed a great offence against the Laws of our Fatherland.

Def't says he did not speak ill, but that if he said any thing it was after he had been first struck by Gab. Minvielle and Luytenant Quirynzen—and regarding what is stated in the complaint, that he, the Def't, would have wished to stick a knife into s'd Luytenant's heart, the Def't says thereon, that he had no knife then with him, nor ever carries one. Demand, therefore that the complainants, by whom he was first struck, according to their own acknowledgement, shall, as parties, prove by disinterested persons, their presented accusation; and that, as a free burgher of this city, be indemnified for the blow & other injuries rec'd by him; also, that time be afforded him to bring in his declarations and proofs, as he has been awhile from home, and unaware that the case should go on.

The W. Court having heard parties and their arguments on both sides, grant the Def't time to bring in his declarations and proofs whereupon he relies.

The H'r Pl't says that the Def't has not yet, pursuant to the order of the last Court day, proved that he was to Secretary Bayard's house to obtain a Tapper's Licence; requests therefore that the Def't may be condemned, according to said order in such amends as it directs.

Burgomasters and Schepens having heard the Def't's answer, condemn the Def't to satisfy & pay the Pl't the imposed fine of fl. 25, with costs.

On the H'r Schout's complaint against Adriaen Vincent, that he refuseth to comply with the judgment of this W. Court pronounced in date 3d S'ber, notwithstanding it was served on him by the Court Messenger, Henry Nuton, Whereupon the W. Court, having heard the parties de novo, Orders said Adriaen Vincent promptly to obey and comply with the aforesaid judgment, and pay the costs incurred herein.

Ephraim Hermans, the Clerk, demands for Secretary, N. B. Bayard, that certain previous judgement of the Mayor's Court, obtained against Thom. Taylor, may be declared valid, and that the Schout may be ordered to put it in execution.

The W. Court grants his request.

Thomas Carnish assisted by his Guardian, appearing in Court, complains that his late Master, Thom. Taylor, again refuses to give him up his Indentures according to the Judgment of this W. Court, dated 31st Octob.

Whereupon s'd Thomas Taylor being called in, refuses openly to give said Thom. Carnish up his indentures.

The W. Court once more hereby strictly orders the said Thom. Taylor promptly to comply with and obey said judgment. And the H'r Schout is hereby ordered and required to see that said judgment be obeyed and fulfilled according to its tenour.

Whereas Ephriam Hermans, Att'y for his father, Augustine Herman, hath requested of us by Petition, that he may again take possession of the house and part of a lot and Orchard, together with a peice of land lying at Corlears hook, which his said father Sold last year to one John Payne, at Boston; but as he maintains that, by reason of the demolishing and removing, etc., it is much depreciated, so that it is now not near so valuable as when sold, he requests therefore that before being resumed by virtue of the mortgage, it may be valued by arbitrators, in order that he may have his recourse ag'st said John Payne for the balance.

Burgomasters and Schepens have therefore resolved to nominate and authorize thereunto, as they do hereby nominate and authorize Mr. John Lawrence, Mr. Thomas Lewis, and Mr. Adolph Pietersen, who are hereby required and requested to value said house with said portion of a Lot and Orchard, together with the Land on Corlears hook, as to what the value thereof is now, to the best of their knowledge, and to report their award to the Court.

Ephraim Herman's attachment on some Iron work of John Payne is suspended to the next Court day.

Secretary N. Bayard is hereby requested to examine the acct. which Allard Anthony delivered in of Benjamin Johns estate, and give his advice as to what items ought to be allowed.

This day is also published by order of the H'r Govern't, the placard regarding the day of General Fast, Thanksgiving and prayer, to be celebrated and observed within this City and Province, on the first Wednesday of each month.

It is also ordered that copy of said proclamation shall be sent to those beyond the Fresh Water.

On the 29th Novemb'r said proclamation was sent to the Buyten Luiden, (the people outside the city limits) with the following letter :—

(Copy.)

RESPECTED GOOD FRIENDS :

This serves as cover of the enclosed copy of the Proclamation for a general day of Fasting, Thanksgiving and Prayer, the original of which has been sent to us by the Hon. Burgomasters and Schepens therefore decree, that seven guilders per day shall be deducted from each carter's acct. on the City book, for horse and cart, and that each of them shall henceforth work with his company, like the other Burghers.

On the complaint de novo made to the Court, regarding Thomas Taylor's unwillingness—the Heer officer is ordered to bring Thomas Taylor before the H'r President, to communicate again to him the judgment of this W. Court. between him and Thom. Carnish, promptly to prosecute it to the surrender of said Carnish's indenture, or in case of refusal, to imprison him.

The 2nd Decemb'r, 1673.

The Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, been met collegialite, at the City Hall to ascertain the reason why the ship, the Surrenan, Capt. Evert Evertse, Commander, has this day departed from this city contrary to the tenour of the apostille granted to their petition presented to the Hon'ble Lords Commanders and the Hon'ble Council of War, in date 6th S'ber last, Resolving therefore to enquire the cause from the Hon'ble H'r Governor Anth. Colve, and with this view to send thither the Hon'ble H'r Burgomasters, Johannis Van Brugh, Johannes De Peyster & Egidius Luyk, who then executing their comission, obtained after divers discourses with his Hon'r, for answer and report, that his Hon'r cannot and will not explain to any person his resolution and intention, but that his Hon'r assured the Whole Burghery in their name, that with or without that ship aforesaid, he should not undertake nor execute any thing except what his Hon'r should consider serviceable and expedient for the fort, the city, and the Burghery.

27th Decemb'r, 1673.

The following orders regarding the shutting the gates and the City Watch, are published from the City Hall of this City:—

Item—Also that none of the Inhabitants shall be allowed to Export Provisions from this City; and that each of the good Inhabitants shall lay in provisions for eight months, beginning on the first of April next.

This date was also made the following ordinance and acte regarding the Fire Wardens.

Whereas it is found necessary for the prevention of accidents, that the election and appointment of Fire Wardens be continued within this City according to the previous custom, the W. H'r Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of the City of N. Orange, have therefore nominated and authorized as they hereby do, as Fire Wardens of this City for the term of one current year, Jan Jansen Van Breesteede, Everd Duyckingh, Rynier Willensen Backer, and Jonas Bartelse, who are hereby requested and authorized to execute and fill the aforesaid office as Firewardens and chimney inspectors, in such manner as the same has been heretofore executed and filled by their predecessors, pursuant to the Ordinances and placards thereof existing. Done in the City Hall of the City of N. Orange, A. D. 5th January, 1674.

Whereas the fortifications of this City N. Orange have, at great and excessive expence, trouble and labour of the Burghery and Inhabitants been mostly completed, and it is therefore necessary for the preservation of the same and better security of this City that some orders be made; the Honble. H^r Governor Gener^l of New-Netherland doth therefore consider it necessary to enact, and by publication make known the following Orders to the Burghery:

1. Firstly, from now, henceforward, the Burgher watch of this City shall be set, and commence at drumbeat about half an hour before sundown, when the Train bands of this City, then on the watch, shall parade before the City Hall of this City under the penalty previously affixed thereunto.

Item—The City gate shall be closed at sundown by the Mayor of this City and his attendant Train bands, and in like manner opened at sunrise.

Item—The Burghery and Inhabitants of this City, and all others of what quality soever they may be, the Watch alone excepted, are strictly interdicted and forbid to attempt coming from sunset to sunrise on the bulwarks, bastion or batteries of this City on pain of bodily correction.

Item—It is strictly forbidden and prohibited, that any person, be he who he may, presume to land within this City or quit the same in any other manner, way or means, than through the ordinary City gate, on pain of Death. And finally, as it is found that the hogs which are kept within this City in multitudes along the public streets, have from time to time committed great damage on the earthen fortifications, and that the same are most certainly to be expected in like manner here on the erected works, every one who keeps hogs within this City is therefore ordered and charged to take care that their hogs shall not come to, in or on the Bulwarks, bastions, gardens, or batteries, under forfeiture of said hogs, and double the value thereof to be applied, the one half for the informer, the other half for the officer who shall put this in execution. Every person is hereby warned and put on his guard against injury. Done at the City Hall of the City N. Orange, A. D. this 27th S^rber, 1673.

But if it happen that the votes are equal the president shall then have power to decide by his vote, in which case those of a contrary opinion, as well as those of the minority, may record their opinions on the Minutes, but not make the same publick in any way outside the Court, on pain of arbitrary correction.

7. The Burgomasters shall change rank every half year; the oldest shall first occupy the place of president, and the next shall succeed him; but during this current year the change shall take place every 4 months, since three Burgomasters are appointed for this year.

9. The Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens shall have power to enact, and with the approbation of the H'r Govern'r, to publish and affix Statutes, Ordinances, and Placards, for the Peace, Quiet and advantage of this City and its inhabitants within their district, provided that the same do not in any wise conflict, but agree as much as possible, with the laws and statutes of our Fatherland.

10. Said Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens shall be bound rigidly to observe, and cause to be observed, the Placards and Ordinances of the Supreme Authority, and not to suffer anything to be done contrary thereto, but proceed against the contravenors according to the tenour thereof; and further promptly execute such orders as the H'r Governor General shall send them from time to time.

11. The Schout shall receive all fines imposed during his time, provided they do not exceed yearly the sum of twelve hundred guilders seawant value, having received which, he shall enjoy the first half of all the other fines, on condition that he presume not, either directly or indirectly, to compound with any criminals, but leave them to the judgment of the magistrates.

15. The Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens aforesaid, shall convoke and assemble on the 11th day of the month of August, being eight days before the election of new magistrates, and in presence of the Commission to be qualified for that purpose by the Hon. By order of the Hon'ble H'r Governor General of N. Netherland.

N. BAYARD, Sect'y.

The W'l Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, moreover handed to the Hon'ble H'r Governor, the subjoined writing relating to the furnishing some monies for the payment of the City's expences, etc. Reading as follows:—

To our Right Hon'ble H'r Governor-General, Anth. Colve.

Whereas the Heer President Burgomaster Johannes Van Brugh, and since then his successor Johannes De Peyster, have represented in court the expences successively incurred in fortifying this City N. Orange, and that they were constantly troubled and spoken to by its creditors for the payment and earned wages; and little or nothing of what was promised by the outside people and allowed by your Hon'r and the Hon'ble Commanders has come in, the H'r Burgomasters and Schepens considering the necessity thereof, unanimously resolve to speak to your honour on this subject, and for this purpose to commission the H'r Burgomasters Johannes De Peyster, Ægidius Luyck and Schepen William Beekman, who having done so report to the Court that your Hon'r promised to take their proposition into consideration, and that your Hon'r would appoint two or three persons to consult with them how, where, and in what wise some monies could be raised to pay therewith the expences required and the debts incurred, but as we are informed by the H'r Cornelis Steeuwyck and Secretary Nicolaes Bayard that your Hon'r thinks it best to refer the furnishing of the required monies at once to the H'r Burgomasters and Schepens, we have thought proper to appoint de novo Burgomasters Johannes De Peyster, Johannes Van Brugh, Ægidius Luyck and Schepen Willem Beekman, to propose to your Hon'r, and earnestly to request your Hon'r to remember the verbal promise which your Hon'r and the Hon'ble H'r Commanders were pleased to give us that, if necessity required it, you would grant us the proceeds of the Tapsters and Weigh-house excise, and continue it so long until the above mentioned expenses and debts should be for the most part satisfied and paid, and though this will not immediately produce any ready money to satisfy present debts, yet we doubt not but your Hon'r (or some person authorized by your Honour,) will hereupon find credit enough amongst some of the most wealthy Inhabitants to loan for us such monies whereby we may satisfy and pay the abovementioned debts.—Wherein not doubting, we remain

Your Hon'rs faithful subjects, etc.

N. Orange, 16th Jan'y, 1674.

Burgomasters and Schepens further resolved to adjourn the meeting until the next morning, to revise and consider the Instruction granted, which in like manner is communicated by the H'r President Burgomaster Johannes de Peyster to Capt. Knyff. Whereupon the said Capt. Knyff immediately quitted the meeting and separated from them.

Whereupon the three Burgomasters are sent for to the fort by the H'r Governor, who coming there are asked by his Honor why they had adjourned the meeting in an abrupt manner, and refused to allow Capt. Knyff to preside? Who gave his Hon'r for answer, that not the smallest disrespect was committed, but that they had adjourned the meeting to examine the newly granted Instruction, and that Capt. Knyff was informed thereof, who thereupon had left the meeting.

But finally, after divers arguments pro and con, they were told by the H'r Governour that they should forthwith repair back to the City Hall, to give, without delay, conjointly a categorical answer, to wit: Whether they will allow Capt. Willem Knyff to preside at their Court, and in case of refusal, that his Honour will immediately dismiss and discharge said Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, appointing new ones in their stead.

Further, the Hon'ble H'r Governor sent to the court the H'r Councillor Cornelis Steenwyck, and Secretary Nicolas Bayard, to receive the W. Court's answer to his Hon'rs proposal, exhibiting also to the Court of Burgomasters and Schepens certain writings from the H'r Governor, by which writing his Honour discharges the Burgomasters and Schepens, unless they will consent to his Honor's resolution to permit Capt. Knyff to preside in their Court according to the granted Instruction.

All which being considered and weighed by the Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, they unanimously resolved to return the following answer:—

RIGHT HONBLE. SIR,

Whereas your Hon'r has been pleased to command us instantly to answer whether we shall allow the person of Capt. Knyff to preside in our Court, etc., These serve to answer:

That we have always been very glad and well pleased, and shall continue to be, by being honoured by your Hon'rs Presence in our Court, knowing that such is a great condescension on your Hon'rs part; But if your Hon'r have any doubt or misgiving of our judicial proceedings or behaviour, let your Hon'r inspect and examine the Minutes, in which, according to custom, will clearly appear what we from time to time treat of, adjudge and decide; we have therefore thought proper to communicate to your hon'r in brief the following reasons:

Firstly—That it conflicts with the laws, Statutes, and Ordinances of our Fatherland, which we, according to our Commission and Oath given to your Hon'r, and the Honble. Commanders, are bound to observe and Obey.

Secondly—That it is manifestly prejudicial to the privileges of this bench and Burghery, not only depreciating the Character of the Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens, but is not practised in all the Cities of our Fatherland, whose Laws were granted and concented to us in former times, and even by your Honor and the Honble. H'r Commanders.

And finally, that it cannot be otherwise than prejudicial to the public peace of this Burghery, whereof we have already seen an instance, being this morning already unjustly accused and complained to your Honor by this same Capt. Knyff, meanwhile being greived that all our Sollicitude, trouble, care and labor, expended to this time for the good of this City and its inhabitants should be requited by a dismissal for bad and illegal conduct (which God forbid.) Beseeching your Honor most humbly, therefore to arrange the matter in more gentle manner, and not to interpret ill our zeal manifested for the good of the City and Burghery, which hoping we are and remain,

Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of the City New-Orange,

N. Orange,
the 16th Jan'y, 1674.

Which preceding answer being this date presented to the H'r Governor by the Worsh'll Burgomasters Johannes De Peyster, Johannes Van Brugh, Egidius Luyck and Schepen Willem Beeckman, they after divers discourses received for answer from his Hon'r that he should again send the H'r Councillor Corns. Steenwyck, and Secretary Bayard to the meeting, and that they should meanwhile consider on it.

The H'r Councillor Corns. Steenwyck, and Secretary Nicolaes Bayard, appearing this day in Court, have again asked the Worsh'll Burgomasters and Schepens in his Hon'rs name, whether they will consent to the H'r Governor's proposition regarding the presidency of the Capt. Knyff, if not that they should give a breif answer.

Whereupon the W. Burgomasters and Schepens after previous deliberation, have concluded and resolved to send the H'r Burgomasters Johannes De Peyster, Johannes Van Brugh, Egidius Luyck, and Schepen Willem Beeckman, from the Court to the Governor, to bear the following answer to his Honor:—

The Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens finding themselves constrained (beswaert) to impair the Right of the Burghery, and to diminish its already granted privileges, persist, therefore, in their answer previously sent to his honour. Yet, in order not to directly contravene his Hon'r's command and injunction herein, it is Resolved and Concluded (Saving the Right & privileges of this Bench and Burghery,) also, in order to prevent further mischief and difficulties, to grant his honor, provisionally for this time, the presidency of Capt. Knyff; but as we doubt not his Honor will change his Resolution and allow this bench and Burghery to enjoy and exercise their previously granted rights and privileges according to the Commission given to this Court by the Hon'ble H'r Commanders, &c.

The Court complete, except Capt'n Knyff.

To the Worship'ill Heeren President, Burgomasters & Schepens of this City N. Orange.

Annetje Cornelis represents with very great humility, that she hath divers times requested that the house belonging to her and her children from God & Nature, may be given up to her, as she is very sickly and beladen with the Quartan Ague, having been obliged the whole winter to sleep in the garret under the roof of the house, which truly is a very hard thing to happen to an old woman, & all this for a drunken and constant prophaner of God's name, a cidevant Lutheran Preacher, named, as he says, Jacobus Fabritius, her married but unfaithful husband, who has driven her out her own house and chamber which she intended for her son, which is truly a matter that ought not be tolerated in a place where Law is maintained as is the case in this government, the good God be fervently thanked therefor.

The Petitioner therefore humbly beseeches your worships to be pleased to order that he deliver up the Key of the room without delay to the petitioner, to interdict or forbid him to presume to enter the house any more until further order from your Worships on pain of certain arbitrary correction to be found fitting by your Worships, the rather as said Fabritius did yesterday not only use force and violence in said house, but also stole property, which at a proper time shall be proved; whereupon awaiting your favorable apostille, remains, etc.

Apostilled.

The accompanying Petition being considered & read in Court, the Petitioner Annetja Cornelis's request is granted and allowed, especially as Jacobus Fabritius, hath of himself left the house, and contrary to the previous order & prohibition given him, hath behaved very uncivilly and badly; & the said Jacobus Fabritius is ordered to deliver up the said key to the Petitioner, and not to presume to molest her in any way, until the W. Court shall otherwise provide therein.

Whereas, divers complaints are daily made to the H'r Burgomasters and Burgher Chief officers of this City, that many of the Inhabitants of this City, notwithstanding the previously fixed orders, absent themselves and do not appear at the appointed time in their respective Companies to aid in advancing the public necessary work of fortifying this City, whereby the same is greatly delayed and postponed; The W. Heeren Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of this City have therefore resolved, de novo, well and strictly to order & charge that each and every one shall repair to his company and Corporal's squad at the appointed day and place of work, & there advance the public necessary work, on pain of forfeiting fl. 6 for each day lost; fl. 3 for a half day, for a quarter day in proportion, which fines henceforth shall be collected and gathered precisely every week by the Provost and the respective Corporals, and the said Provost and Corporals of the respective squads are authorized and charged to keep a correct account and list of the absent persons, to the end to collect and gather the fines due each week, which fines shall be henceforth employed $\frac{1}{3}$ for the Provost and the remaining two-thirds for the Corporals' Squads, and in case any one shall be found unwilling to pay on losing the aforesaid fine, the Provost and Corporals shall communicate the same to the W. Court, who shall then make further order thereupon.

Having considered and read the papers, documents and other proofs produced in Court, in the case between Gaberielles Minvielle, Pl't, ag't Juffrow Elizabeth de Potter, widow of dec'd Isaack Bedloo, def't, wherein the Pl't demands from the def't the following sum; firstly, the sum of fl. 3880 12, Holland money, being for a protested bill of Exchange, with the risk, damage and Interest done by Def'ts late husband, Sieur Isaack Bedloo, to the def't.—Item, for book debt according to a'c, the sum of fl. 85 8, in beavers, fl. 329 1, in Sew't, and the quantity of 124 lbs. of good merchantable leaf Tobacco; demands condemnation with costs.

The Def't represents that the bill of exchange was not for her husband's a'c., but that he drew it as factor of the late Governor, F. Lovelace, in whose books he the Pl't stands credited for the same, and as regards the book debt, offers to pay the same at any time to the Pl't.

The W. Court having seen the papers, documents and proofs, and further having seriously considered all that has been brought in on both sides by the Parties for the defence, their Worships adjudge and decree that the Defend't is bound, according to the law of exchange, to pay the said protested Bill, as it was executed and signed by her dec'd husband, without any exception or reserve, amounting to the sum of fl. 2550 12, Holland Currency. And whereas it appears that the Pl't out of particular regard, neglected to prosecute his action against the def't or her husband before, it was therefore by plurality of votes decreed that the Pl't shall be allowed and receive for damage and interest only the sum of fl. 550 Hollands, amounting together to the sum of fl. 3100 gl. Hollands; and the Def't is condemned to satisfy and pay said sum of fl. 3100 to the Pl't, provided the Def't may have her recourse again, on whomsoever she thinks proper.

And finally, as regards the above demanded Book debt, the Def't is equally condemned to pay it to the Pl't, unless she, the Def't, can bring in something against it, all with costs.

At a Court of Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of the City N. Orange, on the 26th Feb., A. D. 1674.

The Court complete, except Capt. Knyff.

Mary Mathews appearing, is asked why she does not pay the excise she owes. Gives for answer that she already paid the excise at the thrashing season on the wines found on guaging at her house.

Ordered that Mary Mathews shall pay for excise fl. 29 4 for wines and beer previously tapped at the surrender of the place without payment of excise.

Pieter Nys appearing, was asked for the payment of the Excise on some wines found on guaging at his house. Gave for answer, that he entered & paid for said wines and beer at thrashing time.

The receiver was therefore ordered to erase the same, being fl. 34, from P. Nys' a'c, in consideration as above.

The H'r Cornelis Steenwyck, and Corn's Van Ruyven appear in court and declare they are commissioned by the Hon'ble H'r Governor, to state regarding the Petition previously presented to his Honor, by this W. Court, relative to the furnishing of some monies for the fortifying of this City, etc., that his Hon'r having seen and considered the assessment made, that the required monies should be borrowed in the form of loans, from the richest and wealthiest inhabitants of this city, and that each of the taxed should advance the hundredth penny thereto, which loaned monies should be repaid from certain extraordinary imposts enacted by his Hon'r, to be paid for this purpose, on all imported and exported Indian goods and Merchandizes; stating also further that his Hon'r thought it best to erase from the same some persons who are least wealthy, together with widows, etc. And that his hon'r judged it was proper to make use of the said monies as well to strengthen the fort and City, and for this purpose, to appoint two Commissioners to dispose of the receipt and disbursements, in consideration whereof, the contributions to be collected for this purpose from Willemstadt and other places should be again used, both for the fortification of the City and Fort; requesting that this W. Court may give its advice thereupon.

Burgomasters and Schepens having considered the same, the H'r Governor's proposition is approved of by them.

Pursuant to the commission of the most Worship'll Magistrates, the Heeren Schout, Burgomasters and Schepens of this City N. Orange, we, the undersigned, have, as Firewardens, visited on the 12th January, 1674, the houses of all the Inhabitants of this City aforesaid, and found divers fire places very much exposed to cause a conflagration, wherefore we warned and notified them to remedy and improve the same, thus to prevent mischief; we have also caused the City Crier to publish and make known if any one of the Inhabitants of this City had by them any City fire buckets, to deliver them up without delay at the City Hall, or to hand them to us Firewardens; we, however, have not as yet been able to collect more than 57 Fire buckets, three of which are at Abel Hardenbroeck to be repaired; we have also found two old Fire Hooks with one old Fire ladder at the City Hall, but they are unfit for use in case of fire or other misfortune: we therefore request your Worships to be pleased to provide therein that so many fire ladders and fire hooks may be made as your Hon'rs shall think necessary.

Herewith we remain your Worship's humble and faithful subjects, and Obedient Servants.

THE PRAYER BEFORE THE COURT.

O God of Gods, and Lord of Heavenly Hosts and Merciful Father, We thank Thee that Thou hast not only created us after Thine own Image, but also, When we were lost, that Thou hast again received us as thine own Children and allies; It hath moreover pleased Thee to appoint us to the Ruling of thy People in this place: O Lord our God, we miserable Men acknowledge that we are unworthy this Honour. We are even too feeble and unfit to discharge this trust, unless Thou, O God, help us to bear it. We pray Thee, O fountain of all good gifts, make us through Thy Mercy, fit that we may faithfully and righteously execute our imposed office; enlighten to this end the darkness of our Understanding, that We may distinguish Right from Wrong, and Truth from Falsehood. and pronounce Justice pure and unadulterated, having fixed our Eyes on Thy Word, which is a sure testimony, giving Wisdom unto the lowly: Let Thy Law be a Light to our Ways and a Lantern to our Paths, that we may never stray from the Path of Righteousness: Let us remember that We occupy the Judgment-seat, not of men but of God, who seeth and heareth all. Be far from us distinction of persons, that we may administer Justice to Poor and Rich, Freinds and Enemies, Inhabitants and Strangers, according to the Rule of Truth, departing in no wise therefrom, to please any person; and as presents blind the Eyes of the Wise, therefore preserve Our Hearts from Covetousness: Grant likewise that We judge no man rashly nor unheard, but listen patiently to parties, give time for defence, and seek council from Thy Mouth and Word in all things. Grant us also this mercy, that We use the power which Thou hast given us, for the common advantage of the country, the prosperity of the Churches, the protection of the good, and the punishment of the Wicked. Incline also the Hearts of the Subjects to due obedience, that by their love and prayers Our charge may be lightened. Thou Knowest also, Lord, that the Wicked and unrestrained Men usually blaspheme and contradict Thy holy ordinances. Arm us therefore with power, valour, Courage and confidence, that we oppose ourselves rightfully, earnestly and zealously against all Sin and Evil doing, and Fight to the death for Righteousness and Truth: Extend, also, Thy blessing, O good God, over our common Resolutions, that they be carried out, and tend to the honour of Thy holy Name, to the good of our committed place, and to our salvation. Hear and grant unto us, O gracious God, this and whatever more Thou knowest is necessary for us thro' the merits of Jesus Christ, Thy beloved Son, wherein We thus conclude our Prayer.

Our Father, &c.
